U. S. to Begin Its Capone Evidence Today

RY IS CHOSEN OPENING DAY F GANG TRIAL

Only One Chicagoan to Vote on Verdict.

DWIGHT H. GREEN.

It took all day [illegible] of half a dozen to get a jury. At that job was only part of the day's evening, and after the opening statements of counsel the swearing the prosecution of the government evidence will begin. The charge is that [illegible] defrauded Uncle Sam of $215,[illegible] in income taxes during the years [illegible] to 1929.

Green to Open for U. S.

Assistant United States Attorney Dwight H. Green will make the opening statement for the government this morning. The defense is expected to follow his statement, and the presentation of evidence will begin at once. Both sides used all their peremptory challenges in the jury selection, and while state court rules the struggle between Capone's lawyers and the prosecution might have gone on for days, Judge Wilkerson, however, shortened the procedure by doing all the questioning of veniremen himself, although accepting every suggestion or question made to him by attorneys for either side.

Members of the Jury.

The trial jury, as it was ordered [illegible] up for the night by Judge Wilkerson at 4 p. m., stood as follows:

Ahern Objects to Jury.

Attorney Michael Ahern, representing the gangland chief, objected to the swearing of the jury because it had been developed during examination that nine of them had served before on grand or petit juries in the federal courts. Judge Wilkerson overruled this objection without comment.

"It seems more than a coincidence that so many of these jurors are re-[illegible]," said Mr. Ahern. "It is quite unusual that after they have served their names are put back into the box again. It is strange that out of the Northern district of Illinois, where there are probably one million eligible to serve, jurors have served twice in nine years.

"It is not a fair manner of selection. It would be fairer to have persons who have not served before. I ask the court to take judicial notice of this."

It was not a bad day for Capone as days go. He heard himself referred to politely by the judge as "Mr. Capone." He found no expressed hostility toward him on the part of the prospective jurors. They seemed quite indifferent as to his fate. Only six of the panel were excused for cause, and of these only four had formed a firm opinion in the case.

STOCKS SPURT ON REPORTS OF MONETARY PLAN

Curbing of Shorts Aids Gain.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 6.—Disclosure that the Hoover administration was acting with the country's banking leadership to stimulate an economic recovery, together with substantial buying support that manifested itself at the opening of trading on the New York Stock exchange, caused prices of securities to soar today to the sharpest extent in nearly two years. Wheat and cotton quotations went up with those for stocks and bonds.

Market leaders, which, with other issues in their train, had dropped to new low levels on Monday, opened today in most cases higher and then the entire list shot up in a series of four or five waves of buying. The open market value of securities was enhanced by millions of dollars.

News Is More Favorable.

Favorable factors for an advance were as conspicuous today as they were inconspicuous on Monday. Before the opening of the market, the New York Stock exchange announced a further restriction of short selling. At midday, the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railway announced unexpectedly that a dividend payment at the full annual rate of $10 would be paid.

In a volume of transactions, which exceeded 4,300,000 shares, prices advanced by a maximum as high as 16 points.

Table Tells Story.

Specialty stocks lived up to their reputation. Auburn Auto, which has provoked attention with sharp advances and declines this year, closed up 14⅛ points, which was the largest net gain for any stock. International Business Machines closed up 12⅛ points. Eastman Kodak gained 14 points.

What New Ruling Means.

Before the opening of the market the stock quotation ticker rapped out another announcement by the stock exchange on short selling. Members of the exchange had been making duly reports on short sales when, on Sept. 21, Great Britain went off the gold standard, the management issued an unusual warning calculated to diminish deleterious short selling today, the committee on business conduct directed members before executing selling orders to ascertain and notify their floor brokers whether they were for long or short account.

The new ruling meant that, not only must members report at the end of the day on short selling but that they must determine at time of execution whether selling orders were by actual holders of securities or by shorts. The effect of the order was to place further obstacles in the way of short selling. The action of the market yesterday indicated that the measures taken by the stock exchange management had so diminished the short interest that any substantial buying was immediately reflected in increased prices.

Market Ripe for Rally.

The source of the early buying was not disclosed. It was denied in banking circles that preconcerted "banking support" was behind these acquisitions, although it was admitted there might have been "spontaneous" buying from banking sources.

The support did arrive when the market was ripe for a rally. As the early trading demonstrated that a

WINE DRINKING IN FRANCE DROPS BY 39,630,000 GALLONS

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Oct. 6.—France this year has been drinking less wine. For the eleven months ended Aug. 31 consumption reached 1,188,900,000 gallons, which is 39,630,000 gallons less than for the same period of the previous season. The cold weather of this summer is believed responsible for the drop in consumption.

This year's crop has been estimated by the ministry of agriculture to be considerably over the present rate of consumption. Although no champagne will be manufactured this year, owing to insect blight, exceptionally fine crops in the south of France and the Bordeaux region will counterbalance this.

Some Burgundy vineyards have suffered severely from late spring frosts and the wet season.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 6.—Two German flyers drowned in the crash of the ship to shore plane New York in the muddy waters of Cobequid bay last night. Wreckage found off Minasville today was identified as the gas tank of the seaplane which was catapulted from the deck of the liner Bremen 630 miles off Cape Race yesterday morning.

The plane was manned by Fritz Simon, pilot, and Rudolph Wuecknecht, mechanic. Flying blind in a fog after being catapulted from the Bremen in an attempt to get the mail to New York 29 hours faster than the liner could reach there, the flyers landed at Sydney last night for fuel. They took off again at midnight with 3,000 pieces of mail addressed to Americans. They planned to stop at Boston on the flight to New York.

Hear Cries for Help.

At 3:30 a. m. today residents of Noel in the Bay of Fundy were awakened by the sounds of an airplane's motor, followed by an explosion and then by a loud splash. Shouts for help followed. William Faulkner, lighthouse keeper on Cobequid bay, organized a search party.

A tidal bore with the speed of an express train beat the efforts of the rescuers. Although two miles from shore at high tide, the spot where the plane crashed was fairly dry. Just as the rescuers began to push their boats out the tidal bore appeared and completely engulfed the seaplane. Wreckage of the plane appeared as the swirling waters subsided. The bodies have not been recovered.

Plane Falls on Group; Three Die.

Columbia City, Ind., Oct. 6.—(AP)—Three men were killed late today when an airplane in which one of them was a passenger fell on top of an automobile from which the others were watching construction of a building here today. The pilot of the plane was perhaps fatally injured.

The dead are Mel Miller, 68, Columbia City; Virgil Brumbaugh, 32, of Churubusco, Ind., and Willis Leininger, 53, Columbia City.

Kenneth MacLey, pilot of the plane, was brought to a local hospital. His injuries included a fractured skull, broken arm, fractured rib, broken nose, loss of an eye, and cuts and bruises.

The engine of the plane, which had taken off a short time before from the local airport, stalled an eighth of a mile from where Miller's automobile was parked. In its plunge the plane snapped the top from a telephone pole before landing squarely on top of the car.

CAPT. EVANS OF POLICE IDENTITY BUREAU IS DEAD

Capt. Michael P. Evans, who founded the Chicago police department's bureau of identification in 1884 and had been continuously in charge of it since, died early today at the Little Company of Mary hospital following an operation. He was 84 years old, and had been in good health until Sept. 16, when he went to the hospital.

Capt. Evans' police career began in 1881. He was desk sergeant at the department headquarters in 1884, and while on that job took a special course in photography. The bureau of identification, as at first constituted, only took pictures of criminals. Later the Bertillon system of finger prints was added. It has been claimed that the local bureau was the first ever established, antedating that of Scotland Yard by several months.

Through all police administrations since then, Capt. Evans held his post. It was said of him that he never forgot a face. His title was chief identification inspector. His son, Emmett, has been his principal assistant for years. Capt. Evans is also survived by his widow, another son and a daughter. The family home is at 9812 South Damen avenue.

$500,000,000 BANK POOL TO BUCK UP U. S. INDUSTRY

PRESIDENT CALLS FOR UNITY AND FAITH OF PEOPLE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7 [1 a. m.]—(AP)—The text of the statement made by President Hoover early this morning follows:

"The prolongation of the depression by the succession of events in Europe, affecting as they have both commodity and security prices, has produced in some localities in the United States an apprehension wholly unjustified in view of the thousandfold resources we have for meeting any demand.

"Foolish alarm in these sections has been accompanied by wholly unjustifiable withdrawal of currency from the banks.

Limits Ability of Banks.

"Such action results in limiting the ability of the banks in these localities to extend credit to business men and farmers for the normal conduct of business, but, beyond this, to be prepared to meet the possibility of unreasoning demands of depositors the banks are compelled to place their assets in liquid form by sales of securities and restriction of credits so as to enable them to meet unnecessary and unjustified drains.

"This affects the conduct of banking further afield.

"It is unnecessary to specify the unfortunate consequences of such a situation in the districts affected both in its further effect on national prices of agricultural products upon securities and upon the normal conduct of business and employment of labor.

"It is a deflationary factor and a definite impediment to agricultural and business recovery.

No Excuse for Situation.

"There is no justification for any such situation in view of the strength of our banking system and the strong position of our federal reserve system. Our difficulty is a diffusion of resources and the primary need is to mobilize them into such a way as to restore in a number of localities the confidence of the banker in his ability to continue normal business and to dispel any conceivable doubt in the mind of those who do business with him.

"In order to deal with this wholly abnormal situation and to bring about an early restoration of confidence, unity of action on the part of our bankers and coöperative action on the part of the government is essential.

Form Huge Organization.

"Therefore, I propose the following definite program of action, to which I ask our citizens to give their full coöperation:

"1. To mobilize the banking resources of the country to meet these conditions I request the bankers of the nation to form a national institution of at least $500,000,000. The purpose of this institution to be the rediscount of banking assets not now eligible for rediscount at the federal reserve banks in order to assure our banks, being sound, that they may attain liquidity in case of necessity and thereby enable them to continue their business without the restriction of credits or the sacrifice of their assets.

Pledge of $150,000,000.

"I have been advised by them that it will receive their support and that at my request they will assume the leadership in the formation of such an organization. The members of the New York City Clearing House asso-

Bi-Party Conference Unites on Hoover Proposal.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7, 1 a. m.—[Special.]—President Hoover late last night wound up a three hour White House bipartisan conference with the announcement that the leaders of congress, as well as the most important bankers of the nation, have reached agreement to coöperate in a unified program for upholding the credit structure of the country, thereby aiding business, employment and agriculture.

The President's statement, containing the announcement that the bankers of the nation are forming a $500,000,000, privately financed national institution which will go to the aid of weaker banks and help other banks extend credit to business men and farmers for a normal conduct of business, was made after he had spent an entire evening discussing the domestic business situation with thirty-two ranking members of congress and members of his official family.

A Crowded 24 Hours.

The conference came at the end of a crowded day which saw the President utilizing the long distance telephone, the airplane, and private conference in an effort to unify the country in a move to restore and maintain business confidence. Following the meeting leaders of both parties announced they were in general accord with the main points of the President's program.

In event the 500 million dollar institution fails to restore business confidence President Hoover announced he would recommend the formation of a federal financed corporation similar in character and purpose to the War Finance corporation utilized during the war.

Legislation Later.

The President announced that agreement had been reached with the congressmen which would make possible the passage of legislation broadening the eligibility provisions of the federal reserve act in order to give greater liquidity to the assets of banks and thus greater assurance to banks in the granting of credits.

There will be no special session for this legislation. The leaders of both parties tacitly approved of the President starting his program immediately, the conforming legislation to be passed later if necessary.

He announced that steps would be taken to strengthen the resources of the federal land banks so as to aid agriculture.

The President also disclosed that the question of extending the reparations and war debts moratorium will be taken up when Premier Laval visits the United States on Oct. 22.

Busy for 48 Hours.

For the last 48 hours before the White House conference official Washington has been in a turmoil. Speculation regarding what would be taken up at the conference has raged wherever congressmen, officials, or citizens have gathered.

During this period the President was in constant conference with members of his official family, including Secretaries Mellon, Lamont, Gov. Eugene Meyer of the federal reserve board, and nationally known bankers.

Gather in Lincoln's Study.

The lights behind the drawn shades proclaimed the conference going on within, where those invited by the President were gathered in the study that once was Lincoln's.

Senator James E. Watson [Rep., Ind.], majority leader of the senate, sat there only a few feet away from Joe Robinson of Arkansas, senate chieftain of the Democrats. Borah, with his thinning mane of gray, sat in as the only representative of the senate's insurgent bloc.

Representative Garner, minority leader of the house, hovered on a contentious mood, one that led from questions to objections to some of the President's proposals.

Carter Glass Won Over.

Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, who as secretary of the treasury under President Wilson fathered the federal reserve act, was expected to oppose liberalizing the terms of the law. Earlier in the day it was said that he would regard any broadening of the eligibility provisions of the law as placing the government on the side of speculation and likely to lower the stability of the currency and so raise prices. But at the conference he proved agreeable.

As an administrative bodyguard the President had with him Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Undersecretary Ogden L. Mills, Gov. Meyer of the federal reserve board and two of his quartet of executive secretaries, Walter Newton and Theodore G. Joslyn.

And present also were such administration stalwarts as Senators David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, Otis F. Glenn of Illinois, Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, and Representatives John Q. Tilson, majority leader of the house; Bertrand H. Snell, chairman of the house rules committee, and Louis T. McFadden, chairman of the house committee on banking and currency.

100 Newspaper Men Present.

Outside, by the columned north portico, nearly a hundred newspaper correspondents and photographers waited with the restless interest that the press reserves for occasions of moment. Speculations flew from group to group. It was a banking matter, that was certain. There was talk of a big bankers' pool. Would Hoover propose an extension of the international debt moratorium?

Senator William F. King [Dem., Utah] was the first to walk through the main entrance to attend the meeting. He got there 22 minutes before 4 p. m.—the hour set in President Hoover's telegrams of invitation.

Representative Tilson appeared five minutes later, Senator Claude A. Swanson [Dem., Va.], ranking minority member of the senate naval affairs committee, following.

A string of Republicans followed—Senator F. C. Walcott and the pine tree figure of Senator Hiram Bingham, both of Connecticut; Representative Frank Crowther of New York, Senator Vandenberg, Representative Snell, Senators Watson and Glenn.

Picture Three Great Acts.

The opening act presented the characters as an opening act should. The second—the conference itself—tied the knot. The third was when the conferees came out of the big glass doors, and it was properly explosive. Senators Thomas J. Walsh [Dem., Mont.] and Vandenberg were the first to emerge. They were waylaid, interviewed, photographed. Soon the portico was a scene of questioning groups with a senator or a representative in the middle.

Senators Robinson and Bingham made for the Connecticut senator's car, but not before they had reported that the President would make a statement, that the conference was harmonious, that the President's statement had been discussed and was in effect a consensus of the conference's opinion, that the three points required possible legislation, that the capital stock of the land banks be increased, that the federal reserve act be liberalized, and that a finance corporation similar to the War Finance corporation be formed—had received the approval in principle of all those present.

Harmonious, Says Reed.

Senator Reed added his bit. He was sure there would be no special session. There had been, he said, a frank discussion on both sides and some dissension, but for the most part the meeting had been harmonious.

As in last November when the Democratic leaders signed the pledge of cooperation with the administration—and what a session of controversy that led to—politics was to be laid aside in favor of patriotic solidarity.

There was no discussion of increased taxes, no attempt to propose a shutdown on short selling on the stock exchange.

The President had laid the matter of the moratorium before the conference, saying that he would take it up with Premier Laval of France when the latter comes here. But international matters such as this, it was explained, were not of such immediate consequence as the domestic banking situation; they could wait development of world events.

Like Principles of Plan.

Senator Robinson declared that "all those present were in general agreement with the principles of the proposals set forth by President Hoover." He said that, while there had been free discussion during those three significant hours, there had been "no dissension or controversy."

"Everything went off amiably," said Senator Glenn [Rep., Ill.] "The group listened to the President's proposal. There was some comment. Every one was disposed to help."

Close presidential advisers were authority for statements tonight to the effect that bankers and certain other callers at the White House have painted American domestic conditions in somber colors during the last three weeks.

While not attacking the fundamental soundness of the country's financial structure, these callers have told the President that more hoarding is going on than previously, that a tremendous amount of American securities are being sold by Europeans, taking gold out of this country, and that the bankers themselves are apprehensive over conditions.

It is known that the President in recent weeks has taken the position that the bankers should do more themselves to aid weak banks. He has also urged that steps of some kind be taken to protect interests of depositors where banks have failed possessing large amounts of frozen securities.

Worried by Bear Raids.

The constant receding of security levels under "bear attacks" also has caused anxiety at the White House. In recent weeks the President has urged the officials of the stock exchange to take action themselves to curb such evils as exist in short selling.

For the last week, President Hoover has been conferring with bankers, financiers, cabinet members and officials of the reserve board. On Sunday night he attended a private meeting with members of a banking group at some point outside the White House. It is understood the President met the bankers at the home of Ogden Mills. The utmost secrecy surrounded this conference, White House officials denying that it had taken place when queried Sunday night.

Stock Exchange Worried.

It was realized by many attending tonight's meeting that the New York Stock exchange has been placed in a position of perplexity, to say the least, through a tremendous wave of European selling of American securities since Great Britain suspended the gold standard. According to information here, foreigners holding securities in this country have sold them to an aggregate of 360 million dollars within ten days. They took that much gold out of this country, it was pointed out, preferring to have it in Europe where it is worth much more as a medium of exchange now, due to the flight from the gold standard.

On top of this, according to what is being said here, Europe is engaged in a campaign of propaganda against the United States. This propaganda, it is charged, seeks to create the impression that the American financial structure is not in good shape and that the United States will be obliged to make some radical move, just as Great Britain did. Hence, it is asserted, the sudden move to sell securities in this country.

The solemnity of the situation coupled with such White House comment as was made regarding tonight's meeting recalled with vividness the appeal of the late President Roosevelt to Wall street to stem the panic of 1907.

In his telegrams to senators and representatives, summoning them to the conference, the President said that he desired to consult them on an "urgent national matter." At his regular conference with the newspaper men today he stated that the purpose of tonight's meeting was "to advance national unity in the setting up of constructive forces in the place of destructive forces now working in the depression."

Tonight the keyword was harmony. Tomorrow on Capitol Hill and in certain sections of the treasury department opposition will develop against changes in the federal reserve act. Some officials believe that liberalizing this act would have the effect of weakening the security behind federal reserve currency. Although the thirty-two members of congress contained the foremost leaders, there are certain to be some who will oppose the President's action.

Wall Street Gives Support.

New York, Oct. 7 [Wednesday].—[Special.]—President Hoover's plan for mobilizing the banking resources of the country in a common defense against the unjustified loss of public confidence that lately has produced runs on sound banks, hoarding of currency, and reckless liquidation of securities will have the support of Wall street's most powerful financial interests, including the New York clearing house banks, which have net deposits of $7,500,000,000, it was stated late last night.

PRESIDENT CALLS FOR UNITY OF PEOPLE

ciation have unanimously agreed to contribute their share by pledging $150,000,000, which is 2 per cent of their net demand and time deposits.

"I have been assured from other large centers, as far as I have been able to reach, of their support also. I consider that it is in the national interest, including the interest of all individual banks and depositors, that all the banks of the country should support this movement to their full responsibility.

"It is a movement of national assurance and of unity of action in an American way to assist business, employment, and agriculture.

Began Work Month Ago.

"2. On Sept. 8 I requested the governors of the federal reserve banks to endeavor to secure the coöperation of the bankers of their territory to make some advances on the security of the assets of closed banks or to take over some of these assets in order that the receivers of those banks may pay some dividends to their depositors in advance of what would otherwise be the case pending liquidation.

"Such a measure will contribute to free many business activities and to relieve many families from hardship over the forthcoming winter and in a measure reverse the process of deflation involved in the tying up of deposits. Several of the districts have already made considerable progress to this end, and I request that it should be taken up vigorously as a community responsibility.

Changes for Reserve Act.

"3. In order that the above program of unification and solidarity of action may be carried out and that all parts of the country be enlisted I request the governors of the federal reserve banks in each district to secure the appointment of working committees of bankers for each reserve district to coöperate with the New York group and in carrying out the other activities which I have mentioned.

"4. I shall propose to the congress that the eligibility provisions of the federal reserve act should be broadened in order to give greater liquidity to the assets of the banks and thus a greater assurance to the bankers in the granting of credits by enabling them to obtain legitimate accommodation on sound security in times of stress. Such measures are already under consideration by the senate committee on currency and banking.

Help for Farm

"5. Furthermore, if necessity requires, I will recommend the creation of a finance corporation similar in character and purpose to the war finance corporation, with available funds sufficient for any legitimate call in support of credit.

"6. I shall recommend to congress the subscription of further capital stock by the government to the federal land banks [as was done at their founding] to strengthen their resources so that on the one hand the farmer may be assured of such accommodation as he may require and on the other hand their credit may be of such high character that they may obtain their funds at low rates of interest.

"7. I have submitted the above mentioned proposals which require legislation to the members of congress whose attendance I was able to secure on short notice at this evening's meeting, being largely the members of committees particularly concerned, and they approve of them in principle.

Foreign Moratorium.

"8. Premier Laval of France is coming to the United States. It is my purpose to discuss with him the question of such further arrangements as are imperative during the period of the depression in respect to intergovernmental debts. The policy of the American government in this matter is well known and was set out by me in a public statement on June 20 in announcing the American proposal for a year's postponement of debt payments.

"Our problem in this respect is one of such adjustment during the period of depression as will at the same time aid our own and world recovery. This, being a subject first of negotiation with foreign governments, was not submitted for determination at this evening's conference.

"9. The times call for unity of action on the part of our people. We have met with great difficulties not of our own making. It requires determination to overcome these difficulties and, above all, to restore and maintain confidence. Our people owe it not only to themselves and in their own interest but they can by such an example of stability and purpose give hope and confidence in our own country and to the rest of the world."

FARMERS LOOK HOPEFULLY ON HOOVER PARLEY

Want "Frozen" Gold Put to Use.

Members of the "Farm Hands" Luncheon club, a deliberative group of private and official representatives of farm interests in Washington, took the view at their regular weekly meeting that out of the conference might come a coalition movement in congress to liquify the assets of domestic banks.

Gold of high value but no earning power was described as backing up in American banks—a condition created by present methods of evaluation. The fixed amount of gold in a dollar has increased in value in direct ratio to the decline in commodity values.

Less Money in Use.

Less money is going into circulation and earning less for financial institutions because it takes more hours of labor and more bushels of wheat and more pounds of livestock to buy gold.

Chester Gray, legislative representative of the American Farm Bureau federation said the situation "had become one of the fundamental economics and not politics" and that it required nonpartisan treatment.

That view, he said, also was held by President Hoover last winter when his organization went to the White House for an expression on the Burntness bill to inflate commodity values by gradually decreasing the number of grains of gold in a dollar until the 1926 relationship between commodities and gold were reëstablished.

Warns of Politics.

"Agriculture hopes," Gray said, "that the 'commodity dollar' never will become a political issue. The idea still is so new as to be academic and calls for scientific treatment."

The theory of it, he said, is that the value of the dollar would fluctuate in constant ratio to the rise and fall of commodity values and never again would the monetary unit of value get so far out of the grasp of those who keep it circulating over the retail counter.

"This winter," he said, "will find agriculture's 30,000,000 consumers and labor's vast array buying just as little as it is humanly possible to live on unless money gets cheaper. These people are finding that because their only stock in trade is of too little value for them to use money to make money, they no longer are eligible for loans at the cashier's wicket."

Suggest Bond Issue to Provide Work for Jobless

Ald. Oscar F. Nelson and Ald. James B. Waller, appointed as a council committee to investigate plans whereby the city might participate in special relief work for the unemployed this winter, last night outlined their suggestions to the governor's relief commission.

They said the city was willing, if it could, to raise some $7,000,000 by bond issue to provide jobs on necessary improvements. The aldermen suggested that the county and the park boards might also raise funds by bond issues. The governor's commission has set out to raise $8,800,000 by subscription for family relief. The bond issue money, if raised, would be additional to this.

MELLON'S DERBY GETS ASKEW; BORAH RUNS AWAY FROM CAMERA

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Tonight's conference at the White House was spectacular. Senators in dinner coats; Secretary Mellon's black derby askew; flashlights booming like opera night; Senator Borah rushing past a persistent cameraman, and hundreds of curious persons peeking through the fence at the statesmen.

Senator King from Utah was the first to arrive at the conference. Secretary Mellon came about five minutes later, stopped to let the cameraman get his picture, and walked slowly up the steps.

After Mellon the senators and representatives came along in an almost steady stream. Jovial Jack Garner, the minority leader in the house, who flew up from Texas for the meeting, stopped on the stairs to fumble with the stud in his stiff shirt.

And as the flashlights boomed the announcement of each new arrival the big front door swung open and Irwin (Ike) Hoover, the executive mansion's chief usher, escorted the guest to President Hoover.

The conference broke up tonight at four minutes to midnight. Senator Bingham [Rep., Conn.] came smiling to the White House door and delayed for a moment while Senators Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] and Walsh [Dem., Mont.] rushed down the steps and waved away reporters. Next came Arkansas' Democratic senator, Robinson, saying, "Boys, I can't say a word; not a word."

Other members of both houses of congress who attended the parley were:

Republicans: Senators — Watson [Ind.], floor leader; Reed [Pa.], Walcott [Conn.], Glenn [Ill.], Goldsborough [Md.], Townsend [Del.], Representatives—Tilson [Conn.], house leader; Snell, Davenport, and Crowther [N. Y.]; Bacharach [N. J.], McFadden [Pa.], Treadway and Luce [Mass.], Aldrich [R. I.], Wood [Ind.].

Democrats: Senators — Harrison [Miss.], Glass and Swanson [Va.], Carey [Wyo.], Wagner [N. Y.]. Representatives—McDuffie [Ala.], Byrne [Tenn.], Brand and Crisp [Ga.], Stevenson [S. C.].

FARMERS TO ASK EMMERSON TO HALT CORN SALES

Decatur, Ill., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Two thousand farmers from 25 central Illinois counties voted here tonight to appeal to Gov. Emmerson to call a conference of the governors of Indiana and Iowa to take action along lines followed by "Alfalfa Bill" Murray in his oil war to stop sales of corn in the three states. Final organization of the farmers and producers protective association of Illinois was completed in the meeting. Resolutions were adopted demanding lower taxes on farm property.

Before going to Gov. Emmerson with their appeal, the farmers plan to call upon grain buyers of the state to stop the purchase of corn and soy beans until prices rise.

Burning of corn instead of coal was urged by W. A. Colyer, Douglas county delegate and a leader in the movement. At present prices for corn, he said, it is cheaper than coal.

RASKOB DENIES RUMORED 'WAR CHEST DINNER'

New York, Oct. 6.—(AP)—John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, called erroneous today reports that he had invited 50 prominent Democrats to dinner next Tuesday night to find a way to pay off the party's $1,500,000 deficit and raise $6,000,000 for the 1932 campaign.

He said he had invited a few friends to dinner to discuss the best method of procedure in working details of a plan already adopted by the national committee.

"No date has been set for starting the campaign," he stated. "As soon as our plans are perfected official announcement will be made."

It is to be a private dinner, and Mr. Raskob withheld the guest list.

WANTS HER NAME OFF MOTHERS' PENSION LIST

Carlinville, Ill., Oct. 6.—(AP)—The Macoupin county board of commissioners wishes more mothers were like Mrs. Anna Kleist. Mrs. Kleist, a widow from Virden, wrote to ask that her name be removed from the mother's pension list.

"I am aware of heavy demands upon county funds and know there are others more needy than I," her letter said. "For that reason I ask that no more checks be sent me."

The members ordered her name stricken.

Q. ...Johnson. There was only the distance ...of a chair between them. They stud...ied each other but did not speak.

Mr. Johnson, in gray flannels, ...smoking his gray hair, gold rimmed ...specs, lean and lawyerlike, was quite ...a contrast to Capone. Capone was quietly dressed. Judge Opens the Case.

Promptly at the stroke of 10 Judge ...Wilkerson emerged from his cham...bers and ascended the bench. The ...proceedings began in the manner of a ...thousand other trials. The two in...dictment numbers were called and the ...court asked:

"What is the plea?"

"Not guilty," said Mr. Ahern.

"Is the defendant in court?" asked ...the judge.

Upon this broad hint Capone him...self arose and faced the court.

"Not guilty" was his plea to the ...indictments, both of which charge ...income tax evasion.

Mr. Ahern then demanded that ...something be done about the tables ...in the front part of the room.

"I want the records to show," he ...said, "that extra tables have been ...set up and telegraph wires are leading ...out of an adjoining room. This may ...tend to influence the jury. They are ...apt to get the notion that the public ...is unduly interested in the trial of this ...lawsuit. They may be led to believe ...that they should render a verdict to ...satisfy public opinion rather than the ...law and the evidence."

Trial Is Public, Judge Says.

Judge Wilkerson said he had en...tered no order in this matter, that ...the constitution provided for a public ...trial and that the courtroom was ...under the jurisdiction of the marshal.

"Have you any motion to make?" ...he asked Mr. Ahern.

"I want the record to show what ...the situation is," replied the attorney.

"I see these tables," said the court, ...and I suppose it is true that there ...are ladies and gentlemen of the news...papers. I also assume that they are ...citizens, a part of the public, and ...have a right to come into the court...room."

Mr. Ahern then moved that the ta...bles be excluded and the reporters ...moved to other parts of the court...room, where the jury would not no...tice them. There were between thirty ...and forty reporters present for the ...trial, many of them from out of the ...city.

"I see nothing at this time to preju...dice the right of the defendant," said ...the court. The court will endeavor to ...protect the rights of both parties. I ...see no reason to enter an order alter...ing what has been the invariable prac...tice in this and all courts."

He then referred to the reportorial ...scenes at the famous Standard Oil and ...packer trials, where he was one of ...counsel. The tables were moved a ...few feet to give the lawyers more ...elbow room and the trial proceeded.

Court Addresses Veniremen.

The veniremen were called to the ...jury box at 10:25 o'clock. Judge Wil...kerson explained the indictments to ...them as follows:

"There are two indictments consol...idated for trial. They charge the de...fendant with violation of the revenue ...laws of the United States. In general ...they charge that the defendant at...tempted to evade and defeat the in...come tax which under the law he was ...required to pay. The charge is failure ...to file a return for certain years."

Capone then was called on to stand ...up and be identified before the pros...pective jurors. The attorneys at the ...two tables were then indicated. Attor...ney Albert Fink was Mr. Ahern's asso...ciate at the defense table and District ...Attorney Johnson had with him his ...assistants, Mr. Green, Jacob I. Gross...man, Samuel G. Clawson, and William ...J. Froelich, special assistant attorney ...general from Washington. Another ...men who looked like a lawyer, a well ...dressed man wearing gold rimmed ...glasses, sat behind Capone. He was ...not presented to the men in the jury ...box, however, for this man was Philip ...D'Andrea, Capone's bodyguard.

Questioning of jurors was begun by ...Judge Wilkerson. It took him about ...five minutes on each man. His ques...tions were general, merely requiring ...an assurance from the man in the box ...that he could enter upon this case ...with an open and unprejudiced mind, ...that he had no interest in the out...come through relationship with gov...ernment or defense, that he could set ...aside any impression he might have ...gained from reading about the case ...and try it on the evidence and the law ...as given to him by the court.

Once in a while he ran into a man ...who had to be excused for cause. ...Such a one was Edwin M. Terras of ...Evanston, an accountant for the ...Quaker Oats company.

"I have read so much about the ...case I would not want to be a juror," ...Terras said. "I would be fearful of ...the creeping into my deliberations of ...articles read and conversations ...heard." He was excused without ar...gument.

Louis J. Woelfersheim, a retired re...tail groceryman of Chicago, said that ...he had served on a federal grand jury ...two years ago, but he was allowed to ...remain in the box. Burr Dugan, a ...farmer of Clare, also served on this ...same jury and was not challenged.

Tells of Call on Capone's Mother.

Jesse O. Steel, a commercial claim ...adjuster for the Commonwealth Edi...son company, when questioned as to ...any possible relations with the defend...ant, said that about three months ago ...he had called on Capone's mother in ...her home on Prairie avenue.

"It was purely a matter of busi...ness?" asked the court.

"Yes, sir."

"And did not make an impression ...on you that would interfere with your ...acting here?"

"No, sir, except that she was very ...pleasant."

Later Steel said that he felt now ...that Capone was innocent and that it ...would require proof by the govern...ment to change the opinion. The ...court told him that was the right at...titude for a juror to take, but the ...government later dismissed Steel.

Twelve Men Are Found.

By 11:15 o'clock the court had ...found twelve acceptable men and so ...indicated to the attorneys. Mr. Ahern ...began to question one of the jurors, ...but the court took this task away ...from him and put the questions him...self. Mr. Ahern wanted to know if ...any of the men entertained a hope ...that the government would prove the ...defendant guilty or if any of them ...harbored a desire that Capone be ...sent to jail. Apparently no one did.

"No, no," the veniremen answered.

"Can you try this case as if the de...fendant's name were not Mr. Capone, ...without the slightest prejudice as a ...result of reading anything about it?" ...the court wanted to know.

Mr. Fink asked the judge to ques...tion the jurors to find out if it would ...prejudice them against the defendant ...if he did not take the witness stand. ...The court did so, reminding the ...venire that it was the right of a de...fendant to remain silent. They in...dicated by their silence that this would ...not affect them.

On Reasonable Doubt.

On the question of reasonable doubt, ...which usually forms the basis of in...terminable questioning of each juror ...in the state courts, Judge Wilkerson ...addressed the men as a group, say...ing:

"If this case should go to the jury ...the court will instruct you that you ...cannot convict on suspicion or sur...mises. The court will instruct you as ...to the law on reasonable doubt and ...will expect you to follow it."

When the court asked a general ...question to find out whether any of ...the men had ever expressed an opin...ion about the case one man stood up ...and said:

"I said I didn't think they would ...prove half of what is in the papers."

About this time the court remarked ...to Mr. Fink that "it seems like a fair ...jury," and Mr. Fink agreed. After a ...recess, however, the government used ...three of its six peremptory challenges, ...and another man, Thomas Duffy, was ...excused by the court after it was ...found that he had heard some evi...dence about Capone while he was a ...member of a federal grand jury two ...years ago.

One of the new veniremen called ...to the box, a grim looking farmer, ...said that "from what he had read in ...the papers he thought the defendant ...was guilty." He was promptly ex...cused for cause.

Mr. Ahern wanted the jurors ques...tioned as to whether they had ever ...belonged to any law enforcing agency ...or had contributed to the Anti-Saloon ...league. One man of the twelve re...sponded by saying that he had given ...$10 a year to the Chicago Crime com...mission. He was later excused by the ...defense. The others were not affili...ated with any agency.

Wrangle Over Challenge.

At 3:35 p. m., after all the defense ...challenges had been used, Mr. Fink ...tendered the panel to the government. ...The government had previously ten...dered the men and when the prosecu...tors sought to exercise another chal...lenge the defense objected, on the ...ground that the court had ruled ...against this. After some debate the ...court allowed the government to use ...this challenge but at the same time ...gave the defense an extra one.

The defense did not use this, how...ever, and at 4 o'clock both sides an...nounced themselves as satisfied. Mr. ...Ahern accepted tentatively until he ...had made his argument against the ...whole panel, on account of the previ...ous service of nine of these. When ...this was overruled the jurors were ...sworn in by Joseph O'Sullivan, clerk ...of the court.

APPEALS COURT SETS NOV. 6 FOR CAPONE HEARING

Gang Chief to Fight Jail Sentence for Contempt.

The United States Circuit court of Appeals yesterday set Nov. 6 for the hearing of oral arguments in the appeal of Al Capone from the six months' contempt of court sentence imposed by Federal Judge Wilkerson in connection with Capone's evasion of a federal grand jury subpoena.

Capone was found guilty by the court of failing to appear promptly before the grand jury nearly two years ago when the Chicago Heights booze syndicate was under investigation. Capone was in Florida at the time and caused an affidavit to be sent to the court declaring that he was recuperating from a serious illness.

Held in Contempt by Judge.

Judge Wilkerson held him in contempt when evidence was produced in court that the gang chief had attended horse races and other outdoor events at the time he was supposed to be ill in bed.

Hearing on the oral arguments in the appeal of Jack Guzik, alleged business manager for the Capone syndicate, from the sentence of five years and a fine of $17,500 imposed by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward on charges of income tax evasion was set for Nov. 5 by the appeals court.

Hearing Set for Oliver.

The appeal of County Assessor Gene G. Oliver from a sentence of 18 months in Leavenworth penitentiary and a fine of $5,000 imposed by Judge Woodward, also on charges of violation of the income tax law, was set for Nov. 12.

The court also granted Ralph Capone, brother of Al, a stay of mandamus, delaying until Oct. 30 his arrest under a three year sentence to Leavenworth penitentiary for income tax law violation. The stay was granted to allow Capone to file an appeal before the United States Supreme court.

PROBE ROBBERY OF TWO CAPONE TRIAL WITNESSES

Special government agents began an investigation yesterday to determine if the robbery on Monday night of two probable witnesses in the Capone income tax trial had any connection with the hearing.

They will question Charles H. Jaap and Edward J. Sheehan of the S. & L. Motor company, 3812 Wabash avenue, who kept a telephone appointment Monday evening with an unknown man and were held up and robbed of jewelry and cash valued at about $2,600. The robbery took place in a hallway at 4643 Lake Park avenue where Jaap and Sheehan went to meet a "Mr. Sorenson," who said over the telephone that he was in the market for four trucks.

Agents of the special intelligence unit, bureau of internal revenue, said that certainly Jaap and possibly Sheehan would be called as a witness in the Al Capone trial to show that Capone and his agents purchased trucks from the concern which were used, presumably, in the beer trade.

NOTES IN AND OUT OF COURT AS GANG CHIEF GOES TO TRIAL

Federal Judge Wilkerson was pleasant of mien, frequently smiling throughout the day's session. Of medium stature, he appears small in his high seat on the bench, the back of which is three inches higher than his head. The judge is an energetic man, who swings from side to side in his swivel chair and leans forward over the bench when he wishes to make himself emphatic. His dark hair, carefully arranged upon mounting the bench, becomes bushy before adjournment. Spectators are always impressed by Judge Wilkerson's smiling urbanity and the dispatch and dignity with which he conducts his court.

United States Attorney Johnson's participation in the trial was an indication of the importance he attaches to the prosecution of Capone. The district attorney has not appeared in previous income tax trials of gangsters and politicians except for brief visits as an observer. Yesterday he conferred constantly with his assistants and directed their strategy, although taking no part in discussions of record. He appeared well pleased with the rapid start achieved by the trial.

Two of the privileged spectators who sat in the courtroom back of the front enclosure were Capone's sister, Mafalda, and a younger brother, Matthew. The gang chief's sister slipped unobtrusively into the room and took a seat in the back row, where virtually nothing could be heard. She was sombrely attired and a veil covered her face.

A brief case carried by Philip d'Andrea, Capone's bodyguard, enabled him to wag along behind his master and escape the gaurds in the corridor entrance to the courtroom. The brief case led them to assume that D'Andrea was of counsel for the gang chief.

Two prospective jurors answered in the affirmative when asked whether they had ever been arrested. Jesse O. Steel, a claim agent for the Commonwealth Edison company, said he was once arrested for contempt of court when he kidnaped his own son. M. J. Kent, a McHenry real estate man, said he was arrested by prohibition agents when he walked into a place where he was employed and which was being raided. Both were excused by the government.

Capone was not as jaunty yesterday as he was on July 30 when he entered Judge Wilkerson's courtroom to enter a plea of guilty which he expected to result in a light sentence. He was told then that he could not bargain with a federal court.

This is the first time Capone has ever confronted a jury. If convicted, he will be liable to a maximum punishment of 32 years in the penitentiary and a fine of $80,000.

Elmer L. Irey, chief special intelligence agent of the bureau of internal revenue, came from Washington for the trial and sat with his Chicago assistants, A. P. Madden, Clarence Converse, and Frank Wilson.

The three entrances to the federal building were thronged all day by curious persons seeking a view of Capone. He fooled those at Adams street and at Clark street in the morning by dashing in at Dearborn street. In the afternoon he chose Clark after the crowds had received "definite information" that it would be Adams and had almost stopped traffic there.

TEACHER SOAKS SELF WITH OIL; DIES IN FLAMES

Body Discovered in Ruins of Tiny Cabin.

Janesville, Wis., Oct. 6.—(AP)—Authorities tonight concluded that Miss Violet Livingstone of Rockford, Ill., made a pyre of her bed, deliberately soaked her clothing with oil and then touched a match to the mattress.

Her body was found today lying on the twisted springs of the bed in the ruins of a cabin on the Rock river.

The body of Miss Livingstone, who was 32 and an employé of the infirmary of Rockford college, was identified late today by a foster sister, Mrs. Percy Burdick of Rockford.

Murder Theory Abandoned.

Mrs. Burdick gave Sheriff J. H. Fessenden information which, together with other facts he had ascertained, convinced him that Miss Livingstone's death was a suicide and that melancholia had caused her to choose such a strange method.

The fire occurred at midnight near New Ville, 14 miles north of here. Farmers saw the cabin burn and a few visited the scene. They left when they saw that only the tiny cabin was ablaze and that there was no danger to other nearby cabins.

Not until many hours later was the body discovered by Herman Krueger and Maurice Cooper, farmers, who examined the debris.

Sheriff Fessenden at first believed that Miss Livingstone had been slain. It would have been easy to leave the burning cabin and the sheriff was reluctant to believe that the woman chose to remain inside.

Auto Reported Seen.

The theory that other persons were involved in her death was heightened by the report that shortly after midnight an automobile had been seen coming out of the obscure side road which leads to the cabin.

It was ascertained later, however, that the automobile was driven by a curious citizen attracted by the fire.

In a cottage near the burned cabin Sheriff Fessenden found a woman's hat, a coat, and a purse. In the purse was a note which read:

"My head bothers me so. The work was not heavy, or anything, but for such a long time I have been feeling so badly."

Around the spot where the body lay investigators found several capsules filled with powder. The powder will be analyzed, and an autopsy is expected to establish whether Miss Livingstone took poison before lying down to die.

Subject to Strange Moods.

Mrs. Burdick said that for some time Miss Livingstone had been depressed and subject to incomprehensible moods. Sunday she disappeared and friends were apprehensive about her.

The woman was an orphan who at the age of five was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. William D. Livingstone in Milton Junction, Wis. About ten years ago the family went to Rockford. Mr. and Mrs. Livingstone, who have since died, had two daughters of their own, Mrs. Burdick and Miss Mary Livingstone of Minneapolis.

AVIATION NOTES

A complete new landing gear for the Bellanca monoplane in which Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon Jr., flew across the Pacific, yesterday passed through Chicago from the Bellanca factory near New York en route to Wenatchee, Wash., on a United Air Lines plane. Pangborn and Herndon dropped their original gear in the ocean after their take off from Japan. The gear will reach Wenatchee late tonight.

Pangborn and Herndon yesterday were invited to attend the twentieth annual Safety congress, which will open in the Stevens hotel next Monday. An aviation session will be held the following Thursday. Speakers at the aviation session will be Assistant Secretary of Commerce Clarence M. Young, Ralph Damon, general manager of the Curtiss Airplane company, Richard B. Barnitz, director of airports in Los Angeles and Lester D. Seymour of United Air Lines.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, announced at the federation's convention in Vancouver, B. C., yesterday, that the Air Line Pilots' association, headed by David L. Behncke of Chicago, is the newest organization to join the federation. The pilots' organization has about 400 members. About 1,000 flyers in the United States are eligible to join the association, Green said. The aim of the order is to promote the interests of flyers and raise the standards and efficiency of transport pilots.

Two executives of American Airways, Inc., in the Chicago office yesterday were promoted and will be moved to the Universal division headquarters in St. Louis. They were Charles S. White, traffic representative, and Trevor G. Williams, terminal manager. White has been made acting general traffic manager, succeeding Joseph W. Sabin, who is transferred to the New York office, and Williams will be assistant to Col. Halsey Dunwoody, vice president.

Ted E. Griffin will assume White's duties in the Chicago office and Robert J. Rentz of the St. Louis office will become terminal manager at the Chicago airport. American Airways, Inc., operate more than 10,000 miles of airways, covering 30,000 miles daily and serving 62 cities in the United States and Canada.

The Goodyear blimp Defender, chartered by Sears Roebuck & Co., will reach Chicago this morning and land in the parking lot at the west side plant of the company. The craft, the largest passenger blimp in the country, has a capacity of 10 passengers. It will carry tire salesmen of the mail order house on flights over Chicago.

ROBOT PILOT TO FLY TODAY WITH 18 PASSENGERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 6.—[Special.]—The day of the robot airplane pilot has arrived. An eighteen passenger twin-motored ship will make an official test flight with a full load tomorrow at Newark airport. If all goes well—and a number of successful secret flights this afternoon indicate that all will go well—mechanical pilots soon will be guiding big commercial air liners in regular service.

The robot pilot, a detailed account of which was first printed in THE TRIBUNE last winter, has received the indorsement of the aeronautical branch of the department of commerce.

When the mechanical pilot was being tried out in connection with blind flying and fog devices at Schenectady last January this reporter was told by aviation authorities that it would be put to work on passenger carrying planes before the year had passed.

Device Passes U. S. Tests.

Before granting permission for commercial flights exhaustive tests were conducted by army and navy flyers. Now the Sperry company, makers of the mechanical pilot, have received permission to put the device into commercial use.

The flight tomorrow will be made in a Curtiss Condor owned by the Eastern Air Transport. Official aeronautical observers will go as passengers, and if the series of tests is passed successfully all the planes of the line will be robot guided in the future, it was said.

The mechanical flying man does not take up much room in the control cabin. He does not plan to deprive the human pilots of their jobs, as some one will be needed to take off and land the plane. Mr. Robot's main job is to make things easier and safer for the pilot.

A System of Gyroscopes.

The mechanical flying man consists of several small gyroscopes controlling a clutch relay which operates the controls. The device maintains the correct level and keeps the plane on an even keel. Whenever the wing of the plane begins to dip the automatic pilot corrects it immediately—so rapidly that the passengers do not feel it the way it is felt when human hands are at the controls.

Once the plane is in the air and at the desired height, the human pilot presses a button for constant elevation and another for stability. Then he may go to sleep, read a book, or go back into the main cabin and chat with his passengers. The plane will fly on in the direction in which it is headed. In rough, windy weather it may be necessary at times to check the drift.

Relieves Nerve Strain.

The robot pilot really acts as a sort of relief man to the human pilot. It gives him time to relax, watch the instrument board or devote himself at his leisure to navigation.

The entire robot equipment fits in under the pilot's seat and the shift to and from robot to human control can be made in less than a second.

STEVE PROVES SHARP HUNGER DULLS HIS BRAIN

Learns Lessons Now That He Gets Lunches.

Ever since school opened a few weeks ago, Stephen's teacher, Miss S——, has been trying to get him interested in the things he ought to learn. But Stephen's attention wandered, and lately his listlessness has almost caused the energetic young woman who has him in charge to lose her patience. But things have been different since the other day when she looked out at noon to a nearby bookstore for some emergency supplies, and passed the boy sitting on the curb, staring moodily at nothing.

"Had your lunch already, Stephen?" she called cheerily as she reached him. Then she slowed down and stopped, suddenly suspicious. Stephen hadn't answered, and there was a movement in the slow lifting of his head to look at her, then away again. A few kindly, pointed questions confirmed her fears.

No Lunch Every Day.

Not only had Stephen had no lunch that day, but he hadn't eaten at home since the term started. Family finances simply wouldn't stretch that far. Stephen's case is only one of those 15,000 that last year were in the generous hands of the teachers, who from their own pockets quietly made up the funds that fed these forlorn youngsters.

This year, with the school finances what they are, the teachers hard driven to make ends meet for their own needs and those of their dependents, THE TRIBUNE has taken over the task of supplying meals for these children at their various schools.

Initial response to the announcement that contributions would be received for the purpose by this newspaper has been surprising, $3,320.07 having been received in the first day's contributions. Large checks and small ones reached the cashier since the first coupon furnished for the purpose appeared a couple of days ago, the donations ranging in size from $1,000 to ten cents.

Why He Couldn't Remember.

"When the boy told me," relates Miss S——, "how his head ached when he tried to study, and how everything the desks 'went round and round' I couldn't help but understand why he never could remember that St. Louis wasn't in Alabama, or that George Washington didn't discover America.

"He couldn't remember the right answers because he'd been trying to think how pork chops tasted, and how long it was since they'd had eggs for breakfast.

"'You know,' he said, 'we used to have fine meals before my dad lost his job, but it's been more 'n' a year since they laid him off, and he had some money in the bank, but we had to spend it all.

Stephen won't miss any more lunches. He's going to march into the cafeteria at his south side school with the other youngsters at noon, his ticket proudly clasped in his hand, and have his warm cocoa and spaghetti and fruit each noon. Nobody but Stephen and Miss R—— will be the wiser, and from now on the boy will make the same good marks he had to get last year.

Any one who wants to help provide Stephen and the other 15,000 children with free, warm food, well cooked and served, can do so by filling out the pledge card appearing in an adjoining column, and mailing their contributions to the cashier of this newspaper.

ROOSEVELT ACCUSED OF SPENDING FUNDS OF PORTO RICO ON FAMILY

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Oct. 6.—(AP)—Today's newspapers published a letter from former Mayor Roberto H. Todd to Gov. Theodore Roosevelt, charging the governor with extravagant and "unlawful" expenditures at his official residence, La Fortaleza.

The former mayor, who served six terms and was recently legislated out of office under a law sponsored by the governor and described by Todd's adherents as unjust, asserts that bills certified by the government auditor show the governor "has been making the people of Porto Rico pay for his family's personal expenses which should have been paid by the governor himself." The letter also charged that the governor appointed a member of the senate to attend a convention of the American Federation of Labor at Vancouver, appropriating $1,000 of government money to defray his expenses.

Roosevelt Ridicules Attack.

New York, Oct. 6.—(AP)—Gov. Theodore Roosevelt of Porto Rico today characterized as "political sour grapes" the charges made by former Mayor Roberto H. Todd of San Juan that he has been extravagant in his personal expenses at his official residence in Porto Rico.

That "made-for-me" look!

It costs so little at Bonds

with two trousers

$25 $30 $35

Ever say to yourself "why can't I look as though my clothes were made for me"? We know of a sure answer! Join the thousands of thrifty men who are enjoying the luxury of that "made for me look", fitted by Bond.

We are really "cranks" on this often neglected matter. We insist that all Bond fitters be graduates of our own factory. They know how our clothes are made. They know exactly what to do to shape a collar, so that it hugs your neck. They know how to give you a smooth pair of shoulders. Chasing "back-wrinkles" is their hobby. And when a pair of trousers leave their hands they have that "made for me look", from waistband to cuff.

We believe the skilled hands of our tailors are winning equally as many friends as are our London-designed fashions, our thoroughbred woolens, and our delightfully low prices.

"Home is my job, this soap is my pet helper," says

Mrs. Leonard S. Florsheim

Mrs. Leonard S. Florsheim

—daughter of Colonel Aberle of St. Paul, mother of two handsome young sportsmen. One of society's smartest, most sophisticated. She golfs, plays bridge, goes to races (her husband is a founder and treasurer of fashionable Arlington Race Course). From Europe came her marvelous lingerie and linens, heavy laces from Spain, gorgeously colored satin damasks from Germany, rose and blue linens appliqued by magic French fingers, luncheon sets of Normandy lace, Swiss doilies almost too sheer to hold their monograms, tablecloths of regal Rose Point and Venetian lace . . . costly and exquisite things that one careless laundering would ruin. Yet "not one piece has ever changed," says Mrs. Florsheim, "because I won't let any soap touch them but American Family Flakes."

"When I married I decided that my family and my home should be my chief interests in life. So I haven't bothered much about committee and club work or the winning of trophies," says Mrs. Florsheim, modern, and at the same time utterly feminine.

She runs her town house and Winnetka home with cushioned smoothness. She entertains beautifully; is known for her lovely table settings, "and much of the effect depends upon the luster of linen and crystal," she says.

"American Family Flakes does wonders that way. It never leaves a soap film. White things iron smoother. Colors are just like new. And I have the comfort of knowing that my finest pieces are as safe as in the drawer unused.

"I'm careful, also, to see that only American Family Flakes is used in cleansing my china and silver" . . . a magnificent English china set of a hundred and fifty pieces dated 1800, a gorgeous old Georgian silver service, royal-crested, and a priceless modern collection — treasures deserving the tenderest care.

"I've always used American Family. It cleanses so quickly that there's less handling, less chance of breakage—and so safely that there's no rubbing away of fine finishes on woodwork and porcelains. I think there is no comparison with other soaps, either in protection or sparkling cleanness."

So also say 4 out of 5 of Chicago's wealthiest women. American Family Flakes double-suds gives longer wear to all washables . . . saves you many dollars a year. It takes the rub out of scrubbing, and makes laundering and dishwashing a lighter task. It gives you lady-of-leisure hands for your extra leisure hours. Your homemaking job, like Mrs. Florsheim's, deserves the help of the pure double-suds of American Family Flakes.

The Flakes — double-sudsing — the only soap trusted with the costly laundry of 4 out of 5 Gold Coast women.

The Cake Soap—double-sudsing—for ninety years used by more Chicago women than all other laundry soaps combined.

American Family Flakes

30,000,000 WILL GO TO POLLS IN BRITISH ELECTION

National Rule at Stake on Oct. 27.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The die is cast for a British general election. Parliament will be dissolved tomorrow and 30,000,000 men and women will go to the polls on Oct. 27 to decide whether or not to keep Prime Minister MacDonald's national government.

Announcement of the election was made this afternoon by Mr. MacDonald in the house of commons. He said he had seen King George this morning and had obtained the monarch's consent for the dissolution of parliament. The remaining legislative business will be hustled through tonight and tomorrow and it is likely that parliament will rise early in the afternoon. The new parliament will assemble Nov. 10.

Already the shadow of dissolution is over the house of commons. Only radical Labor members are on the opposition benches, most of the other members being at the national Labor party conference at Scarborough or electioneering in the country. There are sufficient government members to insure the passage of government bills, but no more.

King Agrees to Election.

Prime Minister MacDonald called on the king shortly after 9 a. m. and remained for about an hour. The king agreed with the emergency national cabinet on an immediate election and on the pressing need for a mandate from the people to clean up the economic and financial mess into which Great Britain has stumbled during the last few years.

It will not be what is known as Great Britain's "coupon election," which was the name given an election held under David Lloyd George's coalition government when it was decided that candidates should be given a government coupon and, assuring them of no opposition. Each party will be free to fight as it pleases, but there will be a gentlemen's agreement among the Conservatives, Liberal, and national Laborite members of the government not to oppose each other.

Lloyd George "Neutral."

But the Liberals in the cabinet will stick with Mr. MacDonald, and Lloyd George himself will take no part in the election further than issue an address to his own constituents at Carnarvon, who will return himself to his seat in parliament as long as he lives.

The Labor party, which is winding up its Scarborough conference in a hurry, is caught without any money or plan of campaign except one of opposition to the government. The party is badly split as the independent Labor party group is threatening to run its candidates against the regular Labor candidates, who are not "aggressive" enough for the independents. If this occurs scores of seats are likely to be lost by the Laborites.

Mr. MacDonald has decided to become a candidate for reelection to the house of commons in the Seaham Harbor division, the constituency he now represents. His decision followed a petition signed by electors of the division pledging him their support. The Seaham branch of the Labor party, which repudiated him, is almost certain to pick a candidate to oppose him.

GANDHI ADMITS FAILURE TO WIN INDIA'S LIBERTY

Confesses British Too Much for Him.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The Indian round table conference seemed to be foundering on the rocks tonight.

After protracted negotiations with the defiant Mohammedans, which continued until 4 a. m. today, when weary delegates went home to grab a bit of sleep, Mahatma Gandhi, India's Nationalist leader, confessed tonight that he had failed.

He frankly admitted his inability to either solve the Hindu-Moslem question, or to wring concessions from the British government.

Predicts End Today.

"The end will come tomorrow," he said, intimating that only a miracle between now and then could save the situation.

"I seem to be failing," he said. "There are burdens thrust upon me which I am unable to bear. These communal problems are an Herculean task and, beyond my capacity. Yes, the end will come tomorrow, and I am afraid the end will bring nothing."

Fear New Revolution.

"I came here in search for complete independence, but, frankly, I can see nothing here to warrant any hope that I will go away with it."

Political observers take this to mean that the "holy man" has already made up his mind to return to India to relaunch his civil disobedience campaign.

Gandhi was careful to leave a loophole for a possible last minute solution, just as he did last March when he made a truce with Lord Irwin, then viceroy of India, after preliminary negotiations had broken down. After the government announced that the British general election will be held Oct. 27, the mahatma said he "might" stay until then, but that he didn't wish to remain "without getting somewhere."

A "Wild Woman of God."

LONDON, Oct. 6.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi, in shawl and loin cloth, chuckled in amusement today when Nancy, Lady Astor, his luncheon hostess, referred to him as a "wild man of God."

"And you," he retorted, "are a wild woman of God."

BRITISH FOREIGN CHIEF IN PARIS TO SEE PREMIER

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Oct. 6.—Lord Reading, foreign secretary in the British National cabinet, came to Paris today to discuss with Premier Laval, Foreign Minister Briand and Finance Minister Flandin many subjects which, even irrespective of the premier's projected visit to the United States, are urgent for discussion between France and England.

But between the French government and the new British foreign secretary it was felt that there was a need for personal contact and especially before Laval should go to Washington. In some measure, it is felt here and in London, the British may be able to form a link between Washington and Paris both before and after the direct contact between Laval and President Hoover. Tomorrow Lord Reading will meet M. Briand and Laval and Flandin.

YOUR GUMS.
URGENT

IT probably seems harmless enough, that first faint trace of "pink" on your tooth brush. But unless "pink tooth brush" is checked in its infancy it may mean long, professional treatments before you're through.

For "pink tooth brush" is the warning message sent out by your gums of serious troubles ahead!

Children seldom have it. Their gums are hard and healthy. But year after year of eating soft foods allows gums to get out of condition—to lose their necessary, natural firmness. They don't get sufficient stimulating exercise and they become flabby and tender.

And that's when gums develop "pink tooth brush," the trail-blazer for serious diseases of the gums. For Vincent's disease and gingivitis, even dread pyorrhea, rare though it is, may follow. "Pink tooth brush" may finally indicate infection at the roots of the teeth, and that, of course, threatens the teeth themselves!

You've merely got to exercise your gums. And the way to do it is easy and inexpensive. First, clean your teeth with Ipana Tooth Paste. Watch how discoloring disappears and the enamel becomes white and sparkling. Then, squeeze a little more Ipana on your brush or your finger-tip and rub it gently into those lazy gums. Start the circulation that strengthens the tissues!

As you massage your gums, the ziratol in Ipana will tone and stimulate them. This valuable substance makes Ipana more than just an effective, pleasant-tasting tooth paste. It makes it a most efficient stimulant for the gums, as well.

Try Ipana and massage for 30 days. You'll see your tooth brush freed of the danger signal, "pink." And if you keep at it faithfully, you can forget about "pink tooth brush."

JAPANESE TRAIN GUNS ON CHINESE MOB IN SHANGHAI

Four Warships Anchor in River Off City.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 6.—(AP)—A demonstration here today by four newly arrived Japanese warships and orders to the Japanese navy to prepare for mobilization at Kure and Sasebo, Japan, caused great alarm in China. Chinese were panicky in Shanghai and at Nanking, 93 miles up the Yangtze river.

The country already was excited and embittered because of Japan's armed occupation of southern Manchuria since Sept. 18.

Frightened by Japanese warships steaming up the Yangtze river, Chinese officials talked of moving the capital from Nanking to Honanfu, far inland in Honan province, where it would be free from menace by Japanese naval vessels.

Warships Anchor Off City.

Four Japanese destroyers moved up the Whangpoo river to Shanghai, while thousands of Chinese gazed apprehensively from river banks. The ships anchored off Hongkew, the Japanese section of Shanghai's international settlement, and a little later Japanese war tanks rumbled through Hongkew streets.

Rumors that the Japanese intended to take possession of the Chinese portion of Shanghai were denied by Japanese officials. They said the warships were present to insure Japanese safety from possible attacks by Chinese mobs.

Confronted by the demonstrations of Japan's naval power, Chinese government officials were pressed for action against Japan. Nanking students and other agitators railed against their government's failure to take stronger action against Japan for its continued occupation of southern Manchuria.

Meanwhile the Chinese boycott against Japanese goods became more effective as hostility spread.

So intense was the feeling in Nanking betwen Chinese and Japanese that American Consul General Peck and British Consul General Moss conferred with the Japanese consul general concerning safety of their various countrymen should serious trouble take place.

28 Warships Stand By.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Japan, Oct. 7.—[Wednesday.]—Twenty-four destroyers, four cruisers and one aircraft carrier at the Sasebo and Kure naval bases today were ordered to stand by ready for immediate departure to China to cope with the "serious situation on the Yangtze river, where grave incidents are likely to occur at any time." These vessels include the light cruisers Furutaka and Aoba, the fleetest warships in the world, and the cruisers Naka and Jintsu.

In view of the widespread agitation against Japan in China, Baron Kijuro Shidehara, foreign minister, last night instructed Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese minister at Nanking, to file a protest warning the Chinese government that Japan may be forced to take "proper and effective action for its self-defense should China continue to evade its responsibility."

JAPANESE SOLDIERS SLAIN

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Oct. 6.—Two Japanese soldiers were killed and three wounded today as a result of guerrilla fighting at Kuanchi, about ten miles south of Ssupingkai, on the Chinese Railway north of Mudken, according to an official report received from Gen. Shigeru Honjo, commander of the Japanese forces in Manchuria.

Gen. Honjo's report stated that a Japanese detachment at Ssupingkai had moved at Kuanchi, where disbanded Chinese soldiers were reported to be molesting Corean settlers. When the Japanese reached the district a band of 200 Chinese troops fired on the Japanese at a distance of 160 feet. The Chinese casualties were seven dead. The Chinese removed their wounded.

Another detachment of Japanese troops, operating east of the South Manchurian railway tracks, where Chinese soldiers were also reported to be molesting Corean settlers, fought two engagements with Chinese cavalrymen. Five Chinese were killed. There were no Japanese casualties.

Report Massacre of Coreans.

Lieut. Col. Shigemitsu, Japanese commander, reported yesterday that disorganized Chinese soldiers, who had been expelled from the Mukden district, had massacred about 500 Coreans, including a large number of women and children, and that more than 3,000 Corean settlers had been forced to evacuate the district.

It was reported today that a Japanese detachment, consisting of two companies, had been sent into the interior, east of Fushun, where Chinese troops and bandits were reported to be killing Coreans and molesting Japanese.

MOB RIOTS TO SEE TROTZKY; 7 DIE IN BAYONET CHARGE

Exiled Russian War Lord in Istanbul.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 6.—News of a riot which broke out at noon last Thursday in the streets of Istanbul, Turkey, was received in London today. State troops and armed police made a bayonet charge in which seven persons were killed, 57 wounded, and 108 arrested.

The riot was caused by the appearance of Leon Trotzky, former Russian war lord, now in exile at Prinkipo island in the sea of Marmora, who had been smuggled into Istanbul for an urgent dental operation. The news of his arrival leaked out among scores of sailors and workmen who had assembled on the arsenal pier at Gold Horn.

As soon as the former soviet war lord was seen, the crowd set up a tumult of shouts of greeting. Detectives bundled Trotzky into a car, but the crowd rushed and overpowered the guards, one of whom was injured. The arsenal garrison made a bayonet charge and a half hour's fighting followed.

An enormous crowd assembled in front of the dental offices where Trotzky was undergoing treatment and communists and White Russians met in a new clash.

The police cleared the crowd, which soon learned from communists that Trotzy would be returned to Prinkipo island after his operation. Crowds of Trotzky admirers quickly gathered along the water front.

Fearing further trouble, the police put Trotzky under a heavy guard at the old imperial palace, where he remained dazed from anesthetics. He was not aware that there had been any rioting until midnight, when he was smuggled into a small submarine chaser to return to his place of exile on Prinkipo.

A Joker's "Bomb" Found Near Police Headquarters

George Silverman, proprietor of the Silver Grill at 1133 South State street, near the police building, was looking through his front door early today when he beheld what he believed was a bomb just outside. It seemed to be smoking from two fuses. Silverman called for help and patrons ran out and extinguished the fuses. The supposed bomb was taken to the detective bureau. There policemen dug into the zinc cylinder and found it was an induction coil. A practical joker had dropped it in front of the restaurant and had set fire to the insulation on two attached wires.

Luncheon Guest

Carl Bunge, musician and orchestra leader, was given a luncheon yesterday by friends in the Bismarck hotel in honor of his seventy-fifth birthday. The celebration was attended by over thirty guests and at its conclusion Mr. Bunge was presented with a portrait of himself painted by Jean Noerdinger, Chicago artist.

Mr. Bunge, who is now connected with the Northwest Side Conservatory of Music, 1121 North Ashland avenue, led his Metropolitan orchestra in the old Bismarck gardens and conducted Sunday afternoon concerts in the North Side Turner hall twenty years ago.

The luncheon was given by Karl Eitel, and Dr. Otto L. Schmidt, former member of the board of education, acted as toastmaster. Among the persons to attend were Mayor Cermak, Ernest Kruetgen, vice president of the board of local improvements, and Paul H. Mueller of the Abendpost.

ZAMORA RESIGNS AS SPAIN'S HEAD, THEN RELENTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Oct. 6.—Niceto Alcala Zamora resigned tonight as president of the Spanish republic before parliament in a heat of anger after he had been accused of speaking out of turn on account of his attack against the ultra-radical draft of a constitutional article, which calls for the eventual socialization of all property.

"We've had too much of Zamora," cried Deputy Botella, radical socialist, who resigned from the constitutional commission after the president had delivered a tirade against the article. The rest of the commission followed suit.

President Zamora, furious, arose and announced his resignation. The Socialists and radicals sat with arms folded and let him have his way for about fifteen minutes and then with flattery and applause wooed him back. The president thereupon withdrew his resignation. The constitutional committee also relented and did likewise.

GERMAN CABINET QUITS; BRUENING TO FORM NEW ONE

BULLETIN.

BERLIN, Oct. 7 (Wednesday.)—(AP)—Chancellor Bruening and his cabinet decided today to submit their resignations to President von Hindenburg. Herr Bruening went directly to the president with the resignations.

President von Hindenburg accepted the resignations and immediately authorized Chancellor Bruening to form a new ministry which would consolidate the government's position with the reichstag.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—Dr. Julius Curtius, for two years the director of Germany's foreign policy, today resigned his post as foreign minister. In a letter to Chancellor Bruening, Dr. Curtius said:

"In a conversation we had the day after my return from Geneva, I made it clear to you that, without regard for the parliamentary situation I wanted to resign from the government. I now deem it in every way imperative that the question of my retirement be cleared up. I, therefore, beg you to recommend to the president my discharge."

Dr. Curtius succeeded the late Dr. Gustav Stresemann as foreign minister in October, 1929, and he continued Dr. Stresemann's policy of conciliation with France. His resignation today is considered to be a result of that policy, which has been under fire from the nationalist parties. The nationalist attacks have been particularly bitter since Dr. Curtius' recent abandonment of the proposed Austro-German customs union.

Whether the entire cabinet would follow Dr. Curtius' action was in doubt tonight. Government spokesmen refused to comment on the possibility of the entire ministry stepping out. They emphasized, however, that Dr. Curtius' resignation did not mean there would be any change in Germany's foreign policy.

It was also uncertain tonight who would succeed Dr. Curtius. Among those prominently mentioned for the post was Baron von Neurath, German ambassador to London. Some circles believed Chancellor Bruening, himself, might assume the post.

FIND PERSONALTY OF $105,000,000 FOR NEW TAXES

Personal property valued at more than one hundred millions of dollars has been uncovered by the board of assessors. This was revealed yesterday when the clerical work of placing it on the books for the 1930 assessment was begun. This property, it is estimated, will produce more than $2,000,000 in tax revenue.

Two classes of wealth never before included in assessments comprised the total. Approximately $95,000,000 is composed of privately owned railroad equipment, largely refrigerator and tank cars. The remainder— amounting to $10,350,000—is the valuation placed by the assessors on 1,550 memberships of the Chicago Board of Trade. Eventually the memberships of the Chicago Stock exchange and of all the clubs in the county will be assessed.

Cars Escape Taxation.

During the assessors' investigation of the railroad equipment it was learned that the privately owned cars classed as "rolling stock" were largely escaping taxation. The 90,000 cars owned by sixty-three companies were not taxed by state tax commissions because they were not included in the equipment of the railroad companies.

County assessors usually have failed to include the cars because there is no ready means of ascertaining the number remaining within the county limits during the period from April 1 to June 1, on which the assessors' figures ordinarily are based. Only in Indiana has there been any effort to tax tank cars, attorneys for several of the companies said.

The values reached by the assessors were based on records of the interstate commerce commission. Some of the companies and the value of their railroad equipment follow:

Union Tank Car company	$20,626,000
General American Tank Car company	12,660,000
Armour Car Lines	7,807,000
North Western Refrigerator Lines	4,044,000
North American Car corporation	4,020,000

A 14 day period was allowed the companies to present evidence to the board in opposition to the assessment. At the end of that time the assessors' rolls will be closed.

Value Memberships at $7,000.

Each board of trade membership was assessed at $7,000. The value arbitrarily placed upon the memberships was the amount paid for the last membership sold, being fixed after the assessors received no answers to requests for data on the value of memberships.

The board of review yesterday notified the owners of 450 buildings which were not assessed in the 1928 reassessment to appear and explain why $100,000 in back taxes should not be levied on their properties.

ASK ASSESSMENT

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The Association of Real Estate Taxpayers yesterday made a formal demand upon the board of review to make assessments on $925,000,000 of bank deposits, $1,565,341,000 of trust estates in banks and $713,175,000 of estates in the Probate court.

"It is estimated that from these three sources $192,210,900 of new taxes can be secured yearly, if the assessments are properly made and the taxes collected," said the association's letter. The organization asserted that most of this personal property is not assessed at all and the remainder at only a small fraction of its actual value.

The board of assessors had previously told the taxpayers' organization that it could not get authentic information on which to assess estates and bank deposits.

Points to Revenue Act.

The association's letter to the board of review asserts that the assessing of this property is not optional with that board, and then quotes a section of the revenue act to the effect that every officer who shall refuse or knowingly neglect to perform his duty "shall for every such offense, neglect or refusal, be liable, on complaint of any person, for double the amount of the loss or damage caused thereby." The letter continues:

"We are advising you that your oaths of office make it mandatory that these properties, as indicated, be placed on the tax rolls if malfeasance in your office is to be avoided."

The association asserts that failure to place these and other groups of personal property in the assessment books "will endanger the validity and collection of the 1930 tax."

In conclusion the association indicates possible legal action to remedy the situation against which it complains.

HANDLE 13,000 TONS IN NEW WATERWAY TERMINAL IN PEORIA

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—More than 13,000 tons of merchandise have been handled through the Peoria waterway terminal since the opening of the depot here in June. Incidentally, the city of Peoria has collected $1,976 as rental for the terminal, the amount represents a portion of the waterway depot earnings.

Despite the fact that the terminal operated without established rates until Sept. 26, the waterway officials appeared more than elated with the business handled here. They predicted that with an established rate at least ten times as much business will be handled.

A steady increase has been noted in the freight handled monthly. During the last four months a total of 3,697 tons of freight have been loaded aboard ships here, while a total of 10,480 tons were unloaded.

CARR HEIRESS GETS ESTATE, LICENSE TO WED

It was a big day yesterday for Miss Margaret I. Carr, 18 year old daughter of the late Patrick J. Carr, former county treasurer of Cook county. She received nearly $55,000 from the estate of her mother, Mrs. Agnes M. Carr, and immediately thereafter obtained a license for her marriage.

She was accompanied to the county clerk's office by her fiancé, William J. Englebrecht, 24 years old, an employé of the Central Manufacturing District bank. They will be married in about three weeks at St. Luke's church.

Joseph L. Lissack, assistant to Probate Judge Horner, turned over to Miss Carr $54,500 in Liberty bonds and $377 in interest accrued on the bonds, which became her property on her eighteenth birthday on Sept. 30. Miss Carr also is the beneficiary of a $350,000 trust fund established by her father. The former county treasurer died on Nov. 16, 1926, and his widow died on Nov. 18, 1929. Miss Carr's home is at 7612 Division street, River Forest.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

A REORGANIZED POLICE FORCE.

Commissioner Allman, the new head of the Chicago police department, has arranged a consultation with Mr. Bruce Smith, a student of police problems whose recommendations for bettering the department have been generally accepted in the community as sound. Mr. Smith's recommendations were numerous, but in sum they were intended to make the department more flexible in responding to the will of its chief and at the same time to divorce it as far as possible from political influences.

For years Chicago has suffered from the haphazard organization of its police forces. The responsibilities of individuals of all ranks have been ill defined and in consequence the efficiency of the department has been low, for the most part. The fact that Commissioner Allman is preparing to consult Mr. Smith is itself a promising evidence that he is aware of past mistakes and is resolved to correct them as far as it lies in his power to do so.

The people of Chicago have a just complaint against their police department. For numerous reasons, chief of which are malign political influence and unsound organization within the department itself, the force has cost far more than the degree of protection it gave the public should have cost. As matters stand, it is most improbable that any additional money can be found for the department; the only way, then, in which life and property in Chicago can be given added security is through increased efficiency in the police. How much might be attained in this direction is indicated in Mr. Hewitt's recent studies of comparative costs of policing London and Chicago. Admitting, as Mr. Hewitt does, that at many points the problems in the two cities are not strictly comparable, it is still highly significant that the cost of policing London is $5.69 per inhabitant, while the cost in Chicago is $6.91. Chicago pays considerably more and gets considerably less. The gap can be and should be closed.

Mr. Cermak has pledged Commissioner Allman a free hand in the management of the department. We think that the offer may be accepted at face value. The job of reorganization is a large one and if it is done thoroughly a good many vested rights and habits within the department and some outside of the department will be disturbed. Complaints are to be expected, but they will not come from the general public. A thorough revamping of the department to increase its efficiency and responsibility will be welcomed by the people of Chicago and approved by the great majority.

HUNGRY CHILDREN.

The superintendent of schools says that 15,000 children in Chicago are chronically undernourished. There is not money at home to buy them enough to eat. It is not unusual to see them faint from hunger in the classrooms. Undernourishment dulls the mind and stunts growth.

The acute sufferings of these children are to be ended. New means must be found for raising money for school lunches because the teaching staff which in previous years carried much of the load is itself unpaid this year when the need is greater than ever before. Accordingly, THE TRIBUNE is inviting its readers to contribute to a fund for school lunches. A careful estimate indicates that $300,000 will be required. It will be found, we have no doubt, as soon as the people of Chicago realize the extent of the need.

This is not a year in which to give only Christmas baskets. The money can be better spent in providing ordinary fare day by day where it is most needed. That is the work which lies ahead of the Good Fellows of 1931.

WOMEN AGAINST PROHIBITION.

The Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, opening a downtown Chicago office, registered 400 women supporters the first day. For years before national prohibition was undertaken women had been conspicuously organized to obtain it. When they spoke at all or acted at all on the subject it was in support of all proposals made against intoxicating beverages. When the experiment of the Volstead act was tried under the eighteenth amendment it was supposed to have the indorsement of all women of any respectability and moral standing. It is still an assumption of the Anti-Saloon league that all respectability supports the amendment and the enforcement act. The favorite prohibition argument remains an attack upon the moral qualities of the opposition.

The answer to this is apparent in the lists of the people opposed to prohibition. Many of the best women in the country are fully aware of the doctrinal folly of federal prohibition and of the destructive consequences both in social and political life. They are for restudy and reform, modification and the stopping of abuses, and they are organizing to give their opinions weight in political action.

THE VANISHING AMERICAN?

James Reed, former senator from Missouri and now a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President, says he hopes the Democrats will adopt a sound platform and not go in for noble experiments. Reed's idea of a sound platform is one which pronounces for a deflation of federal government, to get it out of wheat, out of cotton, out of the sniffing business, out of the citizen's private affairs and his business affairs, to pull congress away from the chest of dopes, opiates, and love potions, and to evict the quacks, medicine man, and cancer salve venders.

If the United States is out of luck Reed is one of a vanishing race, and if it is that much out of luck the race will be lucky to disappear in time, because what will be substituted for the nation of their affections and loyalties will be insufferable. If the old-time American has seen his days it is not only the end of an era but the end of a great idea. The qualities which made the United States cannot survive a complete reversal of the conditions needed for their existence. The nation has rested upon the doctrine that its citizens were adult, competent, self-reliant, and able in an equalitarian political and social system to take care of themselves and defend their common possessions. That idea has produced all their first class men and the fiber of their citizenship. If the idea is wrong for the present generation and for succeeding generations the American republic must close its books. It's had its day, the most brilliant of its kind, but proof again that such ideals were too much for the people to whom they were offered. We don't believe it.

MILWAUKEE DEBT PAYMENT PLAN IN JEOPARDY.

The orderly city of Milwaukee, viewing a public debt as something which must be paid, has a fund unique in the history of American municipalities. It has for a number of years by systematic diversion of minor interest receipts amassed a substantial amount that is known as its public debt amortization fund and its purpose is to let this money accumulate with the help of compound interest until it is enough to pay the city's bonded debt, which now is about $48,000,000.

The fund was authorized by a special act of the legislature which specifies for what purpose it is to be spent. It is now eight years old, contains something more than three and a half million dollars and the interest it earns annually has become as important a factor in its growth as the accretions from the city.

The saving was initiated with the interest on deferred payments for street improvements and one-third of the interest on bank balances. It has had some help from the donations of public spirited citizens, but compound interest and time were planned to be the chief elements in its growth.

By reason of this forward looking measure and other municipal activities such as its tax readjustment fund by which the city proposes to collect its taxes before it spends them, Milwaukee has gained an admirable position among American cities. Its apparent conviction that municipal business can be conducted on the same principle as any successful private industry has made the administration of the Wisconsin metropolis a model.

This position has not been acquired by Milwaukee without effort and vigilance. Three and a half million dollars in the amortization fund this year earns $128,000 interest, and this constitutes a bright and shining mark. A rumble of desire scarce expressed aloud last year has become an outspoken request. Alderman Edward Smukowski has asked the city attorney to devise some legal means by which this year's interest can be used to pay for additional public works to provide employment.

The need is great, Alderman Smukowski argues, and the purpose commendable. The amount is not large and its diversion will delay the accomplishment of the major project only one year.

Bankers will tell you that the weakness in any saving plan, public or private, comes when enough money has been accumulated to inspire some one to want to buy something with it. There is always a need and the easy impulse is to reach into the savings for it. There is never any difficulty to find a worthy reason for spending money.

The success of this plan is jeopardized by the very first attack against it, however noble in motive. If Milwaukee values the place in the sun it has earned, it will direct its city attorney to disregard the request of Alderman Smukowski and be on its guard against officials or philanthropic individuals with designs.

It remains to be seen whether Milwaukee will continue to be a model for other cities or will descend to the level of the rest.

Editorial of the Day

EDUCATIONAL DEPRESSION.
[Grand Rapids Press.]

Colleges and universities of the country are reporting expected decreases in enrollment, the surprising element being that the losses are not greater than indicated. The University of Michigan shows a drop of 173, although the actual decrease in the undergraduate body is around 300. The postgraduate schools have shown increases.

This indicates that the student who has progressed far in his studies is making every effort to complete his work. But it also indicates that many who have not yet begun higher academic training are delaying their entry or have given up the idea of continuing their education. The latter class automatically enters the competition for jobs at a time when opportunities are few. Fewer jobs also reduce the opportunities for the student who must work his way through school.

The situation offers a chance for a constructive work by groups of alumni of the various schools, especially among those with means. Establishment of new loan funds or expansion of existing ones would open educational avenues to many deserving youths now prevented by economic circumstances from continuing to their goal. Scholarship funds should be increased for the benefit of those of special aptitude.

A forced break in education very often is prolonged until it is permanent. A great majority of those who lose step with their academic life after leaving high school never get in line again. Educational philanthropy therefore is more important today than ever.

GUESSING AT MEASLES.

IN this month measles may become more prevalent. This tendency will become more marked month by month until late next spring, when it will reach a maximum. Since measles epidemics do not come every year the localities that suffered last winter will be in a zone of safety for another year. They used up their powder and the disease cannot spread much until a new lot of youngsters have come along.

The great danger in measles is not due to the eruption, the fever, the cough, or the sore eyes, but is by reason of the tendency of pneumonia to follow. Therefore, if one must have measles he had better pick the summer time rather than any part of the pneumonia season. For the same reason, if a man does not want measles, he had better keep away from army barracks, school dormitories, and other places where pneumonia is liable to be hanging out. Crowds are to be avoided for the same reason.

And, finally, it is always advisable to postpone having measles as long as possible. A nursing baby with measles is in for trouble. A 5 year old is better off than a baby. A 25 year old is more likely to recover than is a 5 year old.

In the control of measles, once it gets into a family, the most important thing for the mother to know is what should make her suspect measles in other members of her household. What is now being written is for mothers rather than for physicians and health departments. These important people see only a small proportion of the cases and, at that, they are not called in until the household, the school, or the neighborhood has been well seeded.

What should make a mother suspect measles? First, a history of exposure. Is there measles in the home, the school, or the block? Second, did the child under suspicion get sick at about the right time after exposure? Is there a fever? What does the thermometer say? A very slight fever may mean that measles is coming on. Is there a dry, hacking cough? Are the eyes sandy and somewhat red?

Now use a finger to pull down the lower eyelid. Is there a red streak near the edge of the lid in the red membrane? Such a streak can usually be seen the first day of the fever. Pull the lid farther out. Is there a broad, red band parallel with the border? Is the little red mound at the inner corner of the eye swollen? This is the caruncle. Has it one of those spots called Koplik's spots on it? This is likely to appear on the second day as the sandy feeling of the eye increases.

Now look in the mouth by good natural light and by different kinds of artificial lights. Are there Koplik spots on the insides of the cheeks? Look carefully.

All of these signs precede the skin eruption. Unless a woman can be pretty certain of her guess before the eruption appears and takes precautions at once she will not make much headway protecting the baby and other members of the family.

BOILS REPEATING.

M. N. F. writes: Is dietary deficiency a cause of repeated boils? My 14 year old nephew has had a siege. His doctor said he should not eat fresh fruits, such as strawberries. He likes them and he finds it difficult to choose between strawberries and boils.

REPLY.

I know of no proof that eating strawberries lays a foundation for boils, unless it be because of the large amount of sugar with which the berries are covered. If he will substitute honey for sugar on his berries, he can decrease his sugar intake and improve the flavor of the dish.

Too much starch and sugar in the diet lays the foundation for boils, though recently a physician questioned that. It is thought that deficiency in some vitamins promotes infections. A boil is an infection. The vitamins of which this is said to be true are A, D and possibly C.

MUST SECURE JUDGMENT FIRST.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My creditors are demanding larger payments from me than it is possible for me to give them. 1. What action can I take to prevent their taking steps against me? I have been told that if I pay them a certain amount each month they cannot sue me or garnishee my wages. 2. Is this right? The accounts are for doctor and household bills. 3. If they do garnishee my wages, what can I do, as it is impossible to pay the amounts they demand?

2. No.
3. They have no right to proceed against your wages until they have first taken judgment against you.

SOLD FOR JUNK.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—[Friend of the People.]—There are two automobiles parked in the 1800 block on Halsted street. There are no licenses on either of the cars and they have stood there all summer. Children climb on them and probably will get hurt. These cars also interfere with traffic on the street. A. G.

Report is made that an interview was had with the owners of the cars complained of and they stated that the cars had been parked on their property since last fall, but due to construction work were removed temporarily to the street. In regard to the license plates the officers report that neither car is serviceable and has not been used this year. The cars were removed to a junk dealer the day after the officers' visit.

ADMINISTRATORS.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have been appointed administrator of my late father's will, drawn up in Illinois where he resided, and among his estate is property in Illinois and Michigan. The will has been probated and accepted in Illinois. Is it necessary to probate the real estate in both Illinois and Michigan and must an administrator be appointed for the Michigan property also, or can I act in both states?

O. E. G.

You should file an exemplified transcript of the Illinois proceedings in Michigan. Presumably, an attorney has been employed in the proceedings here. If so, such attorney is in a better position to advise you than we are. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

ENGLAND DECIDES it ought to have a general election, so, all right, they'll have one. In the United States we have to wait for four years to be ticked off by the clock, and then we have to elect a President whether we want to or not. And very often we want to long before the four years have rolled around. The British system seems the best; if a government fails to deliver the goods they give it the bum's rush and put in a new outfit. And if that one isn't satisfactory out it goes and they proceed to set 'em up in the other alley. And yet over here we speak of the English as slow, while we Yankees are quick as greased lightning. But once in a while we wake up to the fact that we have tied ourselves up with quite a lot of conventions and old customs. If it wasn't for that four year presidential term we could have the election tomorrow and have the matter all settled, and then we wouldn't have anything else to worry about except the Notre Dame game with Northwestern next Saturday.

"DO NOT STIR!" say the directions on our wine brick, "or the contents will Ferment and become an Intoxicating Beverage." So the wine brick was left lying on the highest shelf in the kitchen and we walked around on tiptoes so that it would not be jarred, or stirred, or excited in any way. But yesterday morning, to our horror, we saw a mouse perched at one corner of the wine brick. Horror of horrors, he had eaten off a corner. "Do not stir the mouse!" we gasped, "he's all right so long as he sits still. But if he stirs around he will become intoxicated and then Heaven save us all!" So we tried to slip out of the kitchen without causing the mouse the slightest uneasiness. But he decided he needed exercise or it was time for him to go home or something, because he began to stir around. Then it happened, the more he stirred the more intoxicated he became. He scooted out the door and chased two alley cats up trees and then stood below and begged 'em to come down and fight like men. Then a wire haired terrier appeared. The mouse leaped at him and tore off his whiskers, gave him a kick in the pants, and sent him shrieking down the street. Then the mouse attacked a bulldog and a police dog and whipped them both. What more casualties he would have caused no one can say. But by this time the conviction seemed to come to him that the Drys expect every souse to go home and beat up his wife and children. So with a drunken leer he reeled down the alley and disappeared into a hole that was probably the front door of his home. Anyhow we pity his wife and children. And we have put a bowl over the wine brick so that no more innocent mice may be dragged down into the gutter and become brawlers and drunkards.

UNDERGOING DEFLATION

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 7, 1915.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Wilson announced his engagement tonight to Mrs. Norman Galt, a wealthy widow who has lived nearly all her life in Washington. At 8 o'clock tonight Private Secretary Tumulty summoned the newspaper correspondents to the White House and made public the following statement: "The announcement was made today of the engagement of Mrs. Norman Galt of this city and President Woodrow Wilson." Although Mr. Tumulty was beaming with joy, he had no further details of this momentous White House event to vouchsafe. According to the friends of Mr. Wilson and Mrs. Galt, the wedding will take place before the end of the year. Mr. Wilson met Mrs. Galt for the first time a few months after the death of Mrs. Wilson a year ago last August. Mrs. Galt, whose husband died about eight years ago, formerly was Miss Edith Bolling. She was born in Wytheville, Va., where her girlhood was spent, and where her father, William H. Bolling, won distinction as one of the ablest lawyers in the state.

LONDON.—A dispatch to Reuter's Telegraph company from Sofia sent by way of Petrograd says: "Bulgaria's reply to the Russian ultimatum is unsatisfactory. The Russian minister has notified Premier Radoslavoff of a rupture of diplomatic relations between the two countries. Bulgaria's reply was delivered at 2:40 o'clock on the afternoon of Oct. 5."

SOFIA. — The Russian, French, British, Serbian, and Italian ministers have asked for their passports.

LONDON. — Bulgarian reports are that mobilization is being completed rapidly and that many German officers are arriving. King Ferdinand of Bulgaria has sent an ultimatum to Serbia allowing a time limit of twenty-four hours for the cession of Macedonia to Bulgaria.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 7, 1901.

BOSTON, Mass.—Just how much money has been given to the fund for the ransom of Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American foreign missionary held captive by Bulgarian brigands, is not known tonight. Those directing the effort in her behalf hope the response throughout the country will be liberal and that the figure is fully $100,000, if not the necessary amount, which is $10,000 more. In Boston the amount already in hand reaches nearly $30,000.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Roosevelt finds that political problems in the south confront him at every turn, and he is preparing not only to develop a new policy in the matter of appointments, as foreshadowed in the practical selection of former Gov. Jones for the Alabama judgeship, but also in regard to the still wider question of the reduction of the representation of the southern states in Republican national conventions. Henry C. Payne of Wisconsin arrived here by appointment and will see the President.

OCTOBER 7, 1881.

WASHINGTON. — The dignified bearing of President Chester A. Arthur is impressing every one with whom he comes in contact. He has adopted one rule for the present at least which it would be well to make permanent. He has decided not to interfere in any way with the vacancies which exist in the minor offices in the several departments and he will refer all cases to the department where the vacancies occur. The President has expressed the desire that all the present cabinet members appointed by President Garfield shall retain their positions at least until the regular session of congress.

WASHINGTON. — The publication of Charles J. Guiteau's biography in the New York Herald today occasions much unfavorable comment on the methods of District Attorney Corkhill. Guiteau dictated the narrative under a belief that it was to be published in pamphlet form for his benefit, the money to go to aid him in his defense, whereas it was sold by the district attorney's stenographer to the Herald. The deception upon the prisoner is thoroughly condemned.

DEAD BEATS.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—Are automobile owners as a class lacking in common honesty? My question is prompted by several experiences with car owners who have rented one or other of my three garages. During the last two years I have been stuck with past due rent by five renters out of nine. The neighborhood in which I have my property is a reasonably reputable one—Rogers Park. The people to whom I rent appear to be respectable. They dress well and pay from $75 to $100 a month rent. They drive—as a rule—medium priced cars. I make an exception in the case of the gentleman who stuck me with four months' rent; he drove a $4,000 car. My case is not an exception. Three of the owners of garages in the same block have had comparable experiences. I know of many others throughout Rogers Park, and I have heard of some from other sections of the city.

Last week a neighbor of mine told me of a tenant who was so uppish about himself and his car that he objected to an old vintage flivver in the garage next to him. He wasn't so fussy about decency, however. One night last week he stole away from his garage, sticking the owner with a month's rent. When the owner called this big shot up all the answer he got regarding his rent was "try and get it." Maybe I'm wrong in thinking that the average car owner is only dishonest. I wouldn't be surprised if in addition to that he is pretty much of a piker.

P. H.

A DANGEROUS CROSSING.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—For the past four years repeatedly the citizens residing in the vicinity of Polk and Morgan streets have complained in regard to the serious accidents occurring almost daily at the intersection of the above mentioned streets.

Not to repeat the many serious accidents, I wish to quote two which have happened recently. On July 17, 1931, Mrs. Providence Casano, a mother of three children, was instantly killed by an auto while crossing this intersection, and on Sept. 23, 1931, Vito Didia, a boy of seventeen, had his leg broken by another auto. This intersection is one of the most dangerous in the west side of this city and as yet no traffic lights have been installed.

I have seen children time and again narrowly escape death, since these two streets lead to four schools, the Goodrich, Dante, Dore, and Jackson High.

Three markets are approached through this death corner—the Fulton, Randolph, and South Water.

I sincerely hope that the alderman and the director of public safety will read the above and attend to the business of putting stoplights at this intersection.

PETER MAGGIORE.

THE REAL SUFFERERS.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—In a period such as this the real sufferers are the middle class. The poor we will always have with us and of course these people now have help even in ordinary times. There is, however, a vast number of men and women who have held responsible positions, office employés, master craftsmen, small tradesmen who have been obliged to close their businesses, and any number of others who make up the great middle class, who now find themselves in a critical condition. To these people the idea of seeking aid from the organized charities is foreign. With some of the marks of former affluence about them it is doubtful if these charities would give them aid.

My suggestion is to set aside a part of the fund being raised by the governor's commission and make it available to these people for loans at low rate of interest. The fund could be administered by a responsible committee, safeguards could be established, so that as far as humanly possible only the worthy would receive aid. Without jobs and without security to offer these people to whom I refer cannot borrow money in the regular channels. Even the loan sharks would ignore them. This plan is a great deal better than charity; for the donor, a greater part of the money contributed for this purpose would eventually find its way back into his coffers and it would save the pride and self-respect of the donee or borrower and enable him to keep his home together in these trying times.

L. C. B.

WHAT WORRIES HIM.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—We know, according to science, that light travels at the rate of 186,000 miles per second. Although I have much faith in science, I can't but worry about this most improbable yet maybe not impossible problem. Suppose that a star in the sky was exactly 186,000 miles from the earth. Then suppose some phenomenon should happen and that star should come directly at the earth at a speed of 186,000 miles per second. Since light only travels that fast we would be amazed to who-knows-what, while at the same time there up in the sky would be that star as it was a second before. I'll admit that I'd hate to see that last second.

GERALD C. SYMES.

THE MEANEST MAN.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—I would like to offer a reward for the name and address of the man who ran over a little boy's new bicycle, crushing it beyond repair, and then was cheap enough to run away, leaving the little boy in tears. This happened on Foster avenue, near Kilbourn avenue, about 4:30 p. m. today.

BILL TO REPEAL 18TH AMENDMENT BEFORE A. F. OF L.

Resolution Favors State Control of Liquor.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 6.—(AP)—Repeal of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act, a special session of congress to appropriate money for unemployment relief, exclusion of Filipino laborers, and regulation of Mexican immigration were urged in resolutions presented to the American Federation of Labor convention here today.

The Hotel and Restaurant Employés and Beverage Dispensers' International alliance sponsored the resolution proposing repeal of the 18th amendment, while the Central Labor council of Tacoma, Wash., favored repeal of the Volstead act.

Fifty-four resolutions were presented and referred to committees without discussion.

Favor State Control.

In urging repeal of the 18th amendment the resolution said, in part:

"We favor the installation by the states of a method of controlled and restricted distribution which will prevent the exploitation of the liquor traffic for unconscionable profits and not only do away with prevailing speakeasies and secret drinking but prevent the reappearance of an unregulated system and the political iniquities which accompany it."

Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania called upon America today to quit "cheese nibbling" methods of relieving unemployment and organize to provide work for all. He expressed opposition to the dole system.

The former secretary of labor said fear was the factor that was keeping the American dollar the laziest instrument in the country. A forward step, he said, would be "elimination of wildcat financing and stock juggling."

Would Hock Gold on Capitol.

"I believe in extending help in times of need," he said. "If we have a catastrophe, an epidemic, or any condition beyond the control of man or the government set up by man I would be willing to hock the gold on the dome of the capitol at Washington to take care of the distressed people.

"But to siphon money out of the treasury for a continuous dole, and thus place a heavier burden of tax on the backs of the workmen, as is the vogue now in foreign countries and which to my mind desroys individual initiative and ruins the morale of a nation—I am opposed to it.

"Fear—what a terrible word! Fear today of those many millions who are gainfully employed reduces our buying power because they are afraid that they, too, will join soon the ranks of the unemployed. Fear of our men of wealth, our bankers, makes them call in loans that are being used for productive wealth and to make progress. Few loans are being made today and the laziest thing in America today, because of fear, is the dollar. It, too, is out of work because of fear.

Assails "Law of Jungle."

"The real situation, as I see it, is this: Are we wise enough, are we far-sighted enough, to use our national reserve wealth while we still have it, to end unemployment; to create employment opportunities and to promote sound economic projects which will tend to revive our economic activities; or shall we pursue a cheese nibbling policy which would continue until our national reserve wealth will have been totally squandered?

"One forward step would be the elimination of wildcat financing and stock juggling.

"We must quit topheavy finance and overspeculation and turn back to the golden rule and set aside the law of the jungle."

BURGLARS TAKE $20,000 LOOT IN BROKER'S HOME

Burglars staged an unscheduled housewarming for Harry J. Lowenbach, broker at 105 South La Salle street, when he moved back to his apartment at 2912 Commonwealth avenue on Monday after spending the summer in the suburbs, it became known last night. Their loot was estimated at $20,000.

Mrs. Lowenbach and a maid left their summer home at Highland Park and went to the apartment, carrying with them a casket containing jewelry valued at $17,300. They went shopping and returned late in the afternoon to discover the apartment turned topsy-turvy.

In addition to the jewelry, the burglars took a $1,200 fur coat and lingerie valued at $1,500.

OPEN BATTLE FOR $900,000 ESTATE OF SCHOELLKOPF

Institutions Named in Will Appeal.

A struggle for shares in the $900,000 estate of a pioneer Chicagoan was begun yesterday by five beneficiaries of his bequests when they filed an appeal to the Circuit court from the ruling of Probate Judge Horner, who held invalid a will leaving most of the property to charity. Under the court's findings, $800,000 was awarded the widow and three sisters of the dead man.

The estate was that of Henry Schoellkopf Jr., who came to Chicago with his parents while still an infant. The family acquired real estate and wealth as the city grew. Schoellkopf died at sea on April 16, 1930, at the age of 63 years. He was returning to America from Wuerzburg, Germany, where he had undergone treatment in a hospital. There, eight months earlier, he had married Miss Kate Daugs, who accompanied him upon his return.

Rules for Relatives.

This marriage, under the laws of Illinois, invalidated the will Schoellkopf had made in January, 1916, and codicils he added in 1924 and 1926, Judge Horner held. The only heirs to the wealth, according to the ruling, were the widow, who lived at 420 Sigel street; Mrs. Emma C. Gallagher, 2640 Wilson avenue; Mrs. Minnie S. DeVry, 1049 North Sacramento avenue, and Mrs. Ida S. DeVry, 839 Kenesaw terrace, Schoellkopf's sisters.

Under the laws of Missouri, however, a will is valid until children are born to the couple married after its execution. Consequently when the will was filed at Kansas City it was probated. The widow and sisters, not named in the document, were not considered beneficiaries. The $100,000 worth of real estate which Schoellkopf possessed there has been prorated between sixteen Chicago and Kansas City organizations which include hospitals, asylums, and charitable and religious organizations.

Five Join in Appeal.

Five of these devisees, the Helping Hand, the Y. M. C. A., the German hospital, now the Research hospital; the National Methodist Episcopal Training school, and the Oakhurst Methodist Episcopal church, all of Kansas City, instituted the appeal.

Others which will profit by a favorable ruling are the Evangelical Lutheran Concordia Teachers college at River Forest, the Grant hospital, the Art institute, the German society, the German Old People's home, the Central Y. M. C. A., the Moody Bible institute, and the Chicago Commons association, all of Chicago.

YOUTH ACCUSES EXECUTOR OF HIS $100,000 ESTATE

Francis O'Keefe, 20 years old, a junior at Notre Dame university, yesterday asked that the executor of his $100,000 estate, willed him by his father, be removed. In a bill filed in the Circuit court he charged that the executor, John J. Flanigan, 1635 Fulton street, had engaged in rash speculation, had appropriated large sums of money for his own use, and had neglected the care of the property.

In the bill, drawn by Attorney Harry J. Berman, the youth recites that his father, Frank O'Keefe, died on April 2, 1926. Shortly thereafter Flanigan was appointed executor. The latter, the action charges, failed ever to make bond. The bill also charges that Flanigan used the funds of the estate to make a secret profit for himself.

MEETING URGES NATION TO GET OUT OF BUSINESS

300 Peoria Citizens Join New Federation.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—More than three hundred Peoria business men gathered here tonight to organize the Sixteenth Congressional district of Illinois as a unit of the Federation of American Business and to outline a definite program for opposition to government invasion of private business and increasing taxes.

Peoria's meeting was the initial of a series to be conducted in the larger cities of the United States, and, judging from the response received here, business men and taxpayers welcome the opportunity to bind themselves together in an attempt to prevent further such federal encroachment. Practically every line of business was represented at the Peoria meeting.

B. W. Snow, Chicago, county chairman of the Republican committee; John B. Maling, Hammond, Ind., and R. B. Orndorff, Bloomington, vice president of the Farmers Grain Dealers' association, were the principal speakers here, where Dr. George W. Michell, Peoria physician, presided.

Mr. Snow Cites Figures.

Mr. Snow cited statistics concerning the rapid increase in taxes and the cost of the operation of the government. He said that in sixteen years the taxes have increased 325 per cent; that the government now costs 13 billions annually; that 500,000 pay rollers are on the various government bureaus, and that $300,000,000 is the taxpayers' loss on government operation of the federal merchant marine.

Contractors complain that the government took $500,000,000 worth of public work from them in one year, he said, and the farm board has squandered $500,000,000 while wheat and cotton prices suffered a tragic relapse, with the home markets paralyzed and the foreign markets lost as a result.

"Federal, state, and local governments in this country are engaged in more than eighty separate lines of business or of industry in direct competition with their own citizens," Mr. Snow declared. "A mere enumeration of these governmental activities is startling because so gradual has been the encroachment that even those vitally affected may not realize what has occurred. The government manufactures or produces a wide range of products upon the excuse that it is for its own use, but it also produces and sells in the open market.

The Taxpayer Pays.

"The taxpayer pays for the material used, foots the pay roll, and furnishes the capital for the government work, and, therefore, the man whose business is being invaded is taxed to pay the cost of a competition that seeks to put him out of business.

"No one can permanently live beyond his income and the government is no exception. The cost of government has already reached the limit of the financial ability of taxpayers and we are faced with the problem of either reducing cost of government or reducing our scale of living, our payment of things we individually desire.

"The decision of the American people between the doctrines of individual liberty and governmental tyranny, between the doctrines of a long line of American statesmen and the Russian revival of a government in which all power of life or death is centered, must be recorded."

3 DAY OBSERVANCE OF 60TH ANNIVERSARY OF FIRE STARTS TODAY

Today will be the first day of the three day commemoration of the 60th anniversary of the Chicago fire which swept the city in 1871. Mass meetings throughout the city, especially in the schools, will not only recall the disastrous conflagration but will instruct in methods of fire prevention. By a special proclamation of Gov. Emmerson the week has been officially designated as fire prevention week.

One of the mementos of the fire which will attract the attention of many is the frame cottage at 2121 Hudson avenue, the only wooden structure in the section of the city burned to escape the blaze. At the present time it is occupied by Joseph J. Kirschten and his family who have lived there for twenty years. At the time of the fire it was owned by a policeman by the name of Bellinger, who refused to run with his neighbors.

SHERIFF FARLEY TELLS OF MAGIC SAFETY BOXES

Seabury Committee Told How They Grew.

New York, Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Two boxes which rivaled the fabled purse of Fortunatus in apparent inexhaustibility enabled Sheriff Thomas M. Farley to deposit $360,640 in six years and three quarters, he told the Hofstadter legislative committee at a public hearing today. Sheriff Farley's salary in this period, during all of which he held public office, ranged from $6,500 to $15,000 a year.

Under questioning by Samuel Seabury, the committee's counsel, Sheriff Farley, who is the Tammany leader of the Fourteenth assembly district, explained that one of the boxes was a large tin box in a safe in his home and that the other was a safe deposit box in a Chatham and Phenix bank.

The sheriff testified that the money in his two boxes represented his savings for years from earnings as a business agent of the cement and concrete workers' union and his salary as an alderman.

Started at Home.

He first started putting his surplus money in the tin box in his home, he testified, until it contained an estimated $100,000. He then rented a safe deposit box and whenever he needed money to pay a bill or to complete a real estate transaction he would take the money necessary from one or both boxes, deposit it in a bank, and draw a check against it.

Sheriff Farley said he had had no other earnings since he became deputy county clerk except commissions from real estate sales. He estimated these at about $26,000 the last three years.

The examination of Mr. Farley came as a result of his continued refusal to submit to questioning at a private hearing. It had been Mr. Seabury's intention to question him at this time only about the charge that he had permitted professional gambling at his political clubhouse in East 62d street.

Refuses to Waive Immunity.

Mr. Farley, however, refused at the beginning of the hearing to sign a waiver of immunity unless it was made clear that the waiver would not apply to a private hearing. Mr. Seabury advised him that a waiver, once signed, applied to examination in private as well as in public.

Mr. Farley denied knowledge of any professional gambling in his club or that there had been, in fact, any such gambling there. He asserted that at the time of the raid, which was at 2 a. m. on May 30, 1926, the members present were preparing for the annual May party of the Thomas M. Farley association and were getting 15,000 baseball bats, rubber balls and skipping ropes for distribution to the children of the district. The Farley club party, held each year in Central park, is the largest given by any Tammany district organization, and an attendance of 400,000 is not unusual.

Contradicts Other Witnesses.

Mr. Farley said he had been told that Lieut. Ezekiel E. Keller, who headed the raiding party, had "planted" the revolver found on the floor of the clubhouse. He denied a conversation with Lieut. Keller and also denied the material part of a conversation with Police Inspector Lyons, who testified that he forewarned Mr. Farley that professional gambling in the club would not be tolerated.

JUDGE LYLE GETS INTO FIST FIGHT IN TRAFFIC ROW

Both He and His Foe Claim Victory.

Municipal Judge John H. Lyle engaged in a fist fight yesterday with Emil Domres, a painting contractor, as a result of a traffic argument on the south side. Both Judge Lyle and Domres claimed to have won.

After the fray it was reported that Domres threatened to get out a warrant against Judge Lyle "charging assault or something." "Is that so," retorted the judge when told of this. "I'll get three warrants for every one of his."

Combatants Stories Differ.

The stories of Judge Lyle and Domres about the affair do not agree. Judge Lyle, accompanied by his bailiff, Gordon Townsend, who is also his brother-in-law, drove up and parked in front of Domres' Englewood paint shop at 735 West 65th street. The judge, leaving Townsend in the car, walked across the street and into the offices of the South Town Economist at 730 West 65th street. The combatants agree on these facts.

Later Domres drove up in his flivver and backed into the judge's automobile, pushing it two or three feet. Townsend jumped out of the Lyle car and faced Domres. Townsend weighs about 140 pounds. Domres is decribed as a large man.

"Townsend called me a lot of names," said Domres, in explaining the affair, "and so I hit him." But bystanders insisted that Townsend had carried the fight to the painting contractor and was almost on even terms. At this point Judge Lyle arrived.

Recognizes Judge Lyle.

"I recognized him as Judge Lyle, and having heard that he was a fighter, I was a little cautious," Domres explained. "Both Townsend and Lyle came after me. It didn't take me long to put Townsend out of the fight. The judge jumped on my back. Then I hit Lyle three or four times. Both he and Townsend climbed into their car and drove away."

However, Judge Lyle was reported to have been unmarked and smiling after the fracas. "Why, the fellow didn't hit me once," he said. "I dashed out of the building to help out Townsend. I scared him off and made him run away down an alley."

Policeman Reaches Scene.

A policeman shouldered his way through the crowd as the battle ended and seized Judge Lyle. "You were in that fight. Come along with me," the policeman commanded.

"Did you see me fight?" the judge asked.

"No," replied the policeman.

"Well, then you'll have to get a warrant before you can take me to the station," Judge Lyle said.

The policeman allowed all three men to leave.

MICHIGAN G. O. P. NOMINATES DRY; DEMOCRATS, WET

Saginaw, Mich., Oct. 6.—(AP)—Foss O. Eldred, Republican who had the support of prohibitionists, and Michael J. Hart, Democrat, who favors modification, apparently were nominated by their respective parties in today's special congressional primary in the Eighth Michigan district.

Unofficial returns from 183 of the 190 precincts of the district gave Eldred a commanding lead in a field of 13 candidates. He had 5,681 votes, while Arthur E. Hagen in second place had 3,980. Hagen in his campaign advocated a referendum on prohibition. The other eleven candidates, who held varying views on prohibition, trailed, but three of them had more than 3,000 votes.

Fordney Vote Small.

Joseph J. Fordney, son of former Representative Joseph W. Fordney, for many years representative from the district, polled only 633 votes in the 183 precincts.

Hart in the Democratic primary polled 2,355 votes in 183 precincts, while his opponent, William B. Mershon, also a modificationist, had 2,062.

The special primary was to select candidates in a special election to fill the seat vacated by the death of Representative Bird J. Vincent. The election will be on the regular election day in November.

Mayor Murphy Wins.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 6.—(AP)—Mayor Frank Murphy was renominated by an overwhelming plurality in today's mayoralty primary. Harold H. Emmons, former police commissioner, was nominated as his opponent in the November election.

Wife Accuses Business Executive of Infidelity

Mrs. Velma Gretchen Moers, 201 Green street, Maywood, filed suit for divorce yesterday in the Circuit court against Roy E. Moers, an official of the American Can company. She charged adultery, stating that she returned from a visit to her parents on Sept. 26 to find feminine apparel scattered about the house. While she was picking them up, she charged, a woman let herself into the place with a key.

HOUSEKEEPER FOUND DEAD.

Miss Mary Carr, 70 years old, housekeeper for the Rev. Edward Keourh, pastor of the Holy Rosary church at South Park way and East 113th street, was found dead sitting in a chair in the parish house Monday night.

1 DEAD, 4 HURT IN CLEVELAND RIOT OF NEGRO REDS

Police Battle with Mob of 300.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 6.—(AP)—A police lieutenant and three Negroes were shot and wounded here late tonight as a police cruising squad clashed with a mob of 300 communists gathered to halt a landlord's eviction in the east side Negro district.

Several blocks from the scene of the riot police discovered the body of a Negro, shot through the head. Police believe he had been killed by a stray bullet in the course of the gun battle.

The affair had its inception at the regular Tuesday night communist meeting on a street corner near the scene of the disturbance.

Crowd Halts Eviction.

Harangued by communist leaders, the crowd moved on the house where a Negro family was being evicted and commenced carrying the furniture back into the house.

A watchman placed to guard the house and its effects had not been accounted for.

Police Lieutenant Owen E. McAdams, in charge of a cruising squad, halted to investigate the proceedings. Two patrolmen were immediately attacked by the mob and the lieutenant was swept off his feet as he attempted to go to their rescue.

The mob surged over the lieutenant and his two officers, trampling and beating them. The patrolmen regained their feet and fired several shots in the air to frighten off their assailants. A woman, the officers reported, screamed, "Let's get them!"

First Shot Fired.

This was apparently the signal for one of the members of the mob to open fire and Lieut. McAdams was shot in the arm and leg. Drawing his gun, the police officer returned his assailant's fire and John Grayford, 54, fell, probably mortally wounded.

WAGE RULING STOPS ALL STATE CONTRACT WORK

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Contractors on seventy-two state highway road and bridge sections and seven contractors doing institutional construction work today were notified that all payments for work performed would be stopped immediately, following Attorney General Carlstrom's opinion against the rate of wage law. The notice that went to the contractors was signed by H. H. Cleaveland, director of public works and buildings; Frank T. Sheets, chief highway engineer, and C. Herrick Hammond, state supervising architect.

Work totaling approximately $4,700,000 was affected by the action. This included $4,500,000 in state highways and approximately $200,000 in building construction.

BEGINS SENTENCE OF LIFE FOR EACH OF FOUR MURDERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Racine, Wis., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Within 48 hours after he had shot down and killed four persons, Frank Gray, 40, Burlington farmhand, entered the Wisconsin state prison at Waupun today to serve four sentences of life imprisonment.

He admitted guilt on four charges of first degree murder when brought before Circuit Judge E. B. Belden shortly after 10 a. m., and 10 minutes later was on his way to the state prison in the custody of Sheriff John Anderson. The four sentences make Gray ineligible for parole for 56 years.

A special detail of deputy sheriffs was on guard to prevent a possible demonstration when Gray was led into the courtroom. Sheriff Anderson was taking no chance on a mob attempting to get at Gray.

Gray readily admitted killing Herbert Boschert, 31, his farmer employer; Frank Boschert, 64, father of Herbert; Bobby, 18 months old son of the younger man, and Celia Kerkman, 18, hired girl in the Boschert farm home, three miles south of Burlington, Sunday. He said that being overworked by his employer was the motive for his act when arrested in Kenosha several hours later.

Many neighbors of the victims drove here from Burlington today to see Gray sentenced. The courtroom was packed and crowds milled about the courthouse entrances for a glimpse of the murderer.

EISEN, PUBLIC ENEMY, AGAIN A BUSINESS AGENT

By a unanimous vote Maxie Eisen, one of the public enemies and notorious as a business agent in years past, last night was elected business agent of the Associated Hebrew Butchers. The organization has a total of 389 members, and more than 225 of them attended the meeting in the Labor lyceum at Kedzie and Austin avenues.

Abraham Yampalsky, 1145 South Springfield avenue, president of the association, spoke in praise of Public Enemy Eisen.

"You have heard," he said, "that Maxie Eisen has been terrorizing kosher butchers to make them vote for him as business agent. Now, is there anybody present that has been slugged or scared into being for him? If there is one, let him stand up."

Nobody stood up. After the balloting Eisen made a speech in which he blamed the Kahillah, an organization of orthodox Jews of prominence, for stirring up animosity toward him.

"The Kahillah," he said, "charges you butchers from $1 to $3 a month to have your shops inspected to see that you sell only kosher meats. I am going to see that you get a break from your wholesalers and from the Kahillah, too."

The Kahillah, it is recalled, compelled the Schochtim, or kosher chicken killers' union, to fire an alleged racketeer who was their business agent last winter.

WOMAN, 65, DIES SUDDENLY.

Mrs. Julia Barliss, 65 years old, an inmate of the Church Home for Aged Persons, 5445 Ingleside avenue, died of heart disease yesterday in front of 9018 Commercial avenue.

Automatic control of heat and flow prevents variation in flavor

• • •

Small quantities of Hills Bros Coffee pass continuously through the roasters

As the accuracy of the hour-glass depends upon an even, continuous flow : : :

a little at a time

: : : so the uniform flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee is produced by Controlled Roasting—the patented process that roasts evenly, continuously : : : a little at a time.

Coffee may be roasted either in bulk, or a little at a time . . . evenly, continuously, as Hills Bros. do with Controlled Roasting. There is a vast difference between this patented process and ordinary, bulk methods. What is more, there is a difference in results!

Hills Bros. Coffee gives you the full charm of the delightful flavor that Nature puts in coffee berries. Controlled Roasting assures just the amount of heat each berry needs for perfect development. The roasting process never varies, and the marvelous flavor never varies, either. It is a flavor that bulk-roasted coffees can't equal!

Remember, also, that you are sure of fresh coffee when you buy Hills Bros. Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is removed and kept out of Hills Bros.' vacuum cans. Ordinary, "air-tight" cans won't keep coffee fresh. But Hills Bros. Coffee can't go stale on the grocer's shelf! Order some today. Ask for it by name, and look for the Arab trade-mark on the can.

FRENCH BUILDERS GUESTS AT FEAST IN FAIR BUILDING

Thirty-five members of the British Institute of Builders, who are visiting several American cities on a building inspection trip, were entertained last night at a dinner given by the Associated Builders of Chicago in the administration building of the World's Fair in Grant park. The Englishmen arrived here yesterday and will leave for Detroit tomorrow.

William F. Krahl, president of the Associated Builders of Chicago, was chairman at the dinner. Clarence W. Farrier, assistant superintendent of the World's Fair, explained the purpose of the fair and the plan of construction to the visitors. The response was made by R. H. Tribe of Guildford, England, and Sir Stephen Easten, O. B. E., J. P., lord mayor of Newcastle-on-Tyne.

R. A. Costwain, London contractor and chairman of the group, said that their late arrival in Chicago prevented the party from seeing much of Chicago yesterday.

"We were very much impressed by what we did see, however," he said. "Chicago's marvelous growth and development in only 100 years of existence fills me with wonder."

Col. Robert Isham Randolph of the Chicago Association of Commerce will address them at a luncheon today in the Stevens hotel.

To "Point-Up" Appetite Just Stimulate Bowels

Whenever the end of the day finds you out-of-sorts; food doesn't tempt you and won't digest; breath is bad; tongue coated, just chew a candy tablet before bedtime. Tomorrow you'll be a new person!

A candy Cascaret clears up a bilious, gassy, headachy condition every time. Puts appetite on edge. Helps digestion. Activates bowels.

Cascarets are made from cascara, which authorities say actually strengthens bowel muscles. So, take these delightful tablets as often as you please; or give them freely to children. All drug stores sell Cascarets for a dime, and no dollar preparation could do better work.

SAVAGE JEERED BY TEACHERS AT SCRIP MEETING

Trustee Heckled When He Promises Help.

Accusations of irregularity and bad faith on the part of the school board yesterday greeted the final effort of Trustee Joseph P. Savage to reconcile Chicago's 14,000 teachers to payless pay days. Despite his exhortations for a united front, more than 2,500 south side teachers who crowded the Hyde Park High school auditorium for the afternoon meeting stormed out expressing loud dissatisfaction with the explanations and promises offered them.

JOSEPH P. SAVAGE.

In his discourse on plans and remedies of a situation which has left the teachers without pay since April, the trustee took time for a reiteration of his attack on President Lewis E. Myers of the school board, and against trustees and department heads who accepted invitations to appear before the governor's revenue commission individually. The only result was to leave the school system in disrepute, he said.

Teachers Put Questions.

After listening for nearly an hour to a speech punctuated with references to "immediate relief" and special legislation "soon," the teachers were invited to put their questions.

"When is soon?" "What is immediate?" "When do we eat?" The chorus rose from a hundred or more throats. There was laughter of a lack joy sort.

In answer to the first question, Mr. Savage said, "It all depends . . ." His words were drowned in a jeer and the conclusion, if any, was not repeated. In answer to the question of special legislation he apologised that he "had not control of the legislature."

"You ask us to cooperate. How?" shouted a man in the rear of the auditorium.

"Write to your congressman," was the answer. And the rejoinder to that was a reverberating snicker.

"You ask us for plans. Seems you are trying to pass the buck," shouted another.

Drowned by Boos.

"If you put in as much time as I . . ." but again the trustee's words were lost in a chorus of boos.

"With all your secret sessions," shouted a woman who had gained the floor for a moment, "you refused to receive a petition for a plan signed by 10,000 teachers."

"It was received."

"It was not."

"I think the records will show," said the trustee. And in the succeeding gale of laughter no attempt was made to veil the crowd's insinuation.

"The resolution was not introduced because no purchaser was named for the warrants upon which money was to be raised. Who is the possible purchaser?" the trustee asked.

"Al Capone," came the answer from the gallery.

"But when do we get paid," yelled a man from the center of the floor. "If I can get my May and June pay I can live at my present standard for the next ten years."

Charges Teachers Were Tricked.

"Does any one here think the board would not get cash if we could?" the trustee asked in apparent exasperation.

"Yes," came the answer in loud chorus.

"You are misinformed," said the trustee.

"No! No! No—o!" they shouted.

A man teacher was on his feet to charge that the Chicago Teachers' federation had tricked 10,000 teachers into signing the petition to hurt scrip holders. Twelve or more women clamored for the floor to answer. Seizing the opportunity, the trustee shouted, "Our usual civil war. Meeting adjourned."

NEWPORT OR HAMPTON ROADS NAVAL STATION LIKELY TO BE CLOSED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Either the Newport or Hampton Roads naval training station on the Atlantic seaboard is due for inclusion in the navy's economy program, it was learned today. The stations at Great Lakes, Ill., and San Diego, Cal., will not be affected, it was said in a high naval quarter.

Whether either of the eastern seaboard stations is closed will rest largely with President Hoover. All navy investigating boards which have looked into the surplus shore station situation have recommended closing of one of the Atlantic training points.

Closing up one station will result in a saving in excess of a million dollar in maintenance alone.

Efforts are being made at the navy department to find a way to avoid cutting enlisted personnel by as much as 5,000 men and it may be possible that the slash will be reduced below that tentative figure. The saving made for each enlisted man is set roughly at $1,000.

RECEIVER NAMED FOR CLOSED BANK IN MORTON GROVE

Fred I. Gillick was appointed receiver for the Morton Grove Trust and Savings bank yesterday by State Auditor Oscar Nelson. Edwin D. Lawlor was named attorney for the receiver. Mr. Gillick is a director of the Park Ridge State bank and a real estate dealer in Park Ridge. The Morton Grove bank was closed on Sept. 10, 1931, with resources of $418,101, book value, and deposits of $332,198.

The First Trust and Savings bank of Hobart, Ind., did not open for business yesterday. Its closing leaves the Gary suburb without a bank.

An appropriation of $2,000 was voted for the prosecutor's office by the council of Lake county, Indiana, to assist the investigation of twenty closed banks in the county. The prosecutor had asked for $5,000 with which to hire additional assistants.

LATEST EFFORT TO SETTLE MOVIE DISPUTE FAILS

Owners Turn Down Union Compromise Terms.

The third effort to settle the controversy between the motion picture operators' union and members of the Independent Theater Owners' association, which has resulted in ten bombings of movie houses and numerous acts of terrorism during the last six weeks, failed yesterday. Representatives of both groups left their second conference in two days with Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton without agreeing on a single major point in dispute.

The stand taken by the owners, who refused peace offers of the union representatives, was that they wanted permanent relief or "until the depression is over," while all offers of the union provided merely temporary relief and left the entire question unsettled.

Terms Offered by Union.

The union offered to permit the use of only one union operator in a booth in 25 theaters, provided he was assisted by the owner; a reduction of 10 to 25 per cent in the union scale in certain other theaters, and a reduction of 1 to 10 per cent in others. They remained adamant in their demands that there be two men in the operating booth in each theater.

The demand of the union for two operators was the immediate cause of the lockout of union men and the importation of operators from other cities.

After representatives of both groups had failed to reach an agreement, Corporation Counsel Sexton said: "It looks like we have reached the end of our rope. I am sorry to see the conference break up like this."

"Every proposal has come from us," said Thomas J. Reynolds, president of the operators' union. "The theater owners will not meet us half way."

"Have we reached the end of the conference?" Mr. Sexton asked.

"We have as far as we are concerned," replied Howard Ellis, attorney for the theater owners.

Will Meet with Mayor.

After the conference had broken up Mr. Sexton announced that he would confer with Mayor Cermak this morning to see if anything else could be done. An earlier conference, which broke up at 1 o'clock yesterday morning without accomplishing anything in eight hours, was held on the request of Mayor Cermak.

"Something must be done about this bombing situation," Mayor Cermak said in arranging the conference. "It is getting serious. We spend all of our time boosting Chicago for the World's Fair and then in the morning we pick up the paper to read of another bombing. The two groups should settle their differences."

HELD ON ROBBERY CHARGE. Alex Sawicki, 25 years old, 4846 South Wood street, was held to the grand jury on a charge of assault to rob yesterday by Municipal Judge Samuel H. Trude. Mrs. Elizabeth Gavora, owner of a restaurant at 4657 West North avenue, was the complainant.

PRESTON FACES DEATH IN CHAIR TOMORROW NIGHT

The fate of John Preston, sentenced to die immediately after midnight tomorrow night, seemed sealed yesterday after the Illinois Supreme court refused to consider Preston's petition for a rehearing of the court's decision holding him sane.

Preston, convicted of the murder of Miss Agnes Johnston, a Chicago stenographer, will go to the electric chair in Joliet penitentiary tomorrow night unless Gov. Emmerson grants him clemency. A sister of Preston was in Springfield yesterday seeking an audience with the governor, but both he and the acting governor, Fred Sterling, were out of the city.

After Preston's conviction for the murder, which was committed two years ago, he was tried three times for insanity, the last resulting in his being found sane, a finding which was upheld in the decision which the Supreme court yesterday refused to reconsider.

Like an expensive gown, the effectiveness of Pebeco is not due to obvious things. It hasn't the frills and furbelows of sweet taste and foamy lather. Its tremendous effectiveness lies in the character of its ingredients—and in the cool lasting tang which is Pebeco's distinctive signature. 40% of Pebeco is an expensive ingredient not found in other tooth pastes—an ingredient put there because of its value in oral hygiene.

It is the thinkers who like Pebeco—the people who realize that irrelevant, candy-like tastes or extravagant claims in advertising cannot benefit the teeth—that it is what is in the tooth paste that counts.

LINDYS GIVE UP TOUR IN CHINA; START FOR HOME

Morrow Rites Today to Be Devoid of Pomp.

BULLETIN.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 7 (Wednesday).—(AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh announced today that in view of the death of Mrs. Lindbergh's father, United States Senator Dwight W. Morrow, they have abandoned plans to continue an air tour of China and will take a steamship for Seattle. Mrs. Lindbergh will sail from Shanghai tomorrow on the steamer Shanghai Maru for Kobe, Japan. From there they will proceed by train to Yokohama, Japan, where they will board the liner President Jefferson Oct. 10. They will reach Seattle Oct. 20.

New York, Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Senator Dwight W. Morrow will be laid to rest tomorrow, with as little pomp and ceremony as the world will allow in paying its last respects to a man who was one of its acknowledged leaders.

It is true that prominent men in all walks of life, representatives of this and foreign governments, will be among the mourners who gather in the First Presbyterian church of Englewood for the funeral services but there will be room for his less prominent neighbors as well.

Despite the importunings of many that the family permit the body to lie in state so that all and sundry might view the remains of New Jersey's junior senator, whose sudden death on Monday cut short the career of a world leader, his family ruled against it.

Only Friends Admitted.

Instead, his body rested in a simple coffin in the Georgian library of his home, amidst the books through which he was so fond of browsing and beside the chair in which he took his ease when the press of affairs allowed him to do so. Only his most intimate friends were admitted to the house. This, it was understood, was in deference to what the senator, who always refused to take himself "too darned seriously," would have wished. For the same reason it was decided that there should be no honorary pallbearers.

In Washington, where the flag over the senate office building flew at half staff, Vice President Charles Curtis announced that he would attend the funeral services with a committee of twenty-five of the diplomat-senator's colleagues of the upper house of congress. The Vice President will represent the nation, for President Hoover will be unable to attend the services because of important conferences of state that cannot now be postponed.

Sad News Sent Mrs. Lindbergh.

From all over the world came messages of sorrow addressed to Mrs. Morrow, who had all of her family with her except one daughter, Anne Morrow Lindbergh, who is in China with her husband, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. She was informed of the tragedy at home in a simple message, which read:

"Daddy died peacefully today; don't hurry home."

This message was delivered to Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh aboard the British cruiser Hermes in the Yangtse-kiang river.

President Hoover, who called Senator Morrow "that sort of American who makes our country great," expressed his sorrow personally to Mrs. Morrow over the telephone from Washington.

In Englewood, where the Morrows have lived for the last 26 years, Mayor Cornelius P. Kitchell proclaimeda day of mourning,

EDISON'S DEATH MATTER OF DAYS, PHYSICIAN SAYS

Grows Weaker as the End Approaches.

West Orange, N. J., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Although little change was noted today in the condition of Thomas A. Edison, Dr. Hubert S. Howe, who has been attending the 84 year old inventor through his long illness at his home in Llewellyn Park here, said that unmistakable signs made it clear that the end was only a matter of days.

Revealing that Mr. Edison was able to assimilate today only about half the quantity of food and fluid he took four days ago, Dr. Howe said this was "very bad," since he needed fluids, especially to counteract the advance of uremic poisoning. Mr. Edison is also suffering from Bright's disease, diabetes and a stomach disorder believed to be gastric ulcers.

The aged inventor no longer has sufficient strength to walk the few steps from his bed to his favorite armchair, but has to be carried when he desires to sit up. Dr. Howe characterized Mr. Edison's mental condition as "lethargic."

Harvey Firestone, who with Mr. Edison, Henry Ford and the late John Burroughs, naturalist, made up a celebrated group of cronies, called at the Edison home late this afternoon. Mr. Edison was asleep at the time and Mr. Firestone merely looked in at him for a minute from the doorway of his room. He chatted with Mrs. Edison and the members of the family for some time and was a dinner guest at the home of Charles Edison.

Mr. Edison ate his supper at his chair and visited for a few minutes with Mr. Firestone. He is now in bed and resting comfortably. Outside of the fact that he seems gradually to be losing strength there is little change apparent.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

Federal prohibition agents under Deputy Administrator A. E. Hamilton yesterday raided a large wildcat brewery on the fifth and sixth floors of a building at 1933 South Halsted street and seized equipment valued at $50,000. The first floor of the building is occupied by the Halsted Exchange National bank and the third and fourth floors by the Temptation Candy company.

JOHN GALLANIS.

John and Peter Gallanis and Peter Fefes, said to be the proprietors of the candy concern, were taken into custody by the raiders as the alleged owners of the brewery. On the fifth floor the government agents found 89 barrels of beer ready for shipment. On the sixth floor were 25,000 gallons of beer ready to be barreled and 50,000 gallons of mash, according to the agents. The brewery was reported to have a capacity of 1,000 barrels of beer a week.

BODY OF LIPTON STARTS TRIP TO GLASGOW GRAVE

SOUTHGATE, Middlesex, England, Oct. 6.—(AP)—Sir Thomas Lipton's body was taken from his country home, Osidge, tonight on the first stage of the journey to Glasgow, where it will be buried beside the grave of his mother.

The cortège set out after dark. A former valet and his wife and the members of the household staff, including two Singalese servants, John and Shamrock, were the only mourners.

Atop the simple coffin was a great anchor made of flowers from Sir Thomas' gardens. Another floral piece, a three-funneled ship, was sent by officers of the Leviathan, in which Sir Thomas was to have sailed to America last Saturday.

Rows of silent villagers paid tribute to the merchant and sportsman as the hearse passed slowly down the quiet streets. The coffin was taken to London to be placed in a Glasgow train.

REV. H. WELLMAN, CHICAGO PASTOR, DIES IN NORTH

The Rev. Horace Wellman, 44 years old, pastor of the St. Richard Roman Catholic church, died yesterday in a hospital at Rhinelander, Wis., as the result of a heart attack. The Rev. Father Wellman had been ill for six months and had gone to the northern Wisconsin woods in an effort to regain his health. He had been in the hospital for two weeks. His body will lie in state in the St. Richard church, beginning this afternoon, until the funeral, which will be arranged later. Father Wellman, who lived at 5039 South Kenneth avenue, is survived by his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Wellman, of Manistee, Mich., two brothers, J. L. Wellman, of Chicago, and Robert Wellman, of Detroit, and a sister, Mrs. H. P. Noud, of Prescott, Ariz.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 6.—(AP)—A suit to collect an asserted $375 debt of four years standing was filed today by Mary Philbin, film star, against Mrs. Joseph Laemle, sister of Carl Laemle, motion pitcher producer. Miss Philbin formerly was a leading player at the Laemle studios and a close friend of Mrs. Joseph Laemle.

T. H. Maytag Succumbs to Automobile Injuries

Newton, Ia., Oct. 6.—(AP)—T. H. Maytag, 67, washing machine manufacturer, died today of injuries suffered in an automobile accident near Grinnell Sept. 10. Attempts to save his life had been made by blood transfusions.

WOMAN KILLED AS CAR PLUNGES FROM VIADUCT

Husband Hurt; Auto Falls 50 Feet.

Mrs. Valentine R. Zillen, 60 years old, of Cary, Ill., was killed and her husband was possibly fatally injured early last evening when the automobile in which they were riding crashed through a fence on the Mannheim road viaduct over the Milwaukee railroad tracks just south of the village of Mannheim.

The car turned over and fell fifty feet to the tracks. Mrs. Zillen, who was driving, was killed instantly. The husband was taken to the Westlake hospital in Melrose Park.

Collision Causes Tragedy.

On their way home from a visit to Chicago, the Zillens had passed the center of the viaduct, which is half a mile long, when a small automobile coming from the north skidded on the wet boards and crashed into their car. This caused the Zillen car to swerve and break the weak boards on the east side of the bridge.

The driver of the second car was John Miller, an inspector for the Wieland Dairy company. He was held by the highway police for questioning.

John Mulay, 19 years old, 1337 Barry avenue, a huckster, was killed last evening when the truck in which he was riding was struck on the Newell avenue crossing, near the Northwest highway, by a Chicago and North Western suburban passenger train.

These two deaths and five others increased the Cook county auto toll since Jan. 1 to 949. Other victims were:

John W. Wilson, 75 years old, 903 Cornelia avenue, died at the John B. Murphy hospital last night of injuries suffered on Saturday when he was struck at Rokeby street and Cornelia avenue by an automobile whose driver failed to stop.

Raymond Petty, 33 years old, 1309 West Adams street, was fatally injured when a truck he was driving overturned as he swerved to avoid colliding with an automobile at Ashland avenue and Addison street. His death occurred at the John B. Murphy hospital. The driver of the automobile did not stop.

Mrs. Eva Schirs, 75 years old, 1925 Howe avenue, who died at the Evangelical Deaconess hospital of injuries suffered Monday, when she was struck in front of 1608 Willow street by a car driven by Andrew Jacobs, 2929 North Seeley avenue.

Frank Clark, 32 years old, 1706 West Jackson boulevard, who died at the county hospital of injuries suffered Monday, when he was struck at Ashland avenue and Adams street by a car driven by John Piza, 12431 South Western avenue.

Jerry Ryan, 30 years old, 3256 Maypole avenue, who died at the Peoples hospital of injuries sustained when the automobile in which he was riding crashed into a barrier at 16th and Clark streets.

The body of a man killed when he was struck at Western avenue and Adams street on Monday was identified yesterday as that of John Ryder, 50 years old, 2218 West Adams street.

Two Chicago Women Hurt.

Mrs. Mary Whitbeck of Detroit was killed and Mrs. Villa Boaz, 43 years old, 4743 Kenmore avenue, and Mrs. Hoover Holton, 59 years old, 343 North Woodward avenue, were seriously injured yesterday when the car in which they were riding collided with another on U. S. route No. 23 six miles north of Ann Arbor, Mich.

The Rev. Milton Baxter, 61 years old, of Joliet, an evangelist, was seriously injured when he was struck in Elgin by an automobile driven by Vincent Carlson, a high school student.

DEMOCRATS GIVEN REMOTE CHANCE AT MORROW VACANCY

Newark, N. J., Oct. 6.—(AP)—An interpretation placed on New Jersey's election law today by its author, D. Frederick Burnett of Newark, offered an opportunity to Democrats to seek Dwight Morrow's senate seat next winter.

It had been assumed Gov. Morgan F. Larson, a Republican, would name a member of his party to fill the vacancy until the 1932 general election.

Burnett maintained, however, that Larson's successor, who takes office in January, could call a special election within thirty days to fill the vacancy. In such a case, Larson's appointee would serve only for a part of the congressional session.

Observers saw the possibility of a special election only in case A. Harry Moore, Democratic candidate, should win the governorship.

STEPHEN FOSTER, ATTORNEY AND EX-JUDGE, DIES

Stephen Austin Foster, Chicago attorney and Municipal judge from 1906 to 1910, died yesterday after a lingering illness in his home at 596 Maple avenue, Winnetka. He was 65 years old.

Born in Derby Line, Vt., Mr. Foster was graduated from Tufts college in 1887. He acquired his legal preparation at Harvard, being graduated with cum laude honors in 1891. He was editor of the Harvard Law Review.

Mr. Foster married Almeda Hodges of Elmhurst, Ill., on June 27, 1899. He practiced law in Boston from 1891 to 1896, then came to Chicago. He became a partner in the law firm of Aldrich, Reed, Foster & Allen. He was an assistant attorney for the sanitary district in 1906. He had been a member of the law firm of Butler, Lamb, Foster & Pepe since 1910.

Mr. Foster had been a member of the American, Illinois, and Chicago Bar associations, a life member of the Art institute, and a member of the Field Museum of Natural History. His clubs included the Harvard, City, Union League, and Indian Hill.

BROTHER TO GET MOST OF ESTATE OF F. H. JONES

Frank Hatch Jones, prominent banker and lawyer, who died on Oct. 2 at the age of 77, left the most of a $1,000,000 estate to his brother, Fred B. Jones of the Parkway hotel, under terms of a will admitted to probate yesterday by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Henry Horner.

Minor bequests were made to charities, relatives and servants. The United Charities and the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross each will receive $25,000.

Left to the brother were a grandfather clock which has been in the Jones family since 1674 and a copy of the Independent Chronicle and Union Advertiser issued on Oct. 23, 1777, one of the first newspapers in Massachusetts, published by John Jones, an ancestor of the brothers.

WIND AND RAIN STORMS PUT END TO WARM SPELL

Lightning Bolt Kills Youth on Farm.

Chicago's summery weather of the last week was ended yesterday by a series of severe local thunderstorms in various parts of the city. The storms caused the temperature to drop, and Forecaster C. A. Donnel predicted moderate temperatures today, with a probability of showers.

The mercury reached a high point of 73 degrees at 2 o'clock yesterday, just before the storms broke. At 4 o'clock it had dropped to 71 degrees, and it continued its decline through the night. The wind will shift from a southerly direction to northwest by this evening.

Joseph Cygas, 17 years old, 12052 Indiana avenue, was killed by lightning as he stood in a barn on the farm of his employer, Richard Bedries, one mile east of Torrence on the Lincoln highway. He had taken refuge from the rain and was leaning against a truck in the barn when the bolt struck the roof and passed down, electrocuting him.

One of the storms, with a severe wind and a deluge of rain and hail, struck in the vicinity of the Barnard school, 104th and Charles streets, just as classes were about to be dismissed for the day.

R. A. Bixler, the principal, held the children in the school until the storm had passed. The wind uprooted several large trees, causing one of them to crash through the top of a parked automobile. The streets were littered with broken branches. Several windows were broken in the school and nearby buildings by the hail. Several streets running under viaducts were flooded.

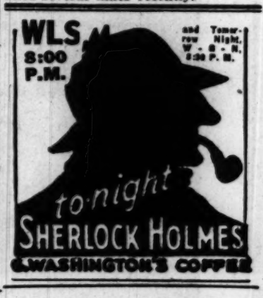
Thunderstorms, with heavy rainfall, were reported from Evanston and the western part of Chicago, but property damage there was slight, due to the absence of high winds.

CAFE MAN SLAIN; HIS WIFE AND 2 DAUGHTERS HELD

Anton Jeski, 43 years old, owner of a restaurant at 2279 Archer avenue with living quarters in the rear, was fatally stabbed last night in his home under circumstances puzzling to the police. His wife, Anna, 43 years old, is being held with her two daughters, Estella, 19 years old, and Bernice, 18 years old.

The Deering street police first learned of the death when they were called by the Holy Cross hospital where Jeski was taken. Mrs. Jeski said that she was in bed early in the evening when her husband came home. He carried a butcher knife, she said, and cut her slightly in her side. She ran from the house and returned to find him groaning on the floor, stabbed in the body, she said. Before he died, however, Jeski accused his wife of stabbing him. This she denied.

Sergt. Charles Beatty said he learned Jeski and his wife had quarreled several times recently.



POLICE KILLER SEIZED 3 YEARS AFTER ESCAPE

CRIMINAL COURT.

Andrew George and Henry Ackay, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years each in the penitentiary by Judge Walter T. Stanton.

John Dempsey, youthful police killer under a 50 year sentence for murder, who escaped from a cell adjoining Chief Justice John J. Sullivan's Criminal court on Oct. 26, 1928, was found yesterday in Las Vegas, N. M.

United States Marshal Joseph Tondre telegraphed the authorities here that Frank Walsh, 24 years old, serving a 90 days sentence in the county jail there for liquor law violation, had been fully identified as the fugitive Dempsey.

Authorities at the Joliet penitentiary announced that Dempsey would be brought directly to the prison to serve his murder sentence.

A writ of habeas corpus taken out by the state in October of 1928 was used to bring Dempsey from the penitentiary to testify in behalf of two of his bandit pals. He had been sentenced in July to serve the 50 years for the murder of Policeman William O'Connor by Judge Joseph David.

Bailiff Andrew J. Vavrik and Willie Johnson, Negro elevator operator, were discharged after the escape. Some one had either left the door of Dempsey's cell open or had left the key in it. He escaped from the Criminal courts building without being seen by any one.

Dempsey's sweetheart, Lea Howard, at that time 22 years old, was called in for questioning after the escape, but declared that she knew nothing about it. This girl had previously been charged with being one of the "brains" of Dempsey's bandit gang.

Widow Gets Estate of Vladimir Spatny, Editor

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS "BACK SEAT" DRIVING

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 6.—(AP)—"Back seat" driving was upheld by the state Supreme court today. The court, reversing a decision of the Pocahontas County court which awarded damages to E. C. Herold for injuries suffered while riding with C. C. Clendennen, held that, although the driver of an automobile owes to his guest "reasonable care for his safety," the guest "must exercise ordinary care for his own safety, and when he knows the driver is not taking proper precautions it becomes the duty of the guest to remonstrate."

Have itching scalp

Goodbye DANDRUFF

If your scalp burns and itches, if your hair comes out, if you have loose dandruff, give Listerine a trial. If you do not see improvement in ten days you will be an exception. Just douse it on the scalp full strength and massage vigorously. Keep the treatment up systematically. Note how it cleans and heals the scalp, and gets rid of those telltale flakes.

If infection is present on the surface of the skin, Listerine attacks it. A powerful germicide, it kills bacteria in 15 seconds, the fastest killing time accurately recorded by science.

Listerine helps to dissolve oily crusts and quickly removes them, as well as horny scales. And Listerine quickly relieves that burning, itching sensation. It soothes inflamed or irritated areas of the scalp.

If scalp is excessively dry, a little olive oil may be used in connection with the Listerine shampoo, or independent of it. The oil aids in dissolving crusts and scales and keeps hair from drying out. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

PAIR ARRESTED AS LOAN SHARKS IN OFFICE RAID

Borrower Says He Paid Over $225 to Get $125.

A squad from the racket bureau of the state's attorney's office yesterday raided two brokerage and loan offices in a building at 2220 South Michigan avenue and arrested two men on charges of violation of the small loan act. The raid was part of the drive of the last month to close all loan offices charging an excessive rate of interest.

The men arrested, both of whom were released on $200 cash bonds, were Max Lewison, operating an auto loan agency at 2220 South Michigan avenue, and J. C. Levy, manager of the Mortgage Loan Securities company at 2226 South Michigan avenue. Both will be arraigned this morning before Municipal Judge Matthew Hartigan.

Complaints were signed by Charles W. Kirchner, 3355 South Michigan avenue, and two others. Warrants were issued by Judge Hartigan.

His Story of Loan.

Kirchner said that on July 6 he borrowed $125 from Lewison, placing a mortgage on his automobile. For the $125 he signed ten notes of $18.13 each, to be paid monthly. Before he obtained the money he then paid Levy 7 per cent interest on the $181.30, he asserted.

After one payment he defaulted and his automobile was confiscated. To release the automobile he was then forced to pay $206.90 additonal and a penalty of $3.50, making total payments of $227.58 for the use of $125 for three months, he charged, in addition to the 7 per cent interest paid to Levy.

According to Assistant State's Attorneys Donald Thompson and Edwin Duffey, Lewison and Levy are working as partners with Lewison acting as agent for the Mortgage Loan Securities company. Neither man is licensed as a small loan broker, although Lewison has a license as a real estate broker, according to the prosecutors.

Quizzed on Loan Deals.

Questioned by the prosecutors, both contended that no license was needed in their business. Lewison said he did not loan any money, but merely acted as an agent for the borrower and not for the lender, and was entitled to charge a commission. Levy asserted that he merely charged the legal rate of 7 per cent on the total sum paid to Lewison and knew nothing of the amount Lewison turned over to the borrower.

As a result of the state's attorney's drive against loan sharks 20 companies have applied to the department of trade and commerce for licenses as small loan brokers. The license permits them to charge an interest of 3 per cent a month. One of the applicants was John R. Knoblock, one of the first brokers to be arrested, and who, the prosecutors charged, extorted interest of 240 per cent a year. Knoblock's case was continued yesterday in the jury court to Oct. 13.

Holdup Suspect Is Shot by Englewood Policeman

Policeman Anthony Scheid of the Englewood station shot and possibly fatally wounded a youth about 18 years old who failed to obey a command to halt near 74th street and Racine avenue early today. Scheid was driving to his home at 1309 West 73th street when he saw some one running and heard a cry of "stickup." He fired twice in the air before shooting at the fugitive. At the Englewood hospital it was reported the wounded youth was unconscious. There were no marks of identification in his pockets.

Offices of Alleged Racket Raided as Sequel to Killing

Detectives from the racket bureau of the state's attorney's office raided the offices of the United Boiler company at 35 East Wacker drive yesterday and seized all the records, which are to be audited. David Street, 829 Eastwood avenue, president of the concern, was held on two charges of operating a confidence game, and will be arraigned today in Felony court.

DONALD THOMPSON.

The attention of the prosecutor's office was directed to the affairs of the company last Sunday when August Thonka, 44 years old, 1945 Warren avenue, shot and killed Robin Ross, secretary and treasurer of the company, claiming he had been victimized. He was induced to invest $1,000 in the United Broiler company on promises he would receive dividends of $30 a month and would be given a job paying $30 to $75 a week, and he couldn't even get a couple of chickens for his Sunday dinner in return, he told the police while he waited, pistol in hand, for their arrival after the shooting.

Assistant State's Attorneys Donald Thompson and Edwin Duffey made an investigation on Monday. They found that the company was advertising in the newspapers in the "help wanted" columns offering "$150 a month with a slight investment," they stated. Applicants were asked to deposit $300 or $1,000, and told they would be given equipment for raising chickens, which were to be turned over to the company and sold for the credit of the investor, the prosecutors said.

Thonka claimed he had never received anything in return for his $1,000 investment and asked for the two chickens only because he had no food in his home and no money with which to buy anything to eat. Two other complainants were located by the assistant state's attorneys.

William Dombrowski, 515 North Claremont avenue, and William Schroeder, 3714 Wilton avenue, told of having "invested" with the chicken company under promises of a job and dividends and of futile efforts to get anything in return or to get their money back.

Sergts. Michael Ahern, Joseph Young, and Edward Powers were sent to the offices with instructions to bring back all persons and records found there. Two employés, Harris A. Johnson, 244 Gage road, Riverside, and Horace C. Eckels, 445 Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park, were taken to the racket bureau and were released after questioning. Dombrowski and Schroeder signed complaints against Street.

WIEBOLDT STORES INCREASE THEIR EMPLOYES BY 600

An increase of 600 employés within the last three weeks was announced yesterday by the Wieboldt stores. Elmer Wieboldt asserted that the 20 per cent increase over the usual number of 3,000 employés would be maintained until after the Christmas season, at least, and if possible, permanently.

"The increase has been spread through all the departments of our five stores," said C. G. Hobart, director of services. "We have been enabled to increase our force by increased advertising, pushing sales, and in general making the stores more attractive. An increased volume of business thus has helped us to create more jobs."

The increase has meant the employment of 300 additional sales persons, Mr. Hobart said. The remainder of the extra employés have been engaged in other departments.

MURDER TRIAL DRAGS ON.

Paxton, Ill., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—In the trial of Earl B. Frost of Texarkana, Ark., charged with the murder of George Yeater of Malta, Mont., in Ford county Circuit court, the time today was consumed by the defense in presenting evidence.

POLICEMAN FIRES SHOTS IN SEIZING BANK SWINDLER

Captures Ex-Convict as Patrons Look On.

Two shots fired by a bank policeman at an ex-convict, who had been detected in an attempt to realize on a stolen check, caused excitement yesterday among the patrons in the Aetna State bank, 2375 Lincoln avenue.

SYLVESTER KEITH

The policeman, James Rockford, pursued the man from the bank and overpowered him outside, at the busy intersection of Fullerton and Lincoln avenues and Halsted street. The prisoner was Sylvester Keith, 25 years old, discharged a few months ago from the Leavenworth federal penitentiary after serving a five year sentence for robbing letter boxes.

A week ago Keith presented letters identifying himself as Louis J. Timm, 516 Roscoe street, and deposited a $250 check drawn to Timm. He subsequently withdrew some of the money, but when he returned to cash a second counter check yesterday his fraud had been discovered and Joseph P. Engeln, teller, signaled Rockford to seize him.

Two Couples Held Up.

Chancellor Dougall, 1634 Lincoln avenue, Evanston, and George A. Fitzsimons, 650 Hinman avenue, Evanston, brokers, were held up by five men early yesterday as they returned to the Dougall home with their wives after attending a loop theater. The robbers took currency, wraps, and jewelry of a total value of $800 from them.

Two jocund robbers who had purchased shirts from him last week yesterday robbed Edward Natowski of $40 in his clothing store at 4845 South Ashland avenue.

"We can't spend the money unless we make it," one of the pair told him. "Whose money do you suppose we used to buy the shirts?"

Insurance Office Robbed.

Two youthful bandits held up William T. O'Rourke, manager, and four young women employés in the branch of the Prudential Life Insurance company at 2402 Blaine place yesterday and took $1,000 from the safe.

John Jackowski, butcher at 2609 Cortez street, lost $135 yesterday to two bandits who locked him in his ice box before leaving. Another pair of bandits took $53 in a holdup of the Grogan brothers' butcher shop at 6439 South Kedzie avenue. Three men and a young woman clerk were locked in a coal bin by robbers who took $140 in a holdup of the Loblaw grocery at 8931 Loomis street.

Sheriff Asks Report on Overcrowding in Jail

Sheriff Meyering yesterday ordered Warden David Moneypenny of the county jail to submit a report to him on crowded conditions in the jail, mentioned in its regular report by the September grand jury. The jury found 1,286 prisoners in the jail, which was built for a maximum of 1,202. The warden's report will be presented to the county board with a recommendation that an addition be built to the jail whenever that becomes possible.

GIRL'S HEARING DEFERRED.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

You purchase shoes, fruit and candy. You call for cigarettes.

It's like this: WHEN YOU GO TO BUY A PAIR OF SHOES, you examine the leather, the way the shoes are made, their shape. You try them to see if they fit—if they satisfy you.

Why not follow the same method in purchasing your cigarettes? You want cigarettes that are made from the very best tobacco—mild, ripe, sweet. You want them made right. You want them free from harshness and bite and "pinches." In other words, you want cigarettes that satisfy you.

WHEN YOU GO TO BUY FRUIT—oranges, grapefruit, apples—you want ripe fruit, fruit that has matured before being taken from the tree; fruit that has been handled right and packed right; fruit that's the same throughout—not green on one side and ripe on the other.

Why not apply the same test in purchasing your cigarettes? You want cigarettes made from tobaccos handled right by the farmer—ripened, sweetened in the sun and cured right. You want cigarettes that taste the same, day in and day out. You want them pleasing in taste—mild and satisfying.

WHEN YOU BUY CANDY, you want to know, above all things, that it is pure. Is it real candy or are there a lot of other things mixed in with it? And you want it fresh. You want it freshly made and you want it so packed as to reach you just as it was when it was made.

Why not apply the same test when you buy your cigarettes? You want a cigarette that's pure; for purity counts in cigarettes just as it does in candy. Then again, you want a cigarette that's just as fresh as when it was made.

Now, if you apply to cigarettes all the tests that you apply in buying shoes and fruit and candy you will purchase CHESTERFIELD like millions of other smokers.

First, because tobacco men will tell you that in Turkey, Kentucky, Georgia, the Carolinas, Virginia, and Maryland, only the mildest, ripest tobacco is bought for CHESTERFIELD—tobacco cured by the sun's pure rays, by the farmers' slow-burning ovens, and finally by great high-pressure steam drying machines. In the tobacco regions where they grow tobacco and know tobacco, CHESTERFIELD is usually the leading seller.

Second, because the carefully selected CHESTERFIELD tobacco leaves are blended and cross-blended. This exclusive CHESTERFIELD blending method is not just mixing together different tobaccos—it is mixing them in such a way as to bring out the finer qualities of each. It's like producing a new and better type of tobacco—tobacco with greater mildness, more smoothness, much better taste.

Third, because the cigarette paper is selected with the same care. CHESTERFIELD paper is the purest, the best that money can buy. Then the cigarettes are made and packed by machinery in clean, sanitary factories. And the moisture-proof, attractive package—free from heavy inks or inky odor—comes to you just as if you passed the factory in the morning and took your CHESTERFIELDS from the machine.

Good . . . they've got to be good.

CHEVROLET

By actual road performance, week after week, month after month—the six-cylinder Chevrolet has proved its right to be called America's most economical truck. Owners have found that Chevrolet trucks costs less for gas and oil, less for upkeep and less for service than any other truck—regardless of the number of cylinders. And price-comparison will show that this big, sturdy Chevrolet Six is one of the lowest-priced trucks you can buy.

Today, any truck user can apply this economy to his own particular work. The current Chevrolet commercial line covers practically every delivery and hauling need. Twenty-five different models. Half-ton and 1½-ton pay-load capacities. Three wheelbase lengths. A wide variety of Chevrolet-designed and Chevrolet-built bodies. Just name the type of truck you need—and you will very likely find it in this all-inclusive Chevrolet display.

Each Chevrolet truck has the speed, flexibility and pulling ability of a 50-horsepower six-cylinder engine—25% more powerful than any other engine in a truck priced so low. Maximum load-capacity is assured by unusually large bodies, supported by long rigid frames and long parallel-mounted springs. And Chevrolet has built every part of its chassis and bodies sturdily and well, using fine materials and following sound principles of design.

Now is the time to settle the question, as to which truck to buy in the low-price field. Look over the line of 25 models on this page, and pick out the body-type that does your work best. Note the very low price at which it sells. Consider the point that hundreds of the nation's biggest businesses are turning to Chevrolet for lowest transportation cost. Then see your Chevrolet dealer for a demonstration and full information about this great American truck value.

Prices at Bottom, Say Makers.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Prices of furniture and other home furnishings, which have been dropping almost steadily since the peak of post-war inflation in 1920, have reached a point beyond which it is impossible for them to go, a survey of the furniture industry from both the wholesale and retail angles indicates. In many cases furniture is being sold by manufacturers at figures below the cost of production, and by retailers at a very small markup from the wholesale price, the survey shows.

Results of a study of prices within the industry were announced yesterday by the American Furniture Mart, 666 Lake Shore drive, marketing center for furniture, at which more than 700 manufacturers maintain permanent exhibits. A questionnaire was sent to these companies by the Mart, and the answers tabulated. Retail prices are, of course, dependent upon the price the retailer pays the manufacturer.

No Further Reductions.

Thirty-three per cent see no possibility of further reductions in the wholesale prices of their products.

Thirty-five per cent believe that, in the near future, the price trend will be upward.

Seven per cent estimate that, in their own particular fields and if business generally does not improve, prices may go slightly lower.

In other words, the survey indicates that, for practically all items in the home furnishings field, prices have reached the lowest levels possible. When there is a price change, the odds are better than 5 to 1 that it will be upward.

What Manufacturers Say.

Excerpts from the statements of leading manufacturers, sent with their letters to the Furniture Mart and giving the opinions of the heads of the respective companies, follow:

"It is strongly our opinion that prices will advance, and, we believe, the fall."

"Lumber is now increasing, which means that prices will have to advance. We are inclined to think that there will be considerable increases at the next market." [The "next market" is the national style show to be held at the Furniture Mart in January.]

"I find that the price of furniture, like almost everything else being manufactured today, has reached the absolute bottom. We anticipate a decided improvement in prices."

"Prices on furniture and kindred articles will have to advance."

"We are determined that our prices shall not be further reduced."

"Prices are at present below the cost of production. We sincerely believe that the next few months will see a very decided upward trend."

"We believe that prices should show an increase of from 10 to 15 per cent within the next six months."

"You will note that our products will be increased in price at their next showing at the Furniture Mart next January."

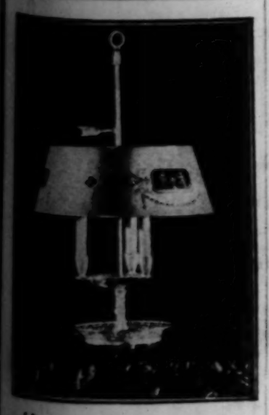
"We are convinced that there must be an advance in price and that very shortly."

Anything May Happen.

"In obtaining this information, we asked the frank opinions of the heads of the furniture companies exhibiting in the Chicago market," V. L. Alward, president of the Furniture Mart, explained. "There is nothing ironclad in the results, for unforeseen developments may bring changes that were not anticipated. However, the overwhelming response to the effect that furniture cannot be produced and sold at any lower level seems to me to indicate that we are now at the bottom of the price swing.

"There is good reason to think that by January, when the next wholesale exhibition is held here, retailers will find that prices, as a whole, are higher than at the last market in June."

A READING LAMP



Ideal for the desk or the reading table is this attractive three light metallic lamp with its robin's egg blue metal shade and its unusual slender lamp piece. It gives an excellent light.

"LAST WORD" IN THE '80S

The "reception room," an important room in all houses in the eighties, is shown here as it appeared in an old Michigan avenue mansion the interior of which was arranged by George F. Clingman. The furniture, which he designed, was carved by hand and covered with powdered gold. The wall and ceiling designs were made by Mr. Clingman and painted by hand. The long draperies were embroidered by hand and made to order. In the corner is the curio cabinet which was in all homes of elegance in the eighties.

Don't Make Fun of the Gay Nineties; They Had Style

Fashions in furniture in the gay nineties, the sombre eighties and the stiff seventies have been maligned, and persons who make fun of those periods simply don't know what they're talking about, in the opinion of George F. Clingman, of 7210 Euclid avenue. Mr. Clingman, an executive in one of Chicago's largest furniture stores, has been dealing with furniture continuously since 1879 in Chicago.

"In the Metropolitan museum they have a room supposed to be typical of the gay nineties," Mr. Clingman said. "They make the furniture look ridiculous and grotesque. Now they may have found a room that looked like that. But there are rooms in Chicago today that I designed in the eighties which still are untouched, and still beautiful.

They Had Better Taste.

"People in the eighties and the nineties had better taste than they have today—that is, the educated people of that time had. For that matter, in the nineties I made furniture of the Empire period. Today Empire is becoming popular again.

"Everything moves in cycles," he said, "and there is nothing new under the heavens."

Mr. Clingman was born in Chicago in a home at Wabash avenue and 16th street, then outside of the city limits. His mother had come to Chicago in 1835, thereafter moving with her parents to Half Day, where the inhabitants still were visited by Indians. When he was a young man Mr. Clingman originated the idea of designing the whole of the interior of a home and furnishing it throughout.

They Were Furniture Stores.

At that time furniture stores sold only furniture. Draperies and carpets were had at carpet stores and fixtures at another. He conceived the idea of combining services to the families of Chicago, thus becoming one of the first "decorators." Employed in 1885 by the store with which he still is connected, he designed rooms, designed the furniture which was made by hand in the store, and "sublet" his orders for rugs, draperies, etc., choosing the materials himself.

"Back in the eighties, people spent more money on their homes than they do today, and had better homes, too," he said with a good deal of energy when interviewed. "It was nothing for them to pay $8,000 or $10,000 for a dining room suite made to order in Chippendale or Sheraton style.

Silk Damask on Walls.

"On their walls they had the finest of silk damasks, brocades and sometimes tapestries. On their floors they had the best of Aubusson carpets. Sometimes they had the less valuable Axminster carpets, just as they do now. The seats and backs of the fine French chairs we made were covered with Aubussen tapestries commonly costing $200, and many a long sofa I've designed has sold for $2,500.

"These French styles, the best of Louis XIV., XV., and XVI., were carved by hand by us. Nothing ever was glued on as some of the carvings are today. The frames we covered with double powdered gold, real gold, which sold for $16 an ounce. Sometimes golf leaf was used, but in the fine pieces, never anything but the genuine. Then the ornaments were burnished.

The Fashionable South Side.

"They were the gay nineties. Life in Chicago was most pleasant then. The west side had been the fashionable side, but in the nineties, Michigan avenue, from 11th street to 42d, was the place where every one of any social pretensions wanted to live. And along that street, from the Willoughby house at 11th and Michigan, on out at least two or three in every block were my houses. That is, I designed their furniture and decorations.

"The Laflin house was one of the finest, and furniture I made still is being used by their family. A desk of Cuban mahogany, I remember, cost $3,000. Then there was the W. R. Linn home—Mrs. Billy Linn. She entertained a lot. And I did the John Dupee house, and, the home of V. A. Turner on the north side, and the Allerton home at 18th and Prairie.

You Knew Your Neighbors.

"Every one had a good time in Chicago then. And they all knew each other. It wasn't like it is now, when you may have a gangster or bootlegger living next door to you for all you know.

"In the Hill home I had the furniture in the Romanesque style, which was introduced in Boston by the great architect, Richardson. Mrs. Edward E. Ayer, whose house on the corner of Banks and North State street I furnished 40 years ago, is still living there with the furniture just as I had it. It is beautiful. There is the clock of oak, a Spanish type with wrought iron in roses and leaves, for which she paid $2,000.

And the Seaverns House.

"In 1893 I furnished the George A. Seaverns house, which stands intact today. The silk on the wall was made to order. At one time I had 25 girls under me working on embroideries on lovely velvets for Chicago families.

"We used rich mahogany in those days. Wood is now seasoned in a 12 day process and they try to tell me it is better than the wood we used in the old days. I claim that the old process made furniture the equal of which has never been seen since. Not a piece of wood was used until it had lain out in the yard on sticks for two years. Then we 'slow kilned' it for three months, then dried it for several more. After each cutting down of the wood it was dried again."

As for the Eastlake furniture, which was used when he was a young man, making its appearance in 1879, it later deteriorated in its cheap reproductions and was ugly, but originally was handsome, Mr. Clingman claims. Designed by Sir Robert Locke Eastlake, an Englishman, it had more of the Gothic feeling in it than the mission furniture which followed it had.

In Georgian Mood

This beautiful ivory and gold lamp has two rams' heads for decoration. The ram's head was a favorite motif of eighteenth century designers and often appears on furniture and on buildings of that period. This lamp is ideal, therefore, as an accessory to eighteenth century English furniture.

PROUD OF THAT RADIO? WELL, IT'S WORTH IT

Its Cabinet Alone Is a Treasure.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

For an industry that was born almost coincidental with the signing of the armistice, radio should be permitted to point with pride. This infant of the industrial world has been responsible in the few intervening years for the addition of the only one among the indispensables of modern household furnishings for which there never has been a counterpart. The reference is, naturally, to the radio cabinet.

By 1928, less than a decade after the guns in France had ceased to thunder, the radio cabinet had completed its evolution and was recognized as a distinct unit from both the esthetic and the utilitarian angles. Three years of purchasing since then have served to clarify the popular opinion of styles and to indicate pretty plainly what people want when they spend their money for such a piece of furniture.

Remember the Early Sets.

Remember how, back in those days when the boys were coming home from the war, the man of the house tinkered night after night with a murky and mystifying conglomeration of dry batteries, lengths of wire, outside aerials, and a queer little dingus with a movable metal arm a little longer than a darning needle?

That stage marked the introduction of the world in general to the wonders of the wireless, with which scientists had been toiling for years. It was quickly followed by the first attempt at anything resembling a radio cabinet. This comprised a cheap box for the "innards" of the set, with dials on the front which were turned to tune in the stations. The batteries, most unsightly and irritating to the housekeeper of the family, remained outside, yet, in view of the earlier makeshift, it seem marvelous.

Then the Table Set.

Next came a table set which—wonder of wonders—contained not only space for the batteries, but a loud speaker reposing thereon. Once in a while the loudspeaker got knocked off, and there was always the tinkering with the batteries to keep up, or your radio was liable to develop chronic dyspepsia or something, and go on the sick list.

Ultimate perfection seemed to have been reached when some genius of the trade introduced a fairly presentable cabinet which placed all the various parts and portions of the mechanics under cover, including the loud speaker. These early efforts were for the most part inclined to be of generous proportions, due to the introduction about this time of the loop aerial, which necessitated room in which to turn it about to tune in on the growing number of broadcasting stations.

Good-by to Batteries.

Then came the innovation of A-C sets—the type that received its power by plugging into an electric light socket in the wall, and which banished once and for all the messy batteries. The immediate result of this major improvement was the dwindling in size of the cabinet, and the notably better artistry and craftsmanship in its creation.

Furniture designers began to let their imaginations wander in the patterns they conceived or adapted for sheltering the better sets. Trick styles came on the market in the form of desks, secretaries, tables, commodes, highboys and lowboys. Some of the models were of surpassing beauty and admirable material. Some were not.

Must Look Like a Radio.

Since 1928, experiments in the public taste have convinced furniture and music dealers that what the average buyer wants in a radio cabinet is just that. A cabinet, for his radio set, which wont be mistaken for any other piece of furniture. Which is lower and narrower than those of a couple of years back, which is just as good but far less expensive, because the manufacturers have learned how to build them at nominal cost.

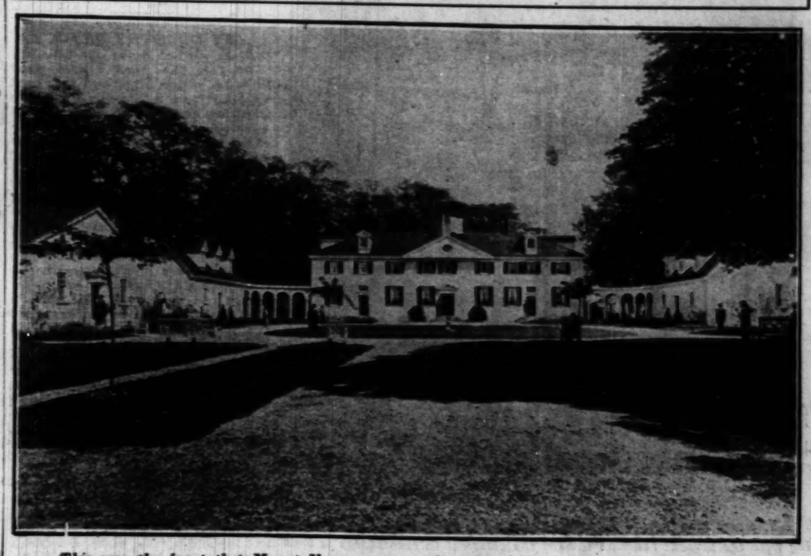
Walnut is used almost exclusively in the cabinet the ordinary purchaser wants for his home. It is dark and durable, and looks well with any collection of furniture. The style is restrained to the point of being stereotyped, comprising a cabinet with sliding or swinging doors concealing the dials, a panel on either side, and narrow, spooled or straight legs.

And the Baby of the Family.

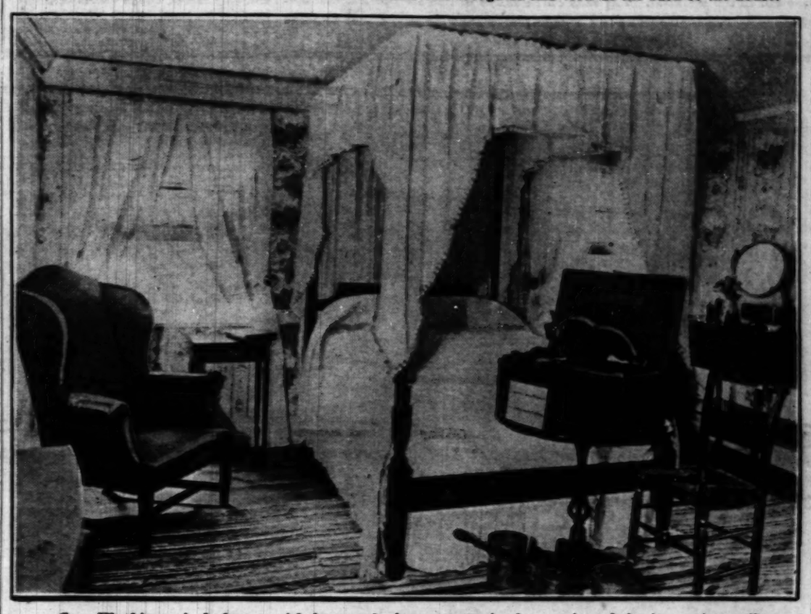
There is also the "midget" set, designed for use in small quarters, which is satisfactory for many purposes but has its necessary limitations. The "baffle area," the radio technician will explain, is too small in these sets to reproduce the highest and the lowest notes. By which he means, that in a larger set, the space around the loud speaker is sufficient to permit the clear reception of these tones, which otherwise, not having room for their vibrations to emerge clearly, will be "choked."

"People today are conventional minded about radio cabinets," one dealer said. "They come in and look at the expensive and beautiful sets designed as tables or secretaries. Yes, they're lovely,' they say, and pass them by to pick out a cabinet nobody could mistake. Only the wealthy purchase the unusual designs, and even then, not often enough to make them profitable."

VIEWS OF MOUNT VERNON REPLICA



This was the front that Mount Vernon presented to the visitors of the Paris Colonial exposition. Those who have seen the real building on the Potomac will recognize this view as the back of the house.



Gen. Washington's bedroom with its stately four poster, its large wing chair, its quaint wallpaper, and simple rag rug is a vivid reminder of our first President.

A long Duncan Phyfe table extends down the center of the state dining room in the Mount Vernon replica. Hepplewhite armchairs and sofa are also used in this room.

EARLY AMERICAN JUSTLY POPULAR

The return to early American design in house furnishings has proved itself to be more than a passing fashion. Not many years ago the persons interested in period furnishings were few. Today no one who has a home to furnish can remain unconscious of our national traditions in the art of furniture design.

There are of course furniture styles other than the American, but with the exception of some English designs they have never gained so strong a hold in the American home. The tradition which came to light in England and America in the seventeenth century and which appeared in full flower during the eighteenth and early part of the nineteenth centuries represented an element which makes its continuation in the twentieth century American home peculiarly suitable.

With the 18th century came the appearance of a powerful middle class, and with the middle class came the home. When the middle class became sufficiently numerous and important, its traditions had their profound effect on style. These traditions were among the most potent forces in the development of the magnificent decorative tradition of the 18th century in England and America.

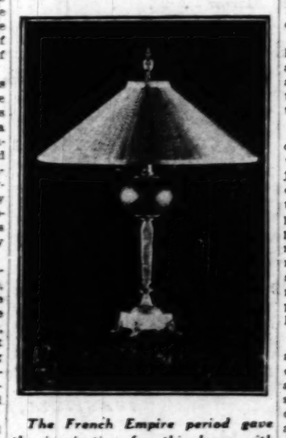
Eighteenth century France still had its court which set the styles for the nation, and the continent of Europe followed France. England and America were likewise influenced by France, but in these countries the modern middle class tradition was too strong to allow complete domination by French palatial manners.

Ideals are not dead and the furniture is being revived. Men are at work today recovering the old designs and building furniture which in every significant detail reproduces the magnificently successful development of our colonial and early federal days.

The fine solid quality, the honesty of hand workmanship, the choice woods and the sturdy strength of structure are all a part of the great old tradition that is being revived even more than the individual forms.

The forms can be cheapened. They can be built of inferior woods. Short, weak dowels can replace the hand joined mortise and tenon. That, however, is imitation and not reproduction. If Queen Anne chairs or Chippendale chairs are too expensive, the problem is not solved by making them more cheaply, less carefully, of poorer materials. As much as the work is skimped in manufacture, by just so much is the product foreign to the precious tradition of the honest, solid home.

There are other fine forms which are less expensive—the ladder backs of New England and Pennsylvania and the superb Windsors. These are simpler. They have not the carving of the Chippendale, but they are solid and fine and honest. In good reproductions they are homely and effective. A good reproduction, however simple, means something that a cheapened imitation can never attain. And that meaning is, in essence, American.



The French Empire period gave the inspiration for this lamp with its long, graceful lines. The shade is gold taffeta and the base is an amber glass ball combined with white glass and marble.

PARIS VISITORS VIEW OLD HOME OF WASHINGTON

Work Is Tribute to U. S. Manufacturers.

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

Stately and white, rising in patrician simplicity from its green lawns, looking exactly like the home of Washington's day, Mount Vernon was re-created, piece by piece, for the Paris Colonial Exposition. It was thought fitting that as our contribution to this great exhibition on French soil we should reconstruct something as intimate and personal, and at the same time as dignified and elegant, as the home of our first President and friend of Gen. De Lafayette.

Americans in streams viewed this replica of Mount Vernon and were astonished to see how perfectly, to the most minute detail, every feature of the furnishings was carried out. And the French themselves take their friends there because it is an outstanding spectacle of the exposition.

Parisians Are Surprised.

Many modern Parisians expressed surprise when they saw the quiet refinement and exquisite character of the interior decoration of Mount Vernon. They had no idea that anything so perfect had been achieved in America in the eighteenth century. The costly and beautiful furniture, the broad sweep of the rooms, the lofty ceilings, the whole atmosphere of the place strikes a keynote of aristocracy, of nobility that they had not realized existed in our new country.

One American visitor said, "We chose exactly the right thing when we put up Mount Vernon in the Paris exposition. Too often the French see us as a nation of the nouveau riche, as people who indulge in the material joys of this life to the exclusion of the mental and spiritual. Mount Vernon is the epitome of the ideals our forefathers lived and died for, and it is the real essence of our country."

Many Americans who did not see the Mount Vernon replica have wondered if it was a miniature copy of the original. It is not a small scale reproduction; it is the real thing. It is, as nearly as was physically possible to make it so, the exact duplicate in size and in furnishings of the lovely structure on the Potomac.

A descendant of George Washington chose the furniture which our government put in the house. It is, in every respect, either copies of the original pieces or articles very closely resembling them, and in entirety represents the combined work of Grand Rapids furniture companies.

Aids Owners of Colonial Houses.

Any one who wants to know the most appropriate furniture for a colonial house need look no farther than this, for in the rooms of the Mount Vernon replica are the finest examples of Hepplewhite and Sheraton, of Chippendale and of the Empire period, and all of them may be purchased in Grand Rapids and in Chicago. For that reason the house furnishes an interesting study that will well repay the time spent on it.

The entrance hall, characteristic of the period, is wide and lofty, arched doorways on either side leading to the ground floor rooms of the house and a broad staircase ascending to the second floor. On the walls are interesting old prints. The woodwork is painted white and the walls are gray. Rag carpets and linoleum cover the floor. Gen. Washington's sword and scabbard hang here, and there is a key to the Bastille on display. A Sheraton console table is placed opposite a Sheraton drop leaf table on which a huge bowl of flowers is kept. Chairs are Empire with curving arms. A glimpse of a tall grandfather clock is had on the landing of the stairs.

One of the rooms that has attracted the most interest of visitors to the exposition is the state dining room. On one side are three long windows in a group with square pediments and Adam detail on the columns. They are hung with gorgeous gold draperies, looped back and tied with heavy cord. Before the windows is a Hepplewhite sofa of great simplicity and beauty like those which we prize as the work of Samuel McIntyre of Salem.

Duncan Phyfe Dining Table.

A long Duncan Phyfe dining table with four pedestal bases is flanked by six Hepplewhite mahogany armchairs and two more are placed against a wall of the dining room. In one corner is a Sheraton china cabinet and on the floor is a magnificent Aubusson rug.

Mount Vernon is an exhibit that every American may feel proud of, and is everywhere said to be one of the most interesting of the entire Paris Colonial exposition. It is, also, as a matter of fact, a tribute to the entire American furniture industry.

NEW DRAPERIES BORROW A NOTE FROM THE PAST

Women Discard Straight, Simple Styles.

Draperies are beginning to reflect a tendency toward the more formal, according to an expert on draperies associated with a large loop store.

Like women's dress, which is the more formal and more decorative for borrowing from the past, draperies, too, are beginning to revolt from the straight lines of the modern and seek curves and coquetries.

In still another instance may the revival of tied back draperies, valances, and lambrequins be compared to the recent revival in women's dress of longer skirts, period styles, and more feminine lines. Styles in draperies, like in clothes, run in cycles, which average about seven years.

For the last few years straight simple draperies have hung from poles, usually either wooden or wrought iron. Often the draperies hung straight to the floor. Women have tired of straight draperies now, according to the drapery expert.

"Women now want draperies to conform to period rooms," he said. "Particularly in large apartments and in homes this is true.

"I have noticed this autumn that many women are going in for empire and directoire furniture, as well as that of the French Louises. In empire rooms, satins, moires, and damask are particularly good.

"In the smaller apartments empire furniture also is appropriate, as it is small and graceful and gives a sense of space. But for persons of limited means, draperies of chints, printed and blocked linens are continuing in favor."

Better Furniture Available.

Decorating house and apartments this year is going to be a much more interesting matter than in previous years. One reason, the drapery expert said, is that women are bolder in tastes than they were. Another, he said, is that furniture itself is better; that is, little furniture is sold in good stores today that is not an authentic reproduction of period furniture, or strictly moderne furniture, all of which lends itself to variety in draperies.

"For the first time in my experience women are not decorating their homes as 'Mrs. Jones' has decorated hers," said the informant. "It is most refreshing. For instance, a young woman, a bride, living on the near north side, asked me to sell her some draperies.

"'I don't want to be told what to buy,' she told me. 'I may make some awful mistakes. This is my first experience at furnishing a house. But I am going to get what seems to me to be right.' I did not give her any advice. As a matter of fact, I liked everything she chose."

Here's What She Chose.

He described some of her combinations: In her hall she had peacock blue walls and tulip yellow draperies. In her bedroom she chose a deep salmon, almost a red, and combined it with blue. She did not hesitate to introduce red in draperies in her living room, with yellow and green in the room elsewhere.

"Never has there been the desire for individuality so strong. Instead of wanting a suite of furniture just like her neighbors, it is the pride of smart women now to have no single suite of furniture in their whole house. It is much better, too, to combine periods. Of course, they must be adaptable."

With moderne furniture striking colors may be used. But color combinations are apt to be striking with almost any furniture now. Among the new shades are those of rose, including an oriental rose designed to go with oriental rugs, a deep, soft rose, and yellow greens. Whether tulip yellow will be in demand cannot be predicted so early. Gold will be less popular than it has been, but still will be good, particularly with green walls, in formal rooms.

White Is This Year's Color.

White, however, is to be the smart color this year, the drapery expert predicted. Persons are tired of ivory walls, which have been done to death. Chalk white walls with colored woodwork, say in green or blue, or chalk white draperies and walls of green, or yellow, or blue, he suggested as possible combinations.

Chalk white, which has been extremely popular as touches combined with blue and brown in women's dress this past season, also will be used in touches throughout rooms, in pottery and lamp bases, for instance. It is particularly appropriate to classical periods such as empire furniture.

A bedroom in the empire manner, for instance, might have white damask draperies trimmed with gold braid or with a border of gold in Greek conventional design. A dining room with white walls and gold or green taffeta draperies, ball trimmed, might have furniture upholstered in salmon colored material striped with green, the expert suggested.

With Provincial Furniture.

In rooms where provincial furniture is used—and in many large apartments it will be used in one room, while late eighteenth century furniture will be used in another, and early English in a third, perhaps—rollex, chintzes, and plaids will be used for draperies. Provincial designs, baskets of flowers, or French pastoral or hunting scenes, pictorial prints, or historical prints will be equally good with early American or provincial furniture. Scenic wallpapers with colored dados and colored woodwork are atractive for dining rooms.

Valances, the drapery informant said, should not be used with low ceilings unless they are raised above the window to the ceiling line, thus giving the room and window a heightening effect.

Draperies should be lined, the expert warned. If they are of fine materials they should be interlined with canton flannel. If one is using a 45 cent chintz, and there are many chintzes on the market for that price that would be charming in any home, it will fade if not lined. If it is an imported chintz, it still may fade.

Of chintzes and linens those which conform to period furniture will be more in use. Some of the Georgian chintzes on the market are delightful and cheap. Chintzes with dark background, browns, dark greens, and eggplants are particularly attractive, the informant said.

MODERN TREND IN DRAPES

The new tendency of draperies to tie back and fall in lines in keeping with the present reaction toward the classical in furnishings is seen here in these draperies of strawberry red. The ball fringe is white, as is the dot in the material. The sash curtains are of fine striped English net. This is among the exhibits in Chicago stores showing new styles in home furnishings.

MODERN HOME IS ACME OF BEAUTY AND GOOD TASTE

Small Means No Barrier; Prices Are Low.

[Personal Shopping Service, the Davis Co.]

Whether the trend toward more beautiful surroundings was sponsored originally by a newspaper, a woman's magazine or a housewife is a moot question and we must content ourselves with the thought that not so long ago the woman rearing her family in a modest home, on a moderate family income was suddenly awakened to the idea that her home, though poor financially, could be comfortable and beautiful materially without great expense.

The average American home nowadays displays a clean, attractive exterior with a well kept lawn and flower garden and an interior that exhibits good taste in the selection of furniture and an eye for color and beauty in choosing the many accessories.

Services Save Labor.

Too, the labor saving devices that have released the housewife from the arduous toil are installed conveniently and display an efficient, well managed establishment, so far from the haphazard equipment of the home of yesterday that there is no just comparison.

Living rooms—a far cry from the parlor of grandmother's day! Furniture designed for relaxed enjoyment and yet beautiful enough in design and upholstery to grace a queen's castle. Sofas, deep luxurious chairs, chaise lounge, conveniently placed end and side tables, coffee tables of proper height—assorted lamps for tables and floor—bridge tables that can be set up or disposed of at will . . . decorative pottery that is colorful . . . draperies that harmonize with the room.

Not Just for Company.

A real living room—not just for company, but for the family to enjoy! The radio—the piano—everything that makes home life perfect.

Bedrooms that are living rooms in themselves—furnished in matching suits or odd pieces that are kindred—beds that may not be as soft as the old feather mattress but that are more comfort giving, more rest to weary nerves and bodies—bedrooms that are much more than sleeping rooms.

The home of today is the "home beautiful" of every woman's dreams. No matter how great or how small our allowances, we have an endless chain of possibilities for developing latent talent in practical interior decorations. Whether we start to redo our homes with an entire room or just a corner, we have a pocketful of money or little, we have a developed sense of beauty—of color harmony—and a great desire for improvement, both in appearance and convenience.

Here Are Periods Which Have Made Furniture History

In chronological order, here are the famous periods of English furniture which today distinguish the styles of the antiques prized by collectors.

James the First	1603-1625
Charles the First	1625-1649
Charles the Second	1660-1685
William and Mary	1689-1702
Queen Anne	1702-1714
George the First	1714-1727
George the Second	1727-1760
George the Third	1760-1820

[The Golden Georgian era.]

The quartet of "immortals" among the cabinetmakers, whose fame probably never will be excelled, and the dates of their existence are:

Thomas Chippendale	1717[?]-1779
Robert Adam	1728 -1792
George Hepplewhite	1728[?]-1786
Thomas Sheraton	1750 -1836

Memorizing the above should be a help to the student of interior decoration and period furniture—or cut it out and preserve it as a ready reference.

JOHN A. COLBY & SONS

129 NORTH WABASH AVENUE

BREATH OF OLD ENGLAND IS THIS ANTIQUE SHOP

Treasures Come from Courts and Castles.

BY KATHARINE KELLEY.

From Hornby castle, Bedale, Yorkshire, England, to a tiny basement store in the heart of Chicago came a Hepplewhite serving table not many months ago. In that huge estate which had its beginning during the 16th century, the serving table was considered quite a modern piece installed somewhere in the 1790's. In America an article of furniture a century and a half old is an antique. Much of old England lingers in the treasures of this little English antique shop. A bit of flagstone at the foot of wooden steps and one passes between chests and tables, desks, whatnots, wall shelves, and the hundred and one knicknacks peculiar to an English man's fancy. Everything is authentic, yes, the dealer replies, for he himself is an Englishman, and the antiques are found on trips abroad and shipped to America.

Visitor Soon Feels at Home.

For a fleeting moment a visitor may feel he is intruding, that he, an American, may not experience the same delight in rare English antiques as a Briton. But only for the moment. Then is that Hepplewhite server in marvelous condition, and the original brass brasses on its drawers.

What secrets would this server tell if it could? Nothing of the St. Quintin family, nothing of the Conyers family, who took the castle by marriage and in the 16th century did much of the rebuilding. Nor of the Bevys, one of whom was the earl of Holderness in 1682. But after the estate became extinct, there was the heiress, Baroness Conyers, who married Godolphus Osborne, marquis of Carmarthen, afterward duke of Leeds.

And there are the painted pine lines once admired in the music room of the estate of Lady Nunburholme. Faded green paint does not detract from the charm of the delicately carved lunges of musical instruments, or from the value of the twin panels, anywhere around $2,000. One day they may become the prized possession of a north shore estate—after an architect has built a house around them.

Set of Spode Is Rare Find.

"A whole set of Spode. Ninety-seven pieces." The dealer handles a tea patterned plate caressingly, turns it over and points to the tiny letter "S" deeply embedded in the china. "It is rarely that you find a whole set so well preserved."

"And here is a Queen Anne grandfather clock of 1720 with the original hinges. It is of oak with a little inlay, but otherwise simple and plain, and as reliable as the day it first went to ticking. That dresser there is a mahogany bow-front dresser, Sheraton style, with its original brasses."

The dealer turns to his pride and joy, a Sheraton secretary that towers toward the ceiling.

"The lattice work on the doors is perfect. And inside here, in the center, you will find the secret drawer—thus. And down here is the priceless thing about the secretary, the original brasses used on most of the furnishings owned by Admiral Lord Nelson, the anchor and the horn of plenty. This was either his, or was made for his colleague, between 1780 and 1800. Its value runs up toward $1,000."

King Discovers Windsor Chairs.

Those who believe that Windsor chairs are a product of early America should cast an eye upon the worn pine chair that came from an English cottage. According to one authority on English cottage and farm house furniture, George III., who was known as the farmer king, saw a chair of this design in a cottage near Windsor. He admired it to the extent that he had some made for royal use.

In the English cottage, also, some of rural England's charm may be traced to the wall brackets where the housewife's choice dishes are displayed. Some of this cottage ware is envied by the American, such as the mugs upon which are printed boldly such inscriptions as "Johnnie Walker."

There are occasional tables, glassware, quaint pictures. In an antique shop the collector finds a happy hunting ground. There he may browse at will with as much abandon as a pursuer of first and rare editions released in a second hand book shop.

IN THE SPIRIT OF OUR FOREFATHERS

Maple furniture, reproducing in every detail original pieces used by New England families of former days, re-creates a pleasant, peaceful, unpretentious atmosphere in the modern home. The writing desk is particularly interesting. It is made by an eastern manufacturer and sold in stores throughout the country. A 1931 version of an old hooked rug makes an appropriate floor covering.

Modern Bedroom Must Have Its Chaise Lounge

There are still fussy people who hate to sit on a bed, once it is made for the day and the satin or silk spread arranged. For their convenience is the chaise lounge, which is becoming more and more a part of modern bedroom equipment.

ROLLING TABLE USEFUL.

A small table, on easy-rolling casters, which may be moved about the kitchen at the will and convenience of the home manager, will greatly facilitate the preparation of the meals. It may be placed near the stove when baking is done, or near the sink when vegetables are being prepared, or near the kitchen cabinet when pastry is being made.

Emily Post's Book Gives Interesting Home Advice

In The Personality of a House, published by Funk & Wagnalls company, Emily Post, is disclosed as an authority of good taste in the home as well as in social relations. Included in the volume is a brief resumé of the architecture of the world, along with excellent advice about decorating and remodeling.

Another section of the book gives a compact account of various furniture styles and how they may be used in the modern home. There is even a discussion of that curious development of our own times, the modernistic form of interior decoration. Perhaps the most valuable part is that which gives suggestions about furnishing the home at little expense and with great charm.

The reader is likewise tempted to linger over the many delightful illustrations. Young women who have recently become engaged or brides would treasure a gift of this book.

Charity Auction Will Be Part of Program.

Rare woods and silver, fragile laces and glass, priceless paintings, fine fabrics. The rarest and strangest of these treasures to be found between Chicago and New York will soon be brought together in one grand exhibition.

To the avenue of palms, the French room, and the main dining room of the Drake hotel, beginning Oct. 24, will flock those people to whom furniture and household knick-knacks mean more than the stuff they are made of. Collectors and antique dealers will revel in the booth of Spanish, Italian, German, and French furnishings, the English and American, the curious pieces from the ends of the earth.

The third Chicago Antiques exposition will have a thought for charity while the exhibit continues through the week. Several antiques have been given by famous persons to be auctioned off. The proceeds are to go to the Infant Welfare society, the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society, and the Juvenile Protective association.

Governor Gives Book Ends.

Among these gifts will be two book ends from the Ninian Edwards house where Lincoln was married, offered by Gov. Emmerson; a piece of Rockwood silver contributed by Nancy Cox McCormick, sculptress; a very old silver napkin ring given by Gamaliel Bradford, biographer, and a Virgillian commemorative medal in silver, given by C. Castruccio, Italian consul general. Among others will be a map of the Mississippi river engraved and published in 1775, contributed by W. R. Browne, editor and author, and a valuable piece, as yet unknown, to be given by George Ade, humorist.

One dealer plans to exhibit two articles valued at $18,000 that will be of particular interest in these days of prohibition. Today a bucket of ice hidden under a table is used as a wine cooler, but in the heyday of George III, a wine cooler went up on the sideboard for every one to admire—and use.

An unusually handsome pair are these coolers, made for the lord mayor of London in the reign of George III. They are of silver gilt, solid silver dipped in gold, elaborately decorated with a raised coat of arms.

Sh-h! There'll Be a Barroom.

Many of the exhibits will be assembled in room settings showing fine examples of Directoire, Hepplewhite, Sheraton, Queen Anne, Chippendale, and other periods.

There will be a complete reproduction of an early American barroom. It will include early American pieces in pine and maple, Currier & Ives prints, a bar with liquor bottles from the 1830s and 1840s, and other articles typical of middle western pioneer days. The furnishings were taken from the Walker tavern in the Irish hills, Michigan.

There will be 18th century wall paper, fine old laces, oriental rugs, Staffordshire china, pine doors from an English cattle entirely dismantled and sold at auction to pay inheritance taxes, Sheffield meat dish covers and cake baskets, and pots of Spode china. Among the exhibits will be furniture and smaller antiques from the homes of prominent Chicagoans.

Patronesses Are Named.

Thirty-four Chicago women are patronesses for the exposition, of which Felix Mendelsohn is managing director. They are Mesdames Philip D. Armour, Jacob Baur, Henry A. Blair, Waller Borden, Joseph T. Bowen, Edward H. Brewer, Samuel T. Chase, Charles Wesley Dempster, Charles H. Dennis, John V. Farwell, William O. Goodman, Charles B. Goodspeed, James M. Hopkins, Benjamin F. Langworthy, Eames MacVeagh, Edith Rockefeller McCormick, Parmalee McFadden, William S. Monroe, Philo A. Otis, Luther N. Rossiter, Charles H. Schweppe, John A. Spoor, Walter A. Strong, Carroll H. Sudler, Eugene S. Talbot Jr., Patrick A. Valentine, Edward K. Welles, John H. Winterbotham, Stanley Zaring.

COLOR HARMONY IN FURNISHINGS MADE POSSIBLE

[President O. W. Richardson & Co.]

Post-war days are recalled by many married couples today when, in refurnishing their homes, they compare the present low prevailing prices with those in existence in the days following the return of soldiers to their homes.

The comparison is pleasing when it is learned that the difference today is considerably in favor of the public. Prices today are the lowest they have been since 1915 in home furnishings. The cost of furnishing a home during that immediate post-war period, 1919-'20, was the greatest in history, at a time when in many cities all marriage records were broken.

Peak Reached in 1920.

Government figures show that the peak of home furnishing prices was reached in 1920 and since that time there has been a gradual reduction to the present low level. Economists who have studied the situation, and the heads of the National Retail Furniture Association and the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers, who directed nation-wide surveys, say production costs have reached the bottom.

This comes at the most opportune time for the buying public. Greatest care and attention have been paid in recent months to construction, style, and design of furniture . . . especially for the style show now being held in all large home furnishing stores.

And Now It's Color Harmony.

Of particular interest to home lovers is the advent of a new idea, the product of a versatile man who "paints pictures with furniture," Ross Crane, a man who has done remarkable work in creating homes of beauty, comfort, and harmony. He has developed a revolutionary idea.

It makes it possible for one to be certain his home is furnished in the best of fashion and good taste . . . to know that every color is in harmony. Ross Crane has collaborated with leading furniture manufacturers in developing groups of furniture that are consistent in style . . . making it possible for the home owner to purchase an entire group of furnishings accenting their particular color taste.

Prices Are Moderate.

This is but one of the many practical ideas that have been developed this year. The home owner of modest means will be most benefited by such a step. Think what it means to have a home furnished by a prominent interior decorator like Ross Crane without having to pay for his services.

A word about ORIENTAL RUGS . . .

It has been truthfully stated that there is no substitute for the richness and luxury of an Oriental Rug.

No matter how complete . . . no matter how well chosen . . . the furnishings of any home require the finishing touch of Oriental Rugs . . . to make that home reflect charm, good taste and comfort.

Bench, $27 Portable Mirror, $22

THE most striking feature of today's furniture is, after all, its astonishingly low prices. Fine furniture we have always had with us, but fine furniture at such prices as these is the product not only of extraordinary times, but of extraordinary accomplishment by this company as well.

Consider such an ensemble as this with a dresser at $94. It is the newest product of a maker famed for quality, a traditional Elizabethan design with carvings cut from the solid wood, a group that not so long ago would have commanded at least a thousand dollars.

IF APARTMENT'S JUST ONE ROOM, AVOID CLUTTER

Little Furniture Is Better than a Lot.

Elimination is the word to keep in mind when furnishing the one room apartment. If you have more than a room "to spread out" in, you can indulge your fondness for knick-knacks, extra tables, ivy stands, aquariums, and bird cages! But if four walls encompass our home, the wise procedure is to avoid anything that does not have a definite purpose in adding to the comfort and practicality of the place where you spend so many hours of your time.

Manufacturers, designers, and decorators have ironed out many of the difficulties that beset the path of the one room dweller until, this fall, he or she can go into the stores and a few hours furnish completely and beautifully any small apartment. Here are the bare essentials:

1. A rug, carpet, or small rugs.
2. A bed.
3. A table.
4. Chairs.
5. A chest of drawers or secretary desk.

Carpet, Bed Usually Furnished.

In many apartments the floor is already carpeted, so the first item causes no trouble or expense. The second necessity, the bed, is also furnished, in most cases. It may be one of the folding variety that spends the day in the closet dressing room, appearing only at night, or it may be the attractive studio couch that plays the dual rôle of bed.

Gilbert Rohde, an eastern designer, has created a most practical sleeping sofa that may now be had in the Chicago stores. It makes either a sofa or a single size bed and is equally comfortable either way. As the sofa the seat has the proper pitch and correct depth. As a bed, the surface of the cushions is level. And the length is that of the regulation bed, 74 inches by 33.

The change of this sofa to bed is accomplished without any mechanism whatever. The back cushions are removed and the seat cushions turned upside down. Turning them levels the surface for sleeping. American walnut is the wood used in this interesting piece of furniture.

Designs Double Duty Table.

Mr. Rohde has also designed a table for the one room apartment, which does double duty as sofa or library table and dining table. As a sofa table, it is long and narrow with interesting curved legs of bentwood. The top twists around, another leaf is uncovered, and, presto, a dining table!

The stores are showing any number of unusual tables this season. The old gate-leg type is having a hard time holding its own with so many ingenious rivals in the field. There is, for instance, the new dinette table of maple whose surface is absolutely impervious to water, lemon juice, milk, vinegar, and beverages. You can even set a hot dish on it—nothing will happen.

Then, there are the charming drop leaf tables, ever so many kinds, that make ideal small dining tables when the leaves are extended. They are usually equipped with one or two drawers, also, for holding silver and whatever.

Bronze Chairs Necessary.

Chairs may be had in any period, any wood, any covering. One or two lounge chairs are necessary equipment items for any liveable room. And, of course, one must have straight chairs, also.

In the one room apartment the dressing closet almost always has adequate drawer space for clothes and linen. And sometimes a small dressing table may be placed there, or in the bathroom. But one can seldom have too much drawer space, so item No. 5, the chest or the secretary desk, is considered important.

If it must be a choice of one or the other, most people select the desk, as its upper shelves may hold a tea set or other china, as well as books, while the drawers beneath the writing desk may hold table linen. And the secretary has this advantage: It is a most attractive piece of furniture as well as a practical article.

After these necessities are taken care of, one may turn one's attention to small tables, of which nests of tables are probably the best buy in this case, as they take up little room, are decorative, and may serve so many purposes. Book trough end tables are also valuable additions, and if there is room for a coffee table, well and good. But avoid that cluttered look!

Don't Forget the Radio.

Most people deem a radio a necessity, these days, so it is mentioned next. And, for the one room home, select one built on a small scale—the smaller, the better.

A folding card table, kept in the closet when not in use, is another nice thing to have. Then there are lamps, pictures, books, and draperies.

Take your time in planning your furnishings; you won't regret it, later. And here's a tip: A floor plan of your room, with correct measurements, will be the greatest sort of aid when you visit the stores.

One last word, and it's the same as the first word in this article: elimination. Cut out everything that is not actually needed. You'll be everlastingly thankful when you come to live in that one room.

New England Fireplaces Were Big; They Had to Be

Fireplaces of the New England colony in the early days are believed by many to be the largest ever built in any land. They served as a necessary defense against winters which were much more severe than the colonists had been accustomed to in old England. These fireplaces and the houses which contained them were erected by the colonists themselves, just as the iron for the innumerable fireplace fittings was forged by them. In these times each man was a many-sided specialist.

Since tools and apparatus for forging were necessarily crude, the workmanship of New England iron was severely plain. Fire sets and utensils were hammered out in straightforward clean bitten lines. There was no useless ornamentation or filigree of any kind. Many believe this is the best and only way to bring out the inherent beauty of the metal.

KASHAN, PERSIA GIVES THE WORLD ITS FINEST RUGS

And Here's How You Identify Them.

BY GARABED T. PUSHMAN,
[President Pushman Bros., Inc.]

Although it has been only a quarter of a century since the first rugs from Kashan were brought to this country, judging from some of the antiques that have come within my observation, undoubtedly the people of Kashan have been weaving rugs for a great many years. And today the weavings from the looms of Kashan are by far the finest in texture, quality, design, and coloring that Persia produces.

Kashan is a town of about 30,000 inhabitants, in the southeastern part of the district of Irak-Ajemi, about half way between Ispahan and Teheran. Kashan rugs may be distinguished by the soft, fine spun lambs' wool used in their making.

A Fringe at Each End.

The warp and weft are always of linen; the rounded edges are overcast with wool and sometimes with colored silk, and there is a short fringe at each end. Because of the fine texture of these rugs the Senna knot is used exclusively, averaging 400 to 700 knots to the square inch, and making a pile of medium thickness. The designs are very intricate, with the medallion pattern appearing a great deal.

The center color usually is either a soft red or ivory, and dark royal blue is the usual color in the background of the medallion and the corner pieces, while floral patterns predominate throughout the center of the rug as well as in the borders.

Often Use Prayer Pattern.

Occasionally the center of a large rug is covered with a small design, and in the smaller rugs the prayer pattern is often used, with the Tree of Life design in the center. A vase filled with flowers is probably the most used of the floral designs.

The excellent quality of wool found in the older weavings is too limited in quantity to supply the increasing demand for Kashans, and therefore wool from other parts of Persia is obtained for these rugs.

Now the pile is longer and coarser, and all-over designs of various types are being introduced, making it rather difficult to distinguish the Kashan from other fine weavings of the Sultanabad district.

However, occasionally English machine spun wool is being used in the weaving of the finest Kashans, giving them more the character and appearance of the older rugs.

Employ Machine Spun Wool.

Semi-antique Kashan rugs are few in number, and they come usually in small hearth sizes.

Kashans are made in all sizes, ranging from mats up to the largest carpet sizes.

CARE IN BUILDING MAKES FURNITURE STRONG, DURABLE

Strength in furniture depends on its construction. Very often the furniture purchaser cannot see all the details of construction and more often she does not understand the ones she can see.

Sometimes an inspection of the under side of furniture will reveal the methods employed in its making. Corner blocks are screwed and glued to blocks of wood which join the chair or table rail to the legs. In addition to corner blocks the joints should be grooved and strengthened with wooden dowels.

Dowel pins are grooved spirally and horizontally and immersed in glue and pressed into holes bored to fit them in the rail and the leg. Two dowels are used since one does not give sufficient strength to the piece to make it withstand the stress and strain of use.

MAKING HOME A CASTLE IS EASY AT NEW PRICES

Every Day Is Bargain Day in Furniture.

BY FREDERICK D. CORLEY,
[Vice President and Merchandise Manager, Marshall Field & Co.]

A man's home is his castle. That's true enough. But it isn't always an easy matter to keep it looking like a castle. Until recently it's been an expensive proposition . . . a new rug here, new draperies for the children's room, new dining room things, new and modern chairs to take the place of those that should have been discarded months ago, curtains for the bedrooms . . . so it goes!

But now, thanks to drastically reduced prices on furniture and housefurnishings, a man's home may be his castle—and look like one—for a very small outlay of money. It is important for every one, from the bride and groom just starting out to the couple celebrating their fiftieth wedding anniversary, to realize that now is the time to buy furniture, whether in complete suites or individual pieces, for not in years has it been so low in price and probably not in years will it be quite so low in price again.

Even business is recognizing economy of redecorating and refurnishing now. We are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars redecorating our store, laying new carpet, adding new fixtures, refurnishing counters, installing more effective display equipment. T is is especially noticeable at the present time on our first floor, although we are taking advantage of current low prices of materials to redecorate and improve the appearance of other sections in the store. We believe it is good business, not only to take advantage of the current deflation in prices of furnishings and decorations, but to maintain our standard of good appearance and good housekeeping.

And if it is important for business to do this it is equally important for every householder to do the same thing, especially when it may be done so economically as now. It is a mistake to economize when, by economy, you are merely hoarding money you will be compelled to spend later on increased prices.

The furniture offered to you now is not in any sense "cheap" furniture. It is good furniture at prices which, compared with the prices to which we were accustomed a few years ago, seem—and are—very low. It is well styled, substantially constructed, the product of the leading factories of the country. It is furniture that will become a permanent part of your home.

Magazine Pictures Used to Decorate Waste Baskets

Inexpensive plain metal waste baskets may be decorated with pictures clipped from magazines. These prints or pictures may be neatly applied on the outside of the basket with paste, and they may be arranged to overlap each other in an attractive fashion. The pictures may be either in color or simply in black and white. A coating of liquid wax gives a nice finish and protects the pictures from soil and wear.

STORES STRESS QUALITY, STYLE IN 4 DAY HOME SHOW

Buyers Seek Furnishings That Will Endure.

BY E. DAVIS.
[Advertising Manager, Revell's.]

More discretion will be used this year in choosing furnishings . . . therefore homes will reflect this keen interest and become more individual. Anticipating this, stores are particularly stressing quality and style in all displays for the four day home furnishings style show.

Quality is the first consideration. The furniture in your home must be comfortable and it must withstand years of wear. The initial investment should be apportioned over a period of time. A few dollars difference now probably will mean many years' difference in the duration of the article.

Style is next. Different periods may be combined, but it is best to consult with an experienced decorator. Most stores offer this service without charge.

Price is another consideration. Here is a quotation from the book, "Furniture, Its Selection and Use," published by the United States department of commerce:

"The correct solution of home furnishing problems demands knowledge, good taste, and resourcefulness. The most structural detail is hidden from view, the integrity of the dealer is more than merely an advantage—it is a necessity. Enlist the aid of the most intelligent and responsible merchant in your community."

A responsible dealer endeavors to give honest value for every dollar you spend with him. He needs your trade will in order to continue in business . . . and he cannot retain the good will by placing inferior furniture in your home.

BEAUTY IN BLACK GLASS

Among the many beautiful things to be purchased in glassware are the black bowls, glasses and candle sticks in black glass. They give the table an unusually interesting appearance and contrast strikingly with the lines and the silver.

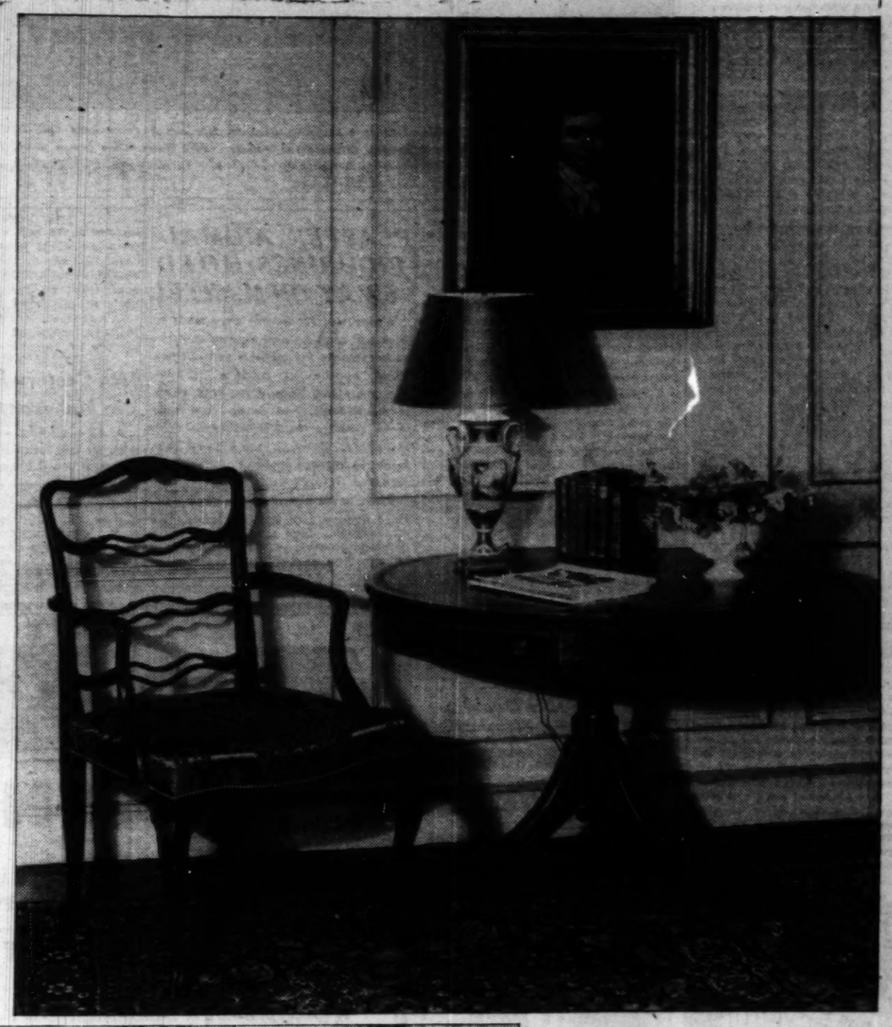
Furniture History in the Making . . . we regard our TRADITION FURNITURE as a contribution of great significance to 20th century home furnishing!

When we created Tradition Furniture, we fulfilled an ideal—the achievement of a new type of furniture to meet a new demand.

For our design inspirations, we went back to the golden age of furniture, the 18th and early 19th centuries. We chose famous Sheratons, Chippendales, Hepplewhites, and others, but ALWAYS with 20th century homes in mind.

In reproducing each Period design, we introduced 20th century materials, 20th century forms, 20th century colors, sizes, even . . . with the result—something entirely new in furniture.

WE WANTED THE MANY AS WELL AS THE FEW TO BE ABLE TO AFFORD TRADITION FURNITURE. So we devised a new plan in our shop, that effected economies of management, without affecting the craftsmanship.



Tradition Furniture has been moved to a more prominent location . . . NINTH FLOOR, MIDDLE, STATE.

You will note, in viewing this furniture, how individual each piece is and YET how well ALL the pieces look together. That's because Tradition Furniture fits in—it's adaptable!

Fascinating, indeed, are the fabrics that cover the furniture. Gleaming satins, lustrous damasks, and in particular cases, lapin!

Pieces will be added to the collection constantly. Ninth Floor.

Above! . . the ladderback armchair is Chippendale inspired. The Cabriole legs are beautifully carved on the knee. Of fine mahogany, covered in damask.

The mahogany drum table portrays the beauty of design of 18th century Sheraton. Drawers and apron inlaid with satinwood. Leather top.

CREDIT NOMADS WITH ORIGINATING CARPET WEAVING

Oriental Rugs Evolve from Simple Form.

BY SARKIS H. NAHIGIAN.
[President Nahigian Brothers.]

The origin of carpet weaving with a pile—produced by knotting—is most uncertain due to great antiquity. As to locality and date, we may speak in general terms only. A logical place is thought to be central Asia; however, the plateaus of Persia have great possibilities as the cradle of oriental rug weaving.

There is no doubt that the very beginning of carpet weaving took place among nomadic people, who depend primarily on their herds for many of the necessities of life. Chief among them, after food, are garments and tents for protection against the elements. These articles were woven of the yarn prepared from the wool of their flocks.

The simplest form of weaving—warp and weft threads crossing each other—was known to them for generations, and needed another step forward to conceive the weave with the pile surface, which is produced by tying a line of knots of wool yarn, each knot on two warp threads side by side along the width of the loom, followed by two or more weft threads which hold the knots in place and the warp threads together.

Persians Deserve Credit.

As to the nationality of these first weavers, it is difficult to say, but we are certain of the fact that regardless of the race or nation of the originators, the Persians deserve full credit for making oriental rug weaving one of the greatest arts in existence.

Tradition lends a glamorous story to oriental rugs, whose rich background and glorious past create a most fascinating study that appeals to the student as well as the layman. It is through this general appeal that so many individuals in all walks of life have become lovers of oriental rugs. Some of the leading financiers in this country and abroad have invested fortunes to have the joy of owning a collection of oriental rugs.

The Persians, one of the oldest peoples, glorified their country and religion by their arts, one of the forms of which is the oriental rug with its beautiful colors and designs. Their country is blessed with marvelous dye stuffs and all that is necessary to produce the most exquisite wool and silk rugs the world has ever known.

Nature Serves as a Model.

Nature has served as a model for the oriental rug weaver and designer, to whom colors and patterns are the eloquent means to express their conception of the beauties of nature and the universe.

The humble nomadic origin of the oriental rug and the gradual rise to the throne of the Persian royalty offers a picturesque and colorful achievement. In the early Persian civilization, poetry, philosophy, and arts and crafts flourished and rose to unbelievable heights, and these in time inspired and influenced the Persian artists who became the great designers of the Persian court carpets, which have been outstanding models for oriental rugs to this day.

Persia has been the greatest contributor to the art of carpet weaving and set the standard for all times and rug weaving countries.

How Rugs Are Identified.

Oriental rugs take their names after the towns or districts in which they are woven. Each rug weaving territory prefers a distinct type of pattern and color scheme with a certain quality of weave, and all of these serve as marks of identification in determining the class of oriental rug to be called by the proper name.

While the patterns in oriental rugs are mostly decorative, there are some that have a historical background expressing a definite idea, a phase of philosophy or some religious belief.

Persia has produced the greatest carpets, which are poetic and dramatic in expression and portray the artistic vigor and the unconquerable spirit of a superior race, with a glorious historical background.

New Tray Table Doubles as a Luggage Stand

One Chicago store is showing a tray table that can double for a luggage stand. When the tray, spacious enough to hold all the china for afternoon tea, is removed a luggage stand for the guest room is revealed.

SMALL TABLES ADD TO ROOM'S COMFORT

The mahogany nest of tables fulfills a number uses in the living room and this little group typifies a new fall style. The legs are tapering and have spiral twists. The book table has a novel feature. Its top is stationary, while the book compartments beneath it revolve. In Duncan Phyfe style, this convenient piece might be used in almost any room of the house.

PLASTER ANIMAL FIGURINES HOLD SWAY ON MANTEL

Plaster animal figures were made by itinerant molders and carvers to serve as ornaments for mantels and shelves. They appear in various forms—pigeons, stags, does, dogs, cats, cows, roosters, lions, and so on—and were more common in Pennsylvania than elsewhere, although some have been found in various sections of New England.

Their naïve charm lies in their complete disregard of natural forms. As an example, dogs are found bearing painted wreaths on their breasts for no apparent reason aside from sheer decoration. As to a definite time, it is impossible to say when these figures were made, as none of them bear a date. However, their popularity climaxed around 1850, when they were superseded by Bennington and other more sophisticated pottery.

In general, these animal figures may be compared with the peasant pottery of Europe.

18th Century Birds Lived in Mahogany Apartments

A bird mating cage of mahogany with arched fans of satinwood, walnut, and rosewood and pulls of ivory, seen at a recent eastern exhibition of Georgian walnut, is an example of the thoroughness of the 18th century. The housing of birds a century and a half ago was a problem to be solved with the same care as any other need of household furnishing.

WHAT SHALL WE GIVE HER? TRY A DAINTY TRAY

She'll Welcome One of the New Designs.

"You never can have too many trays," said one woman in reply to the question, "What can I buy for a wedding present for Gloria, who already has everything on this green earth?"

Every woman who is interested in her home [and what one isn't?] can attest the truth of this statement. Some pantries have whole shelves specially made for trays, with grooves into which they slide as neatly as anything. There is a tray for every sort of service. There's the breakfast-in-bed tray with its idle lady, luxurious air; there's the jolly cocktail tray for the zero hour just before dinner; there's the chic little square for cigarets and accesories; there's the stately and imposing old Sheffield affair that holds an entire silver tea or coffee service, and there are a hundred and one other types, appealing to the eye and the pocketbook. Chicago stores are showing them all, in gala array.

A Lightweight Tray.

One new fad is the featherweight tray, made of wood and painted and antiqued in many designs. It comes in large sizes and is extremely practical because it is so easy to carry. In soft pastel colors, light blue-green, yellow-gold, terra cotta, with scalloped edges, and a floral picture in the center, or with an old French print instead of the flowers, it makes a charming gift for any occasion.

Copper and brass are being revived once more. The stores are showing some stunning plain copper trays, round, oval and rectangular that adapt themselves beautifully to the open Welsh dresser of the French provincial or early American room. Their gleaming surface is a decided decorative touch.

Hammered and plain brass and oriental brass with intricate designs make fascinating beverage and cocktail trays. The former are circular in shape; the latter long and narrow. Pewter is also good in the plain, Puritan patterns. Used as a center piece, piled with fruit, it adds a colorful note to the early American maple dining table.

Small silver trays with silver feet are lovely pieces for the tea or reception table. Placed one at each corner of the lace cloth [if lace is used], they may hold nuts, candles, etc.

PAINTING (CHAIR, NOT PICTURE) IS HOUSEHOLD ART

Women Crave to Wield a Brush, 'Tis Said.

The simple desire to paint is responsible for most of the unfinished furniture purchases, according to furniture men. All women have a secret craving to try their talent at painting, one dealer said.

Formerly some strange products were turned out by these amateur feminine painters, but furniture stores and department stores which sell unfinished furniture now safeguard the painter. The salesman will issue instructions. The paints and lacquers are more adapted to home painting now, too.

Bookcases, screens, corner shelves for china in the breakfast room, breakfast room table and chairs, kitchen chairs and dressing tables may be purchased unfinished and painted with good effect. Rush bottomed chairs may be stained instead of painted, leaving the rush bottom natural, and are preferred by many to more expensive chairs.

Home Decorated Tables.

A dressing table, kidney shaped, with a kidney shaped bench to match, may be painted and further decorated, if desired, by a skirt of chintz, attached by thumb tacks. One table has swinging ledges which cover small upper drawers.

Unpainted bookcases measuring 24 by 9 inches, 44 inches high, may be had for $4.75. A coat of shellac and one of paint, or two coats of paint, should be applied. If the edges are sandpapered before the whole is painted, a smoother effect may be had. One bookcase of solid gumwood with adjustable shelves, most compact in size, sold for $8.50.

Whatnots, to be hung in the corner, sell for $1.50 unpainted. A hanging bookcase of two shelves sells for $1.95. A dropleaf breakfast table was priced at $7.75, and chairs at $2.95 each.

How to Finish Screens.

Unfinished screens may be covered with wallpaper of an appropriate design and coated with shellac. Some are treated with a process which is meant to resemble the antique.

A combination bookcase and radio cabinet, with shelves below and above the cabinet, was found in unfinished wood at $8.50.

DO YOU KNOW YOUR FURNITURE? HERE'S A WAY TO FIND OUT

Here are a few posers, easy and not so easy, which will show you in a few minutes how much you know about furniture. The answers are also given. When your're letter perfect, try 'em on your friends.

1. How does a console table differ from an ordinary table?
2. What is rococo?
3. What is ormolu?
4. What are stretchers?
5. Who was New York City's most famous cabinet maker?
6. What is a highboy?

How Bob Becker Bows to Order: 'You Go Fishing'

Bears Ordeal Bravely and Catches Book, Too.

"Memo—Go Fishing," by Bob Becker. [Bobbs-Merrill.] Published today.

THE staff of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is blossoming with authors of books. Today another member of the staff, Bob Becker, editor of "Woods and Waters," follows John Boettiger, the reporter who "did" the Jake Lingle murder case and whose book, "Jake Lingle," was reviewed in this column yesterday.

BOB BECKER.

Mr. Becker's search for material for his book led him into much more pleasant paths than did Mr. Boettiger's. Bob Becker has that very hard life of fishing not only for fun but for facts! "Memo—Go Fishing" is the story of many of the fishing trips which he has made, set down with the same zest and excitement in his catches that his department in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE always has. "Memo—Go Fishing" is ironically named, it seems to me, because it rubs salt into the wounds of those who CAN'T go fishing.

Far from making one satisfied with one's lot in an easy chair before a grate fire [or an electric fan, as the case may be] it makes one curse the fate that ties one to that usually so comfortable spot. It is cruelty to know that while the cushions of that chair are soft and the light just right and the book one is reading alluring, there ARE small mouthed bass raring to go at a lure—only a few hours away. All those good fish waiting for their judgment day and you can't play hooky to them. . . . Mr. Becker has that cruelty by calling his book "Memo—Go Fishing" as if any one could have to remind himself to go fishing after the pictures of the joys of fishing that the author paints.

Mr. Becker has succeeded in writing an extremely informative book—about what kind of tackle to use and what sort of lures and where the fish are most liable to be lolling on a hot day and how heavy a line to choose and why a good reel is a good investment, and all sorts of useful hints to the angler. He also has done it without making "Memo—Go Fishing" either dull or text-booky. It is more like a record of big game hunting in Africa—for instance—than most books about fishing, with big fish the big game instead of lions and tigers and what nots. In it he tells the experiences which he has had with guides and fellow fishermen and his wife!

There is a whole chapter called "Yes, I Go Fishing with My Wife," in which Mr. Becker tells some of the grueling experiences that his wife has lived through with a smile, and he quotes a guide who, on being teased about being a "nurse" to a woman by a group of other guides, gave as his opinion "I'm hanged if sometimes I don't believe she can fish better than the old man himself."

There is an amusing story of the author's "Fighting Irish Bass" in a lake called Reilly lake, where he and a friend of his lost their lures and good pieces of his emerald green flannel shirt to appeal to the better nature of the fish—and had a string full of Hibernian fish.

And there is another yarn about his landing a bass that weighed ten and a half pounds and was twenty-six inches long. That was in Florida, in "the Lake of Weeping Trees," where anything under five pounds is thrown back as too minnowy. Mr. Becker describes with the greatest vividness the cast, the strike, the fight of the game fish, and his final landing of it. All of that time the guide was talking to the fish as one southerner to another, giving him pointers as to how to evade the northern fisherman.

The great fish—or one just like it—had snapped itself off the hook just before this momentous catch, and as he showed himself above the water the guide had called him General Lee. According to the guide, every afternoon General Lee inspected all of the lesser fish in the lake, and for that reason the afternoon fishing had not been as good as Mr. Becker had hoped.

When he landed the enormous bass Mr. Becker was sure that he had captured General Lee, but he contented himself by calling the fish the King, he says. "I had captured the king of Istokpoga," he writes, "and had him lying in state."

The guide let out a great yell and then in his usual drawl said, "Mr. Beckah, you sho' had me scared for a minute. Yes, suh! I thought maybe somethin' had gone wrong. I thought you had caught Gineral Lee."

"Well, isn't this General Lee?"

Bill laughed and pointed a long finger.

"You don't see anything GRAY on that gentleman, suh! . . . Look right yondah—see that? That's blue. You done caught a nawthinah. That's Gineral Grant."

A little nonsense now and then is relished by the best of fishermen. There are no tall tales, however, in the book—er, that is, no taller than any good fisherman tells—and proves!

SCIENCE FINDS AGE DUE TO CAUSES OTHER THAN TIME

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 6.—(AP)—Another scientific answer to the question, "What makes old age?" has developed from nerve studies by a member of the University of Buffalo research staff.

In examining thousands of nerve fibers of men, dogs, cats, rabbits and rats, Donald Duncan, Ph. D., of the department of anatomy, has observed that some of these living threads degenerate at all ages, but with a progressive tendency to increase with mounting years.

Every one knows that time produces old age, but ever since man's average span of life, lengthened by ten years in recent decades, it has been realized that age is caused by many other things in addition to time, and that some of these other factors can be controlled.

By discovering these other steps toward age, one by one, science opens the possibility of retarding them, and so delaying the arrival of senility.

A powerful microscope was required to see these nerve footprints of age. Every nerve is a bundle of all but invisible fine threads. In a single small human nerve Dr. Duncan can counted 5,327 of them. In the largest nerve of the rat they were equally numerous, three rat sciatic nerves giving fiber counts of 6,622, 5,748, and 5,946 each.

The miscroscope showed that some of these fibers were degenerating. In human beings this degeneracy averaged about one thread in every 15,000 to 20,000; but in rats the average was much higher, one in about 500 threads. This might be accounted for because a rat's life is so much shorter than man's, averaging barely three years. In rats the number of degenerating fibers increased progressively with age.

'Smart Woman' Earns Title in Lively Talkie

So Husband Ceases to Prefer a Blond.

"SMART WOMAN."

A woman who WANTS to keep a man

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

"To know how to hide one's ability is great skill," some one has said.

The "smart woman" of this opus knows how to do that little thing.

The feature picture at the Palace is built around the old formula—"Give a man what he thinks he wants and he won't want it." The brunette heroine's husband thinks he wants a blond. With sugared smiles and honeyed words, lo, the lady who bears his name—and intends to keep right on bearing it!—delivers unto him the huzzy he's decided to invest with the title. And what a sick little boy she has on her hands!

"Smart Woman" is, as you see, not unlike in plot from dozens of other pictures. In general smartness of dialogue, situation and acting it compares favorably with the rank and file of "sophisticated" drawing room comedy dramas, though it is inferior to some you've seen. Staging and costumes are rich and of laughs there are a few.

Miss Astor is lovely as the woman who would keep her husband (Robert Ames), though why she wants him one can't understand with Mr. John Halliday adoring her from the background and all set to snap her up, just give him a chance. Smooth work by this gentleman. All other rôles are nicely portrayed.

These poor blonds! Nobody ever gives them a break! But there is justice in heaven, for whoever heard of a brunette angel? (Outside of "Green Pastures.")

—o—

"DER GROSSE TENOR."

Produced by UFA.
Directed by Hans Schwarz.
Presented at the Cinema theater.

THE CAST.

Albert Winkelmann	Emil Jannings
Agathe	Renate Mueller
Olga von Dagomirska	Olga Tschechowa
Kratochwil, Winkelmann's Valet	Hans Moser
Agathe's Uncle	Max Gooldorff

You will, I think, really have to understand German to enjoy this picture, for it is topheavy with dialogue. Of course, Jannings' presence lends a constant aura—but even so—"Der Grosse Tenor" seems long, thrill-less, and uneventful to the non-Deutch sprecher.

The production will remind you of "The Great Lover," featuring Adolphe Menjou, only this time it's a tenor instead of a baritone who is pursued by all the ladies and the prey is fat rather than svelte. To be honest, one surveying Mr. Jannings finds it hard to comprehend the grand passion of all the fair ones. Ah, well, there are so many things one fails to understand . . .!

This great tenor we're talking about goes to South America, where he has been engaged to sing at enormous expense. There, wine, women, and heat bring on a collapse. Feeling himself an old, broken, and dishonored man, Herr Winkelmann returns to Germany and Frau Winkelmann—who had sent him sadly away saying that what he wanted was women, not a wife. But here awaits Frau Winkelmann with cards up her sleeve that she's not telling about. Here also awaits a wildly enthusiastic throng to welcome home the kammersänger (singer to royalty). Considerable that's unexpected transpires.

Jannings' work is, of course, flawless. He is always the great artiste. But O! to see him in another "Last Laugh"! His best scenes in this picture are his silent ones—the ones where he doesn't say a word. I am sure it is never he who sings.

Renate Mueller is charming as the long suffering wife. "Ma Ma" and "Mütterchen," the tenor calls her. Subsidiary rôles are well portrayed. The director handled his material intelligently.

See you soon.

ELECTRIC INDUSTRY DESIGNS FIRST AID TO "MEN IN CONFERENCE"

From now on it will be unnecessary for a business executive to stop in the midst of an important business conference to send out for ice and ginger ale. A cabinet which when closed presents a sober effect of an inclosed bookcase and when open reveals a complete bar, has been produced by the refrigeration industry.

It was designed especially for the "busy business man," according to the salesman, who pointed out its merits to visitors at the Electric Refrigeration exposition. There it is being displayed for the first time. The exposition began Monday and will continue through Saturday, in the Commonwealth Edison company electric shops at 72 West Adams street. Twelve manufacturers are represented.

The new device is a roomy bar, with a couple of shelves for bottles and an ice chest in the lower right corner containing three trays of cubes and a drawer in which they may be kept after freezing. On one wall is an automatic bottle opener. There is a shelf for mixing, and in the ice chest are trays for lemons, oranges, and so on. Below the mixing shelf is a rack with dish towel suspended.

"It also is ideal for a bachelor's apartment or for a kitchenette," the salesman said, opening the door of the cabinet, which automatically switched on lights within.

For the young married couples who don't exactly keep house, but entertain a lot, it is a distinct advantage, he continued. The exterior is of metal, finished to resemble wood. It is on rollers, making it possible to tuck it away out of sight if necessary.

Stock Returns with Novelties for Orchestra

Several American Works Are on List.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

"I go to Europe every summer for two reasons," Frederick Stock said after directing a rehearsal with the Chicago Symphony orchestra yesterday. "One is to get the neuritis boiled out of my bones. The other is to look for novelties for the orchestra.

"The first was entirely successful this year. The second was not so good. Composers are doing little for orchestra at present, and a good part of the little they are doing does not amount to much."

Mr. Stock admitted, however, that he had brought back a few new works that he considered worth while playing. The first will be played in the second pair of concerts, week after next. It is a symphony by Pierre Ferroud, a young French composer, and is his first work in that form.

—o—

On this program Jose Iturbi, pianist, will be the soloist, and will play Debussy's "Pièce de Concert," which is also new on the orchestral programs.

Another symphony by a rising Germany composer named Trappe, his fourth, and Volkmann-Andrea's "Music for Orchestra, No. 1," just about completes the novelty list from Europe. With American composers Dr. Stock has had better success.

Among the American pieces will be either a "Legend" or a "Scherzo Capriccioso," by Samuel Barlow, probably ythe latter. Mr. Barlow also has written a piano concert which has been taken up by Vladimir Horowitz, but this performance may not take place this year. "Jungles," a symphonic poem by Joclyn, and a symphony by Aaron Copland will add to the list of American novelties.

As this year is the bicentennial of the birth of Joseph Haydn, Dr. Stock plans a Haydn revival. Rather curiously, several hitherto unpublished Haydn manuscripts were recently brought to light in England and have just been issued in printed form. One is a symphony, apparently Haydn's 194th; another is a concertante for four solo instruments with orchestra, the four being oboe, clarinet, bassoon, and horn, and a third work will be a set of twelve old German dances.

Ottorino Respighi has been making orchestrations for the five piano preludes by Rachmaninoff, and this will be played on the program in which Rachmaninoff is soloist. Rachmaninoff's own performance will be in his fourth piano concert, also an unknown work here.

THE STAGE

"THE THIRD LITTLE SHOW."

A revue with Beatrice Lillie and Ernest Truex as stars; given at the Great Northern theater Oct. 6, 1931, under the management of Dwight Deere Wiman and Tom Weatherly.

THE COMPANY:

Beatrice Lillie	Ernest Truex
Walter O'Keefe	Carl Randall
Dorothy Fitzgibbon	Jerry Norris
Dorothy Waller	Constance Carpenter
Sandra Gale	Edward Arnold
William M. Griffith	Gertrude McDonald
And Others

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

HERE is the "Third Little Show," at the Great Northern theater, with the inimitable Beatrice Lillie and the infallible Ernest Truex as its stars; and cheers are in order. It is smart, swift, and merry. Perhaps the presence of Miss Lillie makes it seem more like a "Charlot's Revue" than the well remembered first of the "Little" series [the second has no history], but that does not prevent it from being a decidedly American entertainment.

Should one at this late date attempt to describe Miss Lillie? I think not. She has become a playgoing institution, and in speaking of her contribution to this pastime it is only necessary to say that Beatrice is still herself—a sleek little lady and a fantastical elf. Her appearances on this program, whether in singing numbers or burlesque sketches, are thoroughly characteristic and also refreshingly new. She follows her familiar vein but expands her repertory. The prim British spinster of Victorian temperament is one of her standard caricatures, but here it is framed in an Apache café in Paris with irresistible comic effect.

Mr. Truex was another happy thought of "Little Show" casting. His career has not included much exercise in song and dance routine, but his sense of humor has always suggested that the intelligent revues needed him. The fact that he graduated into the "Third Little Show" from the old Greek "Lysistrata" proves that he holds a master's degree in the art of witty burlesque. Among the items which he quickens with his sturdy and alert comicalities is a satire on the elaborate forms of room service in modern American hotels, written, if you please, by Marc Connelly of "The Green Pastures."

Walter O'Keefe is another personality of importance in the frolic. He is new to me, and I am happy to add him to my catalogue of enjoyable wags. He is a monologist who does not reek of Broadway atmosphere, and his curtain chat upon Eugene O'Neill's new three-day play is my idea of painless dramatic criticism. But he is more than a talker; the hit-song of the show—"When Yuba Plays the Tuba"—falls to him, and he tears it off with enormous gusto.

In calling the roll of this company the name of Carl Randall must also be announced with emphasis. He has danced in many a bit of musical merriment, but he seems to grow younger and faster as the years roll on. Here he expends his province as an entertainer by performing sleight of hand tricks as he dances.

Dorothy Fitzgibbon, Dorothy Waller, Constance Carpenter, and Gertrude McDonald are lively and winsome creatures in the soubrette department; and the minor males are equally effective in their numerous assignments. The show's musical numbers race along in rapid rhythms and are garnished by some dozen or fourteen pert and swift-footed lassies of superior choral quality. The "Little Show" girls are such a vivid feature of the production, in fact, that they deserve mention. Here, therefore, are their names among friends: Jane, Gertrude, Grace, Maxine, Lonita, Ruth, Julie, Betty, Elaine, Doris, Mickey, Eleanor, Polly, Kay, Dorothy, and Aida.

Whenever a good operetta comes to the Great Northern it runs for a full season. Now let's see what the old theater can do for a first class, clean hearted revue.

—o—

"You Said It" will end its engagement at the Grand Opera house next Saturday night. Ethel Barrymore will follow on Oct. 19 for two weeks of her revival of "The School for Scandal."

Kobe College Fete in Japan to Have an Echo in Chicago

The laying of the cornerstone for the new Kobe college in Japan on Oct. 12 will be celebrated here with a dinner held at the Chicago Woman's club attended by alumni and sponsors of that institution.

Dean Shailer Mathews of the University of Chicago, president of the board of directors of Kobe College corporation, who was in charge of the recent campaign in America to make possible the new million dollar campus, will preside at the dinner. Dr. Susan A. Searle, president emeritus of Kobe college, will be a speaker.

More Heart Disease Among City Dwellers, Chicagoans Are Told

Heart disease among city people is increasing at an alarming rate, Dr. Lillian Thompson of Chicago, president of the Midwest Homeopathic institute, in convention at the Morrison hotel, declared yesterday. The noisy, strenuous life in the cities in contrast to the more leisurely living in rural and small communities is the primary cause of the increase, she said. She pointed out that 80,000 people died of heart failure in Cook county in 1930, which is an increase, she said, of 25 per cent in the last ten years.

Bridge More Popular than Ever, Expert on Game Declares

More people are playing bridge today than ever before, Ely Culbertson, author of the "approach forcing system," declared yesterday at the Edgewater Beach hotel. There he is the principal speaker at a conference of bridge experts. The game, he declared, takes people away from their daily routine and absorbs them in a world of clubs, diamonds, hearts, and spades. Bridge can be the antidote for the depression, he said further.

Although he believes he knows the world's fifty best players, Mr. Culbertson declined to identify more than twenty-one, of which nine are residents in Chicago. To go further, he explained, would involve him in too many arguments with "the other 333,000 super experts on the subject." Chicagoans in his list include Richard Pendergast, Owen Gilman, Lew Haddard, Robert W. Halpin, Richard Webster, Lewis Saxby, E. J. Tobin, Mrs. Murray Campbell, and Miss Ottilie Holstein.

WOTTA LIFE! WOTTA LIFE!

Methodists to Recall Chicago of Days of 1831.

"One hundred years of Methodism in Chicago" will be the theme of the Rock River conference that opened unofficially at a reception in the Chicago Temple last night and begins officially today.

But the special commemoration of the centenary will come at the banquet tomorrow night in the Morrison hotel. There the Chicago of 1931, with its large problems and immense resources, will be contrasted with the Chicago of 1831, a village of log houses, prairie grass, and mud. In the year that the first Methodist church of Chicago was founded it is traditional that bears and wolves were to be found in the vicinity.

Fresh from their sessions in a skyscraper church and office building the delegates and their guests will listen to stories of the days when a few hundred dollars would buy a lot anywhere in what is the present loop, and when one of Chicago's features was faith in realty booms and the experiencing of depressions. George W. Dixon will preside at that banquet and other speakers will be Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, Dr. M. B. Workman of London, England, and Dean Shailer Mathews of the University of Chicago Divinity school.

Bishop Hughes, who will preside at the conference sessions, also will deliver five noon addresses. On next Monday, the closing day, the list of parish appointments for the ensuing year will be read.

Among the probable subjects for the conference discussion will be the present depression and consequent unemployment, prohibition, divorce, and home life. Today at the First Methodist church there will be a memorial service for ministers who have died since the last meeting of the conference delegates. They were: The Revs. J. L. Albritton, T. A. Brewster, G. K. Flack, Elmer E. Higley, Charles A. Kelley, Warren E. Kern, George C. McKinley, Frank R. McNamer, and Herbert H. Rood.

Other activities include anniversary services during the afternoon of the Methodist Women's association of the Rock River conference. This evening Mr. Dixon will preside at a meeting to recall the founding of the Chicago Home Missionary and Church Extension society. Prof. Murray H. Leiffer will give an illustrated talk on "One Hundred Years of Methodism in Chicago."

—o—

Tomorrow, as well as Friday and Saturday mornings there will be meetings attended only by ministers. Tomorrow Bishop Hughes will address alumni of the Garrett Biblical Institute at a luncheon held in the Wedgewood room of Marshall Field & Co. Retired ministers will attend a luncheon in the Morrison hotel, where such sessions as those not conducted in the Chicago Temple, 77 West Washington street, will be held.

On Friday afternoon ministers and laymen will meet to discuss world service and charities. At that session the public policy committee will present its report. That evening the topic at the dinner in the Morrison hotel will be social service. Dr. Dan B. Brummitt will discuss Russia.

Boys' Republic All Ready for Election; Campaign Near End

Candidates for offices in the Boys' Brotherhood Republic have started on the windup of their campaign. It is expected that approximately 600 votes will be cast at the election Saturday in the headquarters of the organization at 1530 South Hamlin avenue.

On Friday night the fifty-six candidates striving for sixteen offices will appear on the rostrum at the headquarters in a final plea to their constituents. Elmer T. Stevens, president of Charles A. Stevens & Bros., will preside at this meeting.

Candidates for mayor of the republic are Oscar Cogan, 1643 Ridgeway avenue; Milton Price, 1821 South Springfield avenue, and Nathan Siu, 1453 South Avers avenue. Other offices to be filled are those of city clerk, city treasurer, prosecuting attorney, city judge, business manager and ten aldermen.

Aid of Byrd Will Get Chicago Society's Medal

Dr. Laurence Gould, second in command on the Byrd antarctic explorations, will receive the gold medal of the Geographic Society of Chicago. This was announced yesterday following a poll of the directors' votes.

Presentation of the medal will be made by President Fay-Cooper Cole at the annual post-vacation luncheon on Oct. 21 at the Stevens hotel.

Lonely Fiancee Says She Needs a Married Man's Companionship

BY DORIS BLAKE.

He is engaged to the girl. Loves her. He has to work many evenings, so that he can only see her once or twice a week at best. But those evenings he made up in entertainment as best he could. He has a car, a good job, is 32, and she is 29.

Well, he finds out that the girl has been stepping out with a married man, has been seeing him nearly every night her fiancé was working. The married man, it appears, lives off his wife's bounty, so his time is pretty much his own. But the married man, reports the fiancé, has other girls. The fiancée isn't the only one captivated by Mr. Married's line and spending money.

The girl refuses her fiancé's petition to keep away from the married one, contending, however, that she loves her fiancé. She's lonesome the evenings her fiancé has to work, and has to have some one to take her out. And Wilmet, the fiancé, asks if that can be true love.

To which we'd respond heartily: "No. Not anything like the real thing!"

True love runs strange courses, it's true. But it doesn't run to married men when you're in love with a single one. It doesn't run to making a laughing stock of the man whose ring you wear. Not the kind of true love recommended for security in marriage. Or even to be party to before.

When a woman reaches 29 she has reached the age of understanding, without a doubt. She understands just what she is doing when she encourages the married man. He isn't deceiving her. He isn't preying on her young innocence. So she can't pull any just-a-pal line. It would be too incongruous.

If you ask me, she sounds like a hard boiled sister who, as a marriage candidate, isn't there with any of the qualifications. If she can't be trusted as a fiancée, what miracle do you expect is going to convert her as a wife? The best disposition of the lady in the case would be to deed her over to the other gentleman in pursuit. Otherwise, it looks to me like Reno and a platter of alimony for you.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. William Orr Barclay has returned after passing the summer in England.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bulkley Salisbury will give a dinner dance to introduce their granddaughter, Miss Grace Toucey, at the Embassy club on Nov. 25.

Mr. and Mrs. Clement A. Griscom II., who have lived for some time at Villa Nova, Pa., will have an apartment this winter at 1115 5th avenue.

Miss Martha Sims gave a luncheon yesterday for Mrs. Gillette Bird, the former Miss Mary Haggerty Pell.

Miss Cornelia Van A. Chapin will return tomorrow from a motor trip in Canada and through New England.

Mrs. C. Kenneth Clinton gave a luncheon yesterday for Mrs. James H. Ripley and Mrs. Duncan Dunscombe.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Ignore Girl Friend.

"Dear Miss Blake: My boy friend takes me out and tells me he loves me, but my girl friend tries to make dates with him. Whom does he love?

"MARY."

I'd put my bet on the one he takes out. He would make his dates with your friend if he liked her the better, Mary.

Mink Trimmed Suit Fashion's Pet Child

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Velvet suits, laden with fur, are rampant on the shield of Paris styles this winter, and if the suit is made of cotton velvet and trimmed with mink it is the smartest of the smart.

The most distinguished women in France are wearing velvet suits which are either made of velveteen or a pile velvet that resembles the former. They are trimmed with mink in most cases—occasionally with sable, where opulence permits.

The new suit has a jacket considerably longer than those hip-bone length wraps that were so smart this summer.

Nine out of ten of the new suits have jackets that fit the figure and that button on. All of them have widened shoulder lines that make the waist look more slender. Shoulders are widened by little caps over the sleeves, by sleeves that are bigger at the top, by fur trimmings and by epaulets.

The Lucile Paray suit of black velvet showns in our sketch has the smart shoulder cap placed over a straight sleeve. It is fitted closely to the waistline, and has a shawl collar of mink that ends with the two button closing. Below this the jacket is flared and it stands out stiffly at the bottom because of the band of mink at the hem.

Iowa Masons Elect R. J. Camblin Grand Master

Sioux City, Ia., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—At the annual session of the grand council Royal Arch Masons of Iowa this afternoon, Ross J. Camblin of Atlantic was elected grand master. Albert H. Holt of Waterloo was elected grand treasurer, and D. M. Brownlee of Sioux City was reelected grand secretary.

Mother of Only Child Isn't the Only Parent with Hard Problems

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Mothers of only children need to be encouraged about four times a year! They come in for so much "razzing" on the outside that they often get into a state where they are always on the defensive. And they sometimes get to have an inferior feeling as mothers and see all kinds of faults in their only child.

They get, too, into a state where they think that if they had two or more children everything would be "okay."

Now, I don't deny that the mothers of only children have their special problems, but it may comfort them to know that it isn't all peaches and cream when you have more than one child, either.

Here is the sort of thing which may crop up—actual cases, too. Of two brothers the elder is so domineering and aggressive that the parents find it necessary for the sake of the younger to keep the boys separated as much as possible—very inconvenient, to say the least.

Of two who are twins one is so nervous that he is having a bad effect on the other, and boarding school for one is going to be resorted to.

In a large family all were daughters, then there was a long gap and a son was born. He is alternately hovered over and henpecked by the girls and overindulged by his parents.

In another family there are two children who quarrel and tease and can't play together. They are just too far apart in age, one is jealous of the other, and there isn't a child anywhere in the neighborhood to adulterate the enforced exclusiveness of their play.

I know of large families where the very size of the family has created problems. I know of others where there are children all out of key with themselves and the world at large—or as we say, badly maladjusted. I knew of still others with two or three children in the family just as "spoiled" and selfish as any only child I ever saw.

Makes Your Skin Look So Youthful

New face powder stays on longer—prevents large pores

It is a duty to look and feel young. In this respect, nothing can be more helpful than the latest achievement of French scientists, new wonderful Mello-glo face powder. Used by beautiful women everywhere. It literally reproduces the bloom of youth. Never gives a pasty or flaky look.

This delicately fragrant powder stays on longer, spreads smoothly and evenly. Its amazingly fine particles are sifted through close-meshed silk. Blends with any complexion and banishes all ugly "shine." Subdues tiny lines and wrinkles. Enlarged pores will be hidden completely.

No purer, gentler powder could be made. There is not a trace of lead or any other element that will irritate the most sensitive skin. The purest face powder known. Give Mello-glo just one trial. One Dollar at all stores.

Society Helps Fashion Show for St. Luke's

BY THALIA——

THERE were enough smart fall clothes at the tea Mrs Newton Perry gave in her lovely apartment at 1325 Astor street yesterday afternoon for the committee working for the St. Luke's fashion show, to be held a week from next Tuesday, to make a perfectly delectable pre-showing. Crowds of debutantes came trooping in after the Servis club rehearsal looking like so many young fashion plates.

The board members had met earlier in the day for lunch at the Casino, but they still were deciding where to distribute posters, telling everybody that there were 4 more boxes sold than last year due to Mrs. Kersey Coles Reed's strenuous efforts, and discussing all sorts of plans over tea in Mrs. Perry's emerald and ivory dining room. The debutantes were called to the meeting to be assigned their various jobs, modeling, selling flowers, or cigarets, and what not. They included the Perrys' daughter, Polly, in an afternoon frock of dark brown velvet with square neck and puffed sleeves, who was assisting at the tea table; Betty Brown, daughter of the Charles Edward Browns; Margaret Chapman, in a rust colored crêpe frock and smart brown hat; Alice May Dickinson, Jane Valentine, Jane Fortune, Adelaide Atkin, Louise Neff, in a stunning French blue coat with big metal buttons and matching hat; Anne Swift, Isabel Gordon, Florence Carr, in a bright green and black suit trimmed with black caracul, and some 15 or 20 more.

Mrs. Henry Faurot Jr. and Mrs. Charles F. Glore, just back from Paris, tended to prove by example Mrs. Faurot's exclamation that she had attended five fashion shows there because the styles were so revolutionary. Mrs. Faurot wore a chic brown frock with diagonal fagoting and a tilted brown felt hat. Mrs. Glore was in brown, too, adding a braided felt hat with upstanding quills.

Others on the board there included Mrs. A. Watson Armour and her daughter, Miss Elisa Armour, wearing a delectable fawn colored suit edged in fox and a brown turban; Mrs. Melvin Traylor, a new board member; Mrs. John W. Gary, chairman of the board; Mrs. Frank Hibbard, Mrs. William L. Hodgkins, Mrs. Walter Wolf and her daughter, Mrs. Walter Field McLallen III., just returned from her wedding trip; Mrs. J. R. Fifield and Mrs. Press Hodgkins.

English Speaking Union Lunch Has Is Fashion Display.

The English Speaking union's luncheon for Sir Alexander Lawrence yesterday was one of the largest the E. S. U. ever has had, and was correspondingly gay and festive. There were 800 present, all of them intent listeners to Sir Alexander's talk on "England's Crisis," which followed the luncheon. The interest of the subject was doubtless responsible for the presence of a great many more than can usually be induced into attending a midday affair.

Perhaps the women, at least, were no anguine about the possibility of suing such a complicated business as the British financial situation in relation to the rest of the world in a nutshell, because most of them were reacting as they came out of the Palmer house red lacquer room that they didn't know much more than when they arrived.

They looked very smart, though. The luncheon included the speaker's Chicago hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell D. Follansbee; Mrs. William G. Hibbard, at whose Wilmette residence he spent the week-end; Mrs. Hibbard's sister, Mrs. William B. Hale, who was wearing a chic fall frock of blue and black plaid wool and a navy blue hat; Mrs. John V. Farwell, Mrs. Leroy Fuller and her daughter, Mrs. Bruce Borland; the Frederick T. Vauxes, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Sheriff, Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Miss Helen Gilbert, Mrs. William Conger and her daughter, Miss Cornelia Conger; Mrs. Freeman Hinckley, Miss Marie Rozet, Mrs. James Offield, Miss Clara Lake, Mrs. Morris Rosenfeld and her daughter, Mrs. Helen Walton, and Mrs. Scott Durand. Mrs. Jacob Baur and Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick, just back a few days from Europe, were being welcomed on all sides.

Sartorial details particularly noticeable were Mrs. Chadwick's Parisian looking gray coat and her tiny gray hat, very Eugenieish, Mrs. Richard Gentley's tomato colored crepe frock, Mrs. Walter S. Brewster's oyster white felt hat with a lacquered quill across the front, and Mrs. Morris L. Johnston's becoming black outfit, crêpe dress and black velvet hat with bright red flat feathers dipping down in front. Others present included Mrs. John L. Senior, the Nell Cowhams, Mrs. E. Harris Brewer, Angus S. Hibbard, Mrs. John A. Chapman, Miss Lucy Martin, Mrs. Townsend McKeever, and Mrs. Americus F. Callahan.

Mr. Frank G. Logan's birthday party this evening to celebrate his 80th birthday will be a family affair, because Mrs. Logan hasn't been well enough for a larger celebration. The Logans' daughter, Mrs. Charles A. Munroe, has come on from Greenwich, Conn., and Howard and Spencer Logan are here from New York to wish their father "many happy returns." Waldo Logan, who is in California, is the only member of the second generation who couldn't be here for the occasion.

Personals—The Edgar C. Crosmans of New York City have named their infant son, born on Sept. 26, Patrick Farrell Crosman, after his proud grandfather, Dr. P. J. H. Farrell. Mrs. Farrell has gone on to New York to visit the Crosmans, and Dr. Farrell will join her later this month. After their New York stay the Farrells will go to visit their son, Lieut. Greatsinger Farrell, who is on duty with the aeronautics bureau in Washington, D. C., and his family before returning to Chicago. . . . Mr. and Mrs. John F. L. Curtis have moved into their own apartment at 1200 Lake Shore drive from Lake Forest.

WORK FOR HOSPITAL

Left to right—Mrs. Press Hodgkins, Mrs. Charles F. Glore, Mrs. Henry Faurot Jr., and Mrs. Walter Wolf. These members of the St. Luke's hospital women's board met at the Casino for a luncheon yesterday to discuss plans for the annual fashion show to take place at the Stevens hotel on Tuesday afternoon and evening, Oct. 20. FRANCO-GERMAN TENSION IS CALLED HARM TO BRITAIN

Sir Alexander Lawrence, formerly chief assistant treasury solicitor of Great Britain and active in the Liberal party, in an address yesterday before the English Speaking union in the Palmer house said he believed Franco-German tension to be at the root of the world's troubles. He added that anything to relieve that tension will assist in clearing the world situation.

Talking on "England's Crisis," Sir Alexander laid the blame for the world depression upon many conditions, including the hoarding of gold. He declared himself now in favor of a high protective tariff for England, although he always has been opposed to such.

"I believe," he said, "that a high protective tariff would increase employment in England, stabilize home industries, provide a new source of revenue for the government, and protect the English farmer from the excessive competition he now faces in the dumping of commodities by other nations in British markets."

France's feeling toward Germany has led France to resist all disarmament proposals and to hoard gold, Sir Alexander said.

Tricky Weights Will Be Part of Food Show

Housewives who attend the national food show at the Merchandise Mart beginning Oct. 19 will learn a thing of two about weighing and measuring from City Sealer Joe Grein. How unscrupulous merchants and venders may cheat a customer will be shown in a booth. Confiscated scales and measuring units will be on display.

City Sealer Grein selected some of those articles yesterday at his office in the city hall. There were bushel baskets with false bottoms used for delivering coal; tin pails with enormous dents, and scales giving short weight.

"This is what we call the puzzle scales," Mr. Grein explained, pointing out an old-fashioned model taken from a meat market about three months ago. "It is an ounce short on the first pound, two ounces on the second, three on the third. In fact, it is off about six ounces on five pounds. We've tried every possible way to discover how those scales were fixed, but we haven't."

Short-weighing of babies is the one phase of the weights and measures situation in which he is not disposed to enforce the strict letter of the law, Mr. Grein said yesterday when a manufacturer of baby scales brought one of his products to the city hall for testing. The manufacturer suggested that it might come within the sealer's province to call at all of the hospitals in the city and test their baby scales, to make sure that when a proud father gets the news that it is a seven and a half pound boy, he gets a full seven pounds and eight ounces of howling humanity.

Warless and Dry World Sought by Church Group

Wichita, Kas., Oct. 6.—Condemnation of war as a means of settling international disputes, definite support of national prohibition, and a plea for all Christians to exercise their right of suffrage were embodied in resolutions adopted at the closing session of the National Evangelistic association here today. The association elected Dr. Claude E. Hill, pastor of the First Christian church, Tulsa, Okla., as president.

Jean Escarra of Paris to Talk at Northwestern

Jean Escarra, professor of law at the University of Paris and legal advisor to the Chinese government, has been selected to lecture at Northwestern university, it was announced yesterday.

Prof. Escarra will give his first lecture Monday in Lincoln hall on McKinlock campus. He will also be guest of honor Monday at a luncheon given by the foreign consuls.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

This dress has unusually prettily cuffed sleeves and a rather dashing rever collar. Its diagonal lines are decidedly slimming, and there is just enough flare to the skirt to be chick. This is accomplished by full circular insets each side of the front of the skirt. Black crêpe satin, combined with a turquoise blue, made the original model, and very stunning it was.

The pattern, 2820, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material, with ¾ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Higher Court Backs Police Case Against 'Sex Madness'

Justices of the Appellate court yesterday declared that the scenes in a motion picture, "Sex Madness," were immoral and irrelevant to the theme and reversed the decision of a jury in the court of Superior Judge Harry B. Miller, which ordered former Acting Police Commissioner Alcock to issue a permit for the showing of the film. Lemuel A. Edwards, a motion picture distributor, brought the original suit. The city appealed the ruling of the lower court.

A. Dunham Starts Organ Recitals in Loop on Friday

Arthur Dunham, Chicago composer and organist, will begin his series of 60 noon day organ recitals at the Methodist temple, next Friday, Oct. 13. These programs are the gift of George W. Dixon and Mrs. William W. Dixon. A feature of this, the eighth season, will be nearly twenty of Mr. Dunham's own compositions, two of which "Nocturne at Twilight" and "Toccata in C Minor," he will play next Friday for the first time anywhere.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hoover was the guest of honor today at the marriage of Miss Eleanor Hard, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hard of Chicago and Washington, to Gerard Kirsopp Lake, son of the Rev. Kirsopp Lake, professor of ecclesiastical history at Harvard. The ceremony took place at noon today in Bethlehem chapel of the Washington cathedral. It was performed by the Rev. James Henderson of the faculty of the Cathedral School for Boys and was followed by a breakfast in the home of the bride's parents at Georgetown. The bride had as attendant Countess Felicia Gizycka, daughter of Mrs. Eleanor Medill Patterson of Chicago and Washington. Abraham Hewitt of New York was the best man.

BILLIE BURKE. As this recent photograph shows, the years have only increased her charm! She says: "It is important above all to guard complexion beauty. I use Lux Toilet Soap regularly."

"I am 39!" SAYS BILLIE BURKE

Famous stage Beauty declares no woman needs look her age

I REALLY am 39 years old!" says Billie Burke. "And I don't see why any woman should look her age.

"We on the stage, of course, must keep our youthful freshness. Youth wins and holds the public as nothing else can.

"So one must be wise enough to keep this charm right through the years. To do this it is important above everything else to guard complexion beauty—keep one's skin temptingly fresh and smooth.

"For years I have used Lux Toilet Soap regularly. It leaves my skin amazingly clear and soft."

At 39 Billie Burke has just signed up for a series of motion pictures in Hollywood! She will find the actresses there, like the stage stars, are devoted to Lux Toilet Soap. Actually 605 of the 613 important ones use this fragrant white soap to guard complexion beauty—regularly!

"TEETHING should cause no trouble"

Say BABY SPECIALISTS

HELP THE BABY THESE WAYS:

1. Do not attempt to "rub" the teeth through the gums. Gums are very easily injured.
2. If gums are very swollen, have a physician see them.
3. After teeth come through, clean them daily by brushing gently with a soft brush and plain water.
4. Give hard crusts and crackers to chew on (at meal time only) after the first teeth are through. This exercises teeth, gums, muscles and jaws.
5. Plenty of sunshine, fresh air and proper food.

Teething, authorities say, is a perfectly natural part of growing. If a baby is fed and cared for properly, he will cut his teeth with little or no trouble at all.

One of the most important phases of care in the teething period is to see that waste matter is carried off promptly.

For this there's nothing like Castoria. It is made specially for the delicate needs of babies and children. It acts so gently, you can give it to young infants to relieve colic pains. Yet it is always effective—keeps older children well regulated.

When your baby is fretful and feverish with a stomach disturbance, or a cold, give a cleansing dose of Castoria to make him comfortable and happy. Be sure you get real Castoria—with the name Chas. H. Fletcher on the package.

Chas. H. Fletcher.

Margaret Rawlings — Wilfrid Walter
Catherine Lacey — Alaistair Sim

Chicago Critics' Tribute:

"I enjoyed 'The Venetian.' . . . Written with a sound modern touch: neither old-fashioned nor 'smart,' and tells a fine story of passion and intrigue. . . . Miss Rawlings a charming discovery, and Mr. Walter vivid and picturesque. Well cast in every role."—Mr. Collins in The Tribune.

"Distinguished play: moves with mounting surety to an heroic last act. A play of charm, with no obvious tricks in writing, acting, or direction. Mr. Bax's text spoken by all with notable clarity. . . . 'Tis my guess that last night's audience will keep hearing the overtones of 'The Venetian'."—Mr. Lewis in The Daily News.

"A memorable evening! Superb play, beautifully written and gorgeously acted by Miss Rawlings, Mr. Walter, Miss Lacey, Mr. Sim, and all the others."—Mr. Blocki in The American.

"A triumph for the Dramatic League, Miss Van Volkenburg, Mr. Browne, the author, and all the actors. Don't let it pass!"—Mr. Borden in The Times.

The Marriage Racket

By VINA DELMAR

SYNOPSIS.

Irma Corbin and Don Philippe de Rodriques, hoofers, with their pianist, Tom Libbr, arrive in Thrace for a week's vaudeville engagement. A convention is being held in the town and the hotels are overflowing. Philippe grabs the first vacancy. Tom and Irma inquire at the town's leading hostelry, where Tom runs into an old friend, Bill Fitzroy. Tom finds a cot and Bill turns over his room to Irma. Bill invites Irma to a dinner party in the hotel, where she meets Wallace Graham, a widower. Wallace has a young daughter, Mildred, who has grown up under the supervision of her Aunt Tessie. Bill and Wallace shower invitations on the pretty dancer. Wallace asks Irma to be his wife. Bill's proposal to her is of a different nature. Irma quarrels with Philippe and quits the act. She marries Wallace and settles down to a dull existence with him. A baby son arrives to compensate her for any flaws in the marriage system. The baby becomes the center of her universe.

INSTALLMENT XV.

A JOY KILLER.

Dr. Pease departed. Irma did not see him to the door. She was getting the drops into the baby's left nostril. A cold wasn't anything, she told herself. There was, of course, a certain amount of danger. Colds were forerunners of a score of deadly illnesses, but if well taken care of there should be no cause for worry.

Wallace wasn't worried. "A cold is nothing," he said when he came home from the office and Irma told him about the baby.

"It's advance man for a lot of things," she said.

"O, bell, if you're set on worrying I won't interfere with your pleasures. Sure, practically all bad illnesses begin with colds. Feel better now?"

Irma ate hurriedly. She wanted to get back to the baby. She could hear him coughing as she gulped her food.

"Excuse me," she said suddenly and dashed away from the table, leaving the others still at the table. She had a horrible notion that the baby was strangling. He wasn't, but he needed attention. It was fifteen minutes later before Irma was able to go downstairs again. She wanted her coffee badly. Perhaps Wallace had waited to have his with her. But, no, he was gone. Irma gazed curiously at the table. It had been cleared and reset. She noticed a clean table cloth and the best set of china glittering whitely up at her. As she stared wonderingly Mildred came in carrying a tray full of small yellow crêpe paper baskets. There were jelly beans in the baskets. Mildred moved about silent and intense, placing a basket at each plate. She was like a tall young priestess going through a ritual. She went to the kitchen. When she came back she set a huge papier maché pumpkin head in the center of the table.

"O," said Irma, "this is Halloween."

"Sure. Didn't you know it?"

"No." Irma shook her head thoughtfully. "Your friends are coming, aren't they?"

"Yes, I told you last week that they were."

"But I didn't know then that the baby was going to be sick, Mildred."

"What's that got to do with it? They won't bother him."

"No, of course not. A party of young people makes no noise at all." Irma's tone was bitter.

"He won't wake up, Irma. We'll be quiet. Honest we will."

"Gee, Mildred, I hate to be a joy killer, but he will wake up, and he has a fever, you know."

Mildred wheeled about from the buffet where she was arranging a massive pile of fruit. "Don't be whiney about it, Irma. You want me to call the party off, don't you? Then for pity's sake, say so. Don't whine."

Irma was conscious in that moment of being very small and ridiculous. There was something so fearfully adult and dignified about Mildred's height and flashing eyes.

"I wanted to be nice," she said weakly. "I wanted you to suggest postponing the party."

"Sure you did. You wanted to have your way without being responsible for my disappointment. You're mean, Irma, and you can't bear to see me have a good time."

"That's a lie."

"It isn't. You know darn well that we wouldn't hurt your baby if we had a party here tonight. He doesn't wake up easily at all."

"He does."

"All right, he does. I don't want to argue with you about it."

Irma saw the swinging door open and Wallace stood in the doorway. His lips looked hard and narrow. "What's all this about?" he asked.

Irma also saw Bill Fitzroy at Wallace's elbow. She had forgotten that he was coming. Wallace had evidently mixed a drink in the kitchen. Each man held a tall glass in his hand.

Mildred said, "Irma will tell you."

She walked away then. Irma knew that tears were very close to Mildred's eyes. It was a terrible disappointment to her. The little yellow baskets with the varl-colored jelly beans looked very pathetic now. Irma had to think hard about the baby to keep from calling Mildred and offering an apology. He ought not to be awakened when he was feverish. She was doing the right thing for him. It was too bad that Mildred suffered, but it couldn't be helped.

"I don't think there should be a party here tonight," she said to Wallace.

"Why not?"

"The baby. He's sick."

"Sick? He's got a cold. Good God, Irma, you're expecting too much. Mildred has some rights, you know."

Bill Fitzroy closed the door and retreated to the kitchen. Down the hall he could hear Mildred talking on the telephone. He walked up and down the blue checkered linoleum, shaking his head. This was marriage. Involvements, disagreements and emotions scattered throughout complicating matters beyond all hope of decent compromise.

Mildred entered the kitchen. She took a basket from the pantry shelf and began filling it with boxes and tins. He saw marshmallows, figs, crackers and many other things disappearing into the capacious basket.

"Going out?" he asked.

"Yes. Beatrice Court says I can move the party over there. She's calling the crowd up."

"Why didn't you wait? Your father is trying to arrange things so you can have it here."

Mildred laughed shortly. "Say, I wouldn't have the party here for anything now. If the baby got erysipelas when he was forty-one it would still be my fault."

She pushed the swinging door into the dining room. Bill heard Wallace and Irma fall silent as Mildred joined them. She came back to the kitchen presently, carrying the table decorations with her.

Bill was struck by the calm purposefulness of the girl. He wanted to help her somehow.

"Can you dance at Beatrice's?" he asked.

"No."

He drew a card from his pocket and wrote, "Admit Mildred Graham and any number of friends." "Here," he said, "you can take your crowd up to the place if you like."

"O, thanks, that's fine." She got her hat and coat and slung the basket over her arm.

Wallace opened the door and called to her.

"Yes, daddy."

He came into the kitchen. "You can have the party here providing the children leave at ten o'clock." He examined the pattern of the blue checkered linoleum as he spoke. She was not deceived by the careless manner in which he threw his words. She knew that he was ashamed to look at her.

She caught the corner of her lip between her teeth and shook her head. "I'm going out," she said.

"Will you be late?"

"I don't know. Good night."

"Good night."

Bill and Wallace listened to her footsteps crunch on the gravel driveway. When they could be heard no more Wallace said, "Well, Bill, how about another drink?"

"No, thanks. Think I'll run along."

"Bill, don't go." Wallace moved closer and lowered his voice. "Bill, stay a while, can't you? This is going to be a tough night for me." He motioned toward the door and the gravel driveway. "She's never been out alone at night before," he added by way of explanation.

* * * * * * * * *

The baby's cold lasted three days and then departed, leaving him as well as he had been before. Irma was fittingly grateful to the powers that be for the shortness and harmlessness of the baby's illness. It was not easy to forget, however, that there had been a night when she had thought him too ill to bear a noisy crowd in the house. Mildred was not the sort to bear a grudge, but Aunt Tessie's reproachful eyes told Irma that she had been guilty of the unforgivable. Wallace, too, was somehow different. Irma wondered if he thought his marriage to her had been a dreadful mistake. It probably had been, she thought gloomily. Nobody but Mildred had wholly forgiven her for her actions on Halloween night. Strange that it should be Mildred, and Mildred alone, whose behavior toward her still bore some traces of the high, open-hearted enthusiasm with which the Grahams had first greeted her.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Family Needs Assistance.

"I am a married man 32 years of age and the father of five children. I am out of work and my wife is expecting another baby. We all need clothing. If I do not get a pair of shoes soon I cannot walk any more, for my feet are on the ground. I wear size 7½ or 8 and size 36 in a suit. My wife needs clothing for the new baby and for the other children, too. The girls are 10, 6, 4, and 2. The boy is 9. We will appreciate anything you can do for us. D. A."

When an already large family increases in number and the father is out of work he has plenty to worry about. Can you lighten his burden a bit by giving any clothing you may be ready to discard?

Wells Will Sail for U. S. Today; Has New Plan

LONDON, Oct. 6.—(AP)—International coöperation controlled by experts and a worldwide scheme of public works "could turn the world around toward prosperity by the end of next year," H. G. Wells said today. Wells intends to sail tomorrow to divide a month between New York and Chicago. Wells said he visions a "federal world," acting through boards of experts, but not having a "world parliament."

"The immediate need," he said, "is for a world money under the control of an intertional currency board. We must have world control of speculation and international banking as well.

"I would put international freight rates under the same system as the Postal Union," he added, "and we must have a world board of health—another on labor. For instance, child workers in Egypt might hold down the standard of living of workers in Lancashire."

His scheme of public works would virtually remake the world.

"I mean the rebuilding of whole cities, highways and reforestation," he said. "There are innumerable things to be done and in that instead of watching football and baseball games, hundreds of thousands could do scientific work which an ordinary man can help with."

"In fifteen years," he said, "the world would reap the benefit."

"The world must get rid of the idea of private enterprise and working for profit," he said, "and capitalism must face very considerable modifications."

Food Talk.

Okra, the vegetable which resembles a diminutive green pepper, is rapidly becoming better known in the United States. It is famous in the south, particularly in New Orleans, and is as well known in Cuban kitchens as is our tomato here. It is referred to as either "okra" or "gumbo," though the latter name is Jamaican in origin. Cubans claim to have devised over fifty different methods of preparing this vegetable. Though the extent of my "okra vocabulary" is nine, I hope you will try, and enjoy, okra cooked in the two ways suggested below.

These recipes are given at the request of Mr. L. C.—and glad we are to welcome a "gentleman cook" to the column.

SOUTHERN SHRIMP GUMBO.

3 slices of bacon.
1 heaping tablespoon of flour.
1 green pepper, minced.
1 onion, chopped fine.
Salt and pepper.
1 can of tomatoes [small].
1 can of okra [small].
1 can of shrimp [wet packed].
1 tablespoon of spicy sauce.

Sauté the onion in the bacon fat, with salt and pepper seasoning. Put all the ingredients together in a casserole and bake in moderate oven [375 degrees Fahrenheit] until the okra is tender, about thirty minutes. Serve on cooked rice. If you like, add buttered coarse bread crumbs when nearly done; brown, and serve without rice.

OKRA GUMBO.

2 slices of bacon.
1½ tablespoons of butter.
1 medium sized onion.
1 pint of tomatoes.
1 pint of corn, cut fine [canned corn may be used].
1 cup of boiled rice.
2 cups of chicken soup stock.
1 pint of cooked okra.
Salt and pepper to taste.

Cut the bacon in small pieces and fry in a skillet. Add the butter and minced onion. Fry until brown. Add the tomatoes, which have been cut in bits, the corn, and then add all the remaining ingredients. Simmer over a low flame about an hour.

Here is a real treat in a salad. It makes a perfect course if you are having a party luncheon or an afternoon bridge.

BANANA SALAD.

Cut small bananas in halves, lengthwise. Take out the pulp, keeping the skins intact. Marinate in lemon juice to keep white. Seed white grapes and cut in two. Allow ½ of a cup of grapes for each banana. Dice ½ of a cup of pears or peaches and ½ of a cup of pineapple. Drain the banana pulp and mix all the fruit together. Fill the banana skins, and top with a fruit salad dressing. Serve on a bed of crisp lettuce.

INDIAN CURRY.

¼ cup of butter.
1½ tablespoons of curry powder.
2¼ cups of milk, or soup stock.
¾ cup of diced onion [very fine].
1 cup of onions thinly sliced.
1½ teaspoons of salt.

Melt the butter and sauté the sliced onions in it until brown. Remove from the fat, and set aside. Add to the butter in the pan the curry powder, minced onions, and salt. Add the meat which has been cut in tiny cubes, mix well, and add the stock or milk. Stew slowly.

Double Chin Can Separate All Its Chic from New Hat

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Heaven help the poor working girl, her mother, her aunt, and her social registerite sister if she's caught out with a double chin under one of those one-eyed derbies passing off now as millinery.

Test enough that sort of headgear over a face that hasn't yet made its official debut in the adult world! A chin extra, in incipient stage or gross, isn't even humorous under our current millinery circumstances. It might be—but it isn't. And least of all to the girl who has one.

—o—

Then those new necklines upon which our courturiers have been concentrating of late! Try wearing one of them with a pouchy chin and you have two of 'em. Chins—not necklines. Chins—and no neckline, is better!

Anyway, if ever a chin line had to be chiseled down to schoolgirl contour, it's this year or never! No use trying to bury it in the long-haired fur collar. It's one of the sins that can't be buried. As has been said time and again, there's no chic, no distinction, no real smartness of appearance to be gained where the neckline drops or thickens.

You can "muscle-in" on the better profile quickly enough if you'll promise religiously to do what you're told here and now. Promise to do it with a determined purpose. I want you to tense your muscles as you do these movements. Just flopping the head around listelessly won't do a particle of good. Tense the muscles of your neck while you make a complete circle with your head. First, twist the head circle-round, starting from left to right; then from right to left. This will prevent dizziness. Do five times each way.

Then, take the same head and turn it to the left until the chin is over the shoulder. Bend head back, slowly turning the face towards the ceiling. Raise and do the same exercise to right. These two exercises alone practiced morning and night for a month will do a surprising lot of firming where it is needed. For good measure you might add this one: Lie flat on the back. Raise the head, without lifting the shoulders, so that you can see your toes. Ten times. This is good for the chin, incidentally, for the back of the neck, too.

I am employed in a store as a guide. One morning I had about ten people from out of town on a tour. As we were in the elevator I was thinking of how I had to buy shoe polish and instead of calling out second floor as I intended to, I called, "Shoe polish, please," which set the place in an uproar of laughter. I believe I came down to earth fast enough, and I was teased by some of them. What an embarrassing moment! E. K.

Beware when told "It's just like Kotex"

WHEN a substitute claims to be "just like Kotex," ask where it was made. By whom. How. Is it used by leading hospitals?

Only when these questions are answered to your complete satisfaction, as Kotex answers them, can any substitute justify its claim, "just like Kotex."

After all, why take risks? You know the wonderful safety of Kotex—the world's standard in sanitary protection. In your own interest, we urge: when you buy sanitary napkins already wrapped, inquire: "Is this Kotex?" Thus make sure you get nothing but the genuine Kotex.

ALWAYS TIRED ✣ HERE'S X-RAY OF THE TROUBLE ✣ FRESH YEAST WILL CORRECT IT!

Trouble here! X-ray shows typical clogged condition of the intestines. This trouble may lead to really serious ill health unless corrected! For this purpose famous doctors advise . . :

"It's a typical case of INTESTINAL FATIGUE"

Thousands are missing Perfect Health because of Constipation! Are you?

IRRITABLE. Listless. No ambition. "Pep" completely gone!

Why do we meet so many people like that today? People who have lost all joy in living. People prematurely old. People who suffer from frequent headaches . . . bad skin . . . indigestion . . . colds . . .

Doctors—including the foremost physicians in Europe and America—have studied this problem for years.

Now that blunt statement may startle you. But here's why it is true.

Every bit of food you eat must pass into your intestines. Every bit of nourishment this food yields must be absorbed from this organ.

Now imagine what happens when the delicate passages of your intestines become clogged!

Waste matter accumulates . . . stagnates. Putrefaction sets in. And as a result, poisons form and filter into your blood.

You lose appetite, feel "logy," dull. Headaches and sore throats multiply. Your stomach is upset, your breath bad, your tongue appears coated and white.

Now, realizing the immediate need of relief, many people vainly turn to cathartics, laxatives, habit-forming pills, etc.

But these are violent measures—harsh, crude—and temporary at best. In time, they usually make an unhealthy condition even worse!

Today, all over the world, prominent physicians are advocating a simpler and far more sensible method . . . the regular, daily eating of fresh yeast!

A food, fresh yeast has a truly remarkable effect. It softens the hardened masses of undigested waste matter in your intestines, and at the same time stimulates the natural action that removes them regularly.

Thus sluggish intestines are literally "toned up"—strengthened. Internal secretions are fostered. Poisons are checked . . . the underlying cause of those draggy, pepless days exists no more!

Why don't you give Fleischmann's Yeast a trial? Just eat 3 cakes a day, regularly—before meals, or between meals and at bedtime—plain or dissolved in a third of a glass of water. Try it today!

Important Fleischmann's Yeast for health is sold only in the foil-wrapped cake with the yellow label. It is yeast in its fresh, effective form—the kind famous doctors recommend. At grocers', restaurants, soda fountains. Rich in health-giving vitamins B, G and D.

NORTHWESTERN LOSES RUSSELL FOR NOTRE DAME GAME

FULL BACK MAY BE OUT OF PLAY REST OF SEASON

Vertebra Cracked in Nebraska Tilt.

Bob Russell, full back and leading ground gainer of the Northwestern football team, will be unable to play against Notre Dame in the charity game at Soldiers' field Saturday afternoon.

An X-ray examination yesterday revealed that Russell had suffered a cracked vertebra and a broken rib in the game with Nebraska last week end.

There is a strong possibility, according to Coach Dick Hanley, that Russell will be lost for the season. He will be out of the lineup for at least four weeks.

Hurt Retrieving Fumble.

The injury occurred in the fourth quarter of the Nebraska game at Dyche stadium last Saturday. Russell fumbled the ball and in his effort to retrieve it was trampled upon by several opposing players. He did not report for practice Monday or yesterday, but his condition was not thought to be serious until last night.

"There is no danger of permanent ill effects to Russell," Coach Hanley said, "but it would be hazardous to put him into the game for at least a week.

"Loss of Russell upsets our whole system of attack. He was the boy whose plunging almost brought defeat to Notre Dame a year ago. We counted him to be equally effective this time. The threat of Russell's plunges also would have helped to make Rentner more dangerous as a ball carrier.

Full Back Post a Jinx.

"This has caught us by surprise and I won't know until tomorrow after trying out various combinations just how we shall line up in the back field against Notre Dame."

Notre Dame lost its regular full back two weeks ago when Lukats' ankle was fractured.

The full back position has been a jinx in Notre Dame-Northwestern games of late. Last year Notre Dame applied Joe Savoldi, its star full back, to the university a few days before the Northwestern game. Mullins, the substitute, played with a lame knee. Rentner, the Northwestern full back, was out of the game most of the game.

Another Purple casualty is Ed Manske, sophomore end, who is suffering from a blow on the leg received in Monday's practice. He, too, will be unable to return to practice for several days.

Pins Rockne Tribute.

At the close of practice yesterday Coach Hanley expressed concern over his reserves, feeling that lack of suitable substitutes, especially in the line, will have a big bearing on the outcome of Saturday's game. The fact that the B team was able to administer a 7 to 0 licking to the varsity subs Monday night was given as an indication of strength.

President Walter Dill Scott announced that if Soldiers' field is filled to capacity approximately $70,000 will be added to the $100,000 already contributed to charity.

Just before the start of the game, the band will march to the flag pole at the north end of the field, where the flag will be raised during the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner." After the colors have been raised there will be a roll of drums as the flag is lowered. The band will then spell out the name Rockne across the field. Trumpeters will then sound taps.

PROF. ANDERSON THROWS LIGHT ON WILDCATS' PLAYS

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 6.—This college football is hard work. It's no study for a mental weakling any time, but just before a big game like the battle Saturday between Notre Dame and Northwestern it carries all the thrills of calculus or any such subject with which only the best minds are familiar.

We watched the Notre Dame varsity squad at its lessons under Prof. Hunk Anderson this noon. We sat in the back of the room and watched fifty or more husky lads, with pencil and paper, take notes on the lecture. The subject was defense.

Now we are not going to detail all of Anderson's plans on how the Irish will stop Pug Rentner and other Northwestern backs. Any defense follows fundamental principles and Notre Dame's plans probably are no different. It needs more than mental alertness to stop a smash into the line or a spindling 110 pound guard with a 46 ounce brain would be a star guard. But it also follows that a 200 pound lineman must have something under his headgear in this age of spinners, lateral passes, and what not.

Many Notes and Diagrams.

So Prof. Anderson, from the knowledge of wing back formations gained in ten years of post-graduate study under Rockne, lectured. He had at hand the copious diagrams and notes which Ike Voedisch, an assistant who a few years back was a star end for Notre Dame, had transcribed last Saturday while Northwestern was blistering Nebraska, 19 to 7.

Northwestern's formations were put on the blackboard. And there were a lot of questions like: "Yarr, what do you do when you see this one with Rentner here and Meenan there and its first down and ten yards to go?" Or, Kosac, Mahoney, and on down the line were asked about such and such.

These mental exercises may be compared with the studies under way at Evanston under Prof. Dick Hanley. Prof. Hanley, chalk in hand in the squad room at Dyche stadium, probably is drawing diagrams this week and telling Marvil and Riley what to do when Marchmont Schwartz starts off tackle. And, incidentally, Pat Hanley brought Brother Dick a sheaf of notes on how Notre Dame whipped Indiana, 25 to 0, last Saturday.

A Difficult Chapter.

Notre Dame studies its own plays all the time, but each week it also must learn what to expect from its

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

The White Sox, the team the folks were pitying only a few weeks back, are the baseball champions of Chicago.

They deserved their victory. Even the most enthusiastic Cub supporters will admit that. They got good pitching, timely hitting, and had a confidence that reflected the personality of their fighting leader, Donie Bush.

There is a saying among philosophers that in every change something is lost, something is gained, and something abides.

It's that way with the Northwestern-Notre Dame football game. When you look back at that memorable struggle at Dyche stadium last November you realize it.

Northwestern has lost Bruder, Hanley, Baker, Woodworth, Clark, and others. It has gained Meenan, Olson, Potter, and Weldin, as fine a group of sophomore talent as has appeared on a Big Ten gridiron in years.

Notre Dame has lost Rockne. No team could suffer a worse loss. But in addition it has graduated Carideo, Brill, Mullins, Metzger, Conley, and at least six more fine players. It has gained Banas, Sheeketski, Krause, and Kozac.

But there still abides that old Northwestern-Notre Dame rivalry. There is no keener competition in midwest football.

The setup this year is different from 1930. Rockne in commenting on his team's prospects the first week of the season said it probably would lose a couple of games, but Northwestern would not be one of them. He never wavered in his prediction. Dick Hanley made no public forecast, although his close friends knew he felt his team had a fine chance to win. This fall Anderson, the new leader of the Irish, has none of his predecessor's optimism. He admits his team can't win, Hanley feels the same.

So it must be that the game is going to end in a scoreless tie. Offhand, I say that would be a satisfactory result. It would take the kick out of 1931 football to have either one of these great teams defeated so early in the season.

Charlie Retzlaff Knocks Out Rocco in 8th Round

ARMY AND NAVY AGAIN TO MEET IN CHARITY GAME

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Navy Adams and Assistant Secretary of War Frederick H. Payne definitely agreed today that a second Army-Navy game shall be held this year and the proceeds turned over to charity. The probable date is Dec. 12.

Chicago has a chance to draw the game, but not an excellent one. Representative Fred A. Britten of Chicago is working hard to persuade Army and Navy heads that the contest should be in the west. Certain officials are inclined to agree with him.

But a majority of officials at the present time are in favor of New York, scene of the game last year when the long standing eligibility dispute between the two service schools was set aside temporarily in order to raise funds for charity.

Argue Expense of Western Trip.

It is argued that a western trip would take the cadets away from work for too long a time and would prove unduly expensive, thus cutting into the possible profits.

Representative Britten, on the other hand, contends that the west deserves a chance to see something of the schools it helps support, particularly at this time, when a bit of enthusiasm over something governmental would assist in restoring confidence.

As proof of the reception the academies would receive and of the receipts that would be forthcoming Representative Britten cites the record crowd that gathered at Soldiers' field in 1926 to watch the last regularly scheduled game before the two schools broke off football relations.

Call in School Heads.

Wherever this year's game is played, it was decided today by Secretary Adams and Assistant Secretary Payne, the receipts will be turned over to the President's relief organization for distribution. Last year the $600,000 realized in New York was given to the Salvation Army.

Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, superintendent of West Point, and Rear Admiral Thomas C. Hart, superintendent of Annapolis, were in Washington today and will settle the final details.

Representative Britten announced that he would consult with them tomorrow in a final effort to persuade them of the advisability of taking the game to Chicago.

Cardinals' Defeat Brings Sweet Woe to Mr. Breadon

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 6.—And now, because the Athletics won the fourth game of the world series from the Cardinals this afternoon, the whole show will have to be loaded back into the cars and hauled out to St. Louis again for the show-down.

The clubs are tied at two apiece, four games are needed to win the set and match, and the schedule provides that after Wednesday's game, the thing is to be carried on to a decision in St. Louis if it takes all winter. I would not doubt that both contending groups of magnates are very anxious to win and full of what the college cheer leaders call the old fight, fight, fight.

Cards' Defeat Sweet Sorrow to Breadon.

But, nevertheless, today's defeat must have been a sweet sorrow to Mr. Sam Breadon, who owns the Cardinals. Mr. Breadon is not in the baseball business to win a college letter, and beginning with Wednesday's receipts the athletes on both sides will be counted out of the division, giving the proprietors a chance to make a little. The magnates have often said that they needed at least five games to earn an honest dollar and when the Cardinals lost today's game, 3 to 0, their employers were assured one more pot.

The railroads, the telegraph companies and the St. Louis hotel proprietors doubtless will be pleased by the outcome of the fourth game, for the world series seems to be one of the necessaries of life and the traffic in all subsidiary departments has been well maintained this year.

George Earnshaw, the suburban society bloke, pitched a two hit game to beat the Cardinals today and the only other person on the field for either side who filled the eye, was Pepper Martin, the Cardinals' new outfielder, who made both hits and personally thwarted Earnshaw of a no hit, no run game.

Earnshaw's Folks Go 'Way Back.

The two young men are much unlike. Earnshaw is collegiate. He is also neat and clean and somewhere, "way back in his ancestry," there was an Earnshaw who was quite a bit of somebody in the socially refined set in Philadelphia. The socially refined set are great bookkeepers and if a party can prove that he had an ancestor who was a somebody ten or twelve generations ago, that makes him a somebody, himself, ten or a dozen times removed.

Earnshaw has pitched two great games in this world series, and Martin has been his chief annoyance in both cases. Martin beat him in the second game of the program in St. Louis with his hitting and his dashing display on the bases, but today the Oklahoma teamster had no assistance from his side and the worst he could do to Earnshaw was to muss up a pitching record that might have been perfect and unique in world series history.

George Adjusts Matters Himself.

Like Burleigh Grimes of the Cardinals in Monday's game, Earnshaw didn't let a man reach first in the first three innings and put the first one there himself, with a base on balls to Frisch, in the fourth. Frisch then stole second in one of his headlong slides and Earnshaw struck out Jim Bottomley to allay the mild menace of the situation.

Again in the fourth when Martin had singled and stolen second, the society toff personally checked the challenge, this time striking out two men, Wilson and Gelbert. And for a third time, in the eighth, when a runner was on, the same being Martin again, Earnshaw fanned a hitter for the third out. He seemed always to have something held in reserve, for when he bore down in the slight emergencies that beset him, he solved his own troubles personally.

Martin's slide when he stole second in the fifth was an imitation of Frisch's sprawling dive through the dust, but it must be admitted that not even Frisch has ever come up out of the soil as dirty as Martin when he emerged from the cloud under

THOMAS ALLOWS ONLY 4 HITS; SOX WHIP CUBS, 7 TO 2

BY EDWARD BURNS.

All those smarting lacerations of the 1931 American league season have been forgotten. The White Sox, cellar champions in their own league, are the real champions of Chicago. They won the title yesterday by giving the Cubs a severe 7 to 2 licking in the seventh and deciding game of the city series.

The Sox won their fourth game in a series in which they never failed to show brilliant pitching and batting skill, the like of which they rarely flashed in the regular season.

Statistics Favor Sox.

In the seven games Manager Donie Bush used but four pitchers, Red Faber, Vic Frasier, Ted Lyons, and Tommy Thomas, yesterday's hero. Manager Rogers Hornsby used seven. In the series the Sox scored 36 runs and the Cubs scored 17, their only score over 3 coming on Sunday, when they were beaten, 13 to 6.

All of the Cubs' victories were by a margin of one run—1 to 0, 2 to 1, and 3 to 2. The Sox victories were by scores of 9 to 0, 4 to 3, 13 to 6, and 7 to 2. The Sox made 66 hits for 81 bases and the Cubs 45 hits for 60 bases. The Sox' batting average for the series was .278 and the Cubs' .193. The Sox fielded for an average of .973, against the Cubs' .971. The Sox also led in homers, 4 to 3.

Cubs Were Thoroughly Subdued.

So now we can leave the statistics with the feeling that the Sox deserved to win their 11th city championship—11th if you include the world championship they took from the Cubs 25 years ago.

We now can proceed to the manner in which the Sox clinched their first city championship since 1926.

Thomas won his second victory of the series because he held the Cubs to four hits while getting perfect support from his mates. And as a matter of justice, the gents who summed up victory in the sixth game, Johnny Kerr and Bill Cissell, were the most brilliant players on the field.

Only One Cub Walked.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 6.—George Earnshaw, the pride of nearby Swarthmore college, today climbed into a place alongside of Burleigh Grimes and five other world series immortals.

What the picturesque Burleigh Grimes did to the Athletics on two hits yesterday, Earnshaw duplicated this afternoon before 32,295, and the American leaguers with a 3 to 0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals tied up the series at two victories apiece.

Earnshaw, with that cool nonchalant cunning that only he can successfully affect, stopped the Cards so short that they never made a start. That is, he stopped them all except the dynamic John [Pepper] Martin, whose bat filed the only two St. Louis protests against the effectiveness of the Athletics' pitcher.

A's Hit at Right Time.

In support of Earnshaw's effort was the same attack which has spread destruction around the American league in recent years. It wasn't so much the number of hits as the kind and the time of their arrival. Al Simmons, with a drive against the fence, put luckless Sylvester Johnson under a one run handicap right at the start. Then it was almost a record breaking sixth inning hit out of the park by Jimmy Foxx that gave Earnshaw half of the two other runs he didn't need.

Just a bit of strategy, so-called because it worked, put Johnson into a struggle where many thought he didn't belong. Gabby Street, manager of the Cards, conceded this morning that Earnshaw might have one of his rare days. He did, so the Cardinals assimilated the defeat without the added waste of Wild Bill Hallahan, who was due to come back and attempt to repeat his brilliant three hit performance of last Friday. The bit of strategy on Street's part may have an important bearing before the title is definitely assigned.

Duplicates Grimes' Work.

Earnshaw pitched in a way that indicated he actually planned his effort from a pattern of Grimes' performance yesterday. Grimes didn't let a Mackman journey to base in three

WILDCATS STAND BETWEEN NOTRE DAME AND 21 IN A ROW

Bid Burnstein, for three years a Northwestern halfback, demonstrates how he eludes tacklers. Notre Dame will find him a hard man to bring down Saturday.

Ralph Eylar leaps for a forward pass. This Wildcat plays end and he's one pass catcher Notre Dame will have to watch carefully.

Joe Kurth stepped into a regular tackle position at Notre Dame in mid-season last year, and he'll be in there fighting against the Wildcats again Saturday at Soldiers' field.

Capt. Tommy Yarr, playing his second year as Notre Dame's regular center. He'll be playing against Northwestern for the third time when the Irish defend their twenty game winning streak.

Chicago boy who is winning recognition at Notre Dame. Carl Cronin plays half back, and quite well, if you ask Indiana U. players.

GOLD CUP 'WETS' AND 'DRYS' COURT WEATHER MAN

BY FRENCH LANE.

The weather man last night became a factor in the renewal of the Hawthorne $25,000 Gold cup tomorrow afternoon.

He predicted rain for today and the folks in the camp of Mate will entertain him lavishly tonight if he succeeds in delivering plenty of moisture and muddies up the Hawthorne racing strip. The Jim Dandy people will also want to entertain him.

If he drives the rain away and leaves the track in a lightning fast condition he is in for just as wild a party from those in the Sun Beau camp, for the money winning champion of the world, bidding farewell to an enormous turf following, doesn't fancy the idea of tackling such a powerful young rival as Mate over a muddy track.

Mud has long failed to worry Mate. Sun Beau, since he won an important race when a 2 year old, has never been at his best in muddy or slow going, but, like all good horses, he can run in it if necessary.

Six Will Start.

Even with weather and track conditions a puzzle, it is almost certain that six will face Starter Morrissey in the rich Gold cup's renewal. Besides Mate and Sun Beau the field will include Jim Dandy, Plucky Play, Mowris and one of the twins from the Reichert brother's stable, Brown Wisdom or My Dandy.

Wagering on the outcome of the Gold cup already has started. If the track is fast Sun Beau is going to be the favorite. The old fellow has too many admirers in this part of the country to be anything else. If it turns muddy Mate likely will occupy the post of honor.

Rain threatened all during the running of the program at Hawthorne yesterday. It started coming down in sheets when the field was at the post in the Stanley Smith purse, which was the feature race. But the horses were off in time to complete the journey before track conditions had changed to any great extent.

Masterly Leads All the Way.

Masterly, paying $7 for a $2 ticket, turned up as the winner after leading all the way. His Last raced close to him in the early stages but quit at the head of the stretch. Englewood came with a powerful stretch run and landed second money. In a few more strides he would have been the winner. Drastic Delight, after delaying the start, was third.

The rain halted soon after the running of the race. So, if the weather man is to do any damage to the Hawthorne track before the running of the cup it will have to come today.

ROCHESTER WINS AGAIN, 4 TO 3; NEEDS ONE MORE

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—The Rochester Red Wings defeated the St. Paul Saints, 4 to 3, today in the first game of the little world series to be played on the Rochester field. MICHIGAN LOOKS UPON CHICAGO AS MYSTERY ELEVEN Wolverines to Be Ready for Anything.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 6.—[Special.] The Michigan eleven, having little information concerning Chicago's strength, plans to meet it by putting all the power and deception possible in its offensive when the Maroons appear here Saturday.

Today the regulars drilled on a defense against the plays used by Chicago in its opening double header, before trying out forward passes and power plays for the offensive. In addition Everhardus and Jack Heston had a long punting drill.

The regular lineup had Newman at quarter back; Hewitt and Williamson, ends; Damm and Samuels, tackles; La Jeunesse and Douglass, guards; Morton, center; Everhardus and Fay, half backs, and Hudson, full back.

DINNER FOR MAROONS

Plans for a student demonstration tomorrow night, climaxed by a corn roast ceremony for the new $600,000 fieldhouse at the University of Chicago, were announced yesterday. The football team will be given a dinner, after which a parade will invade fraternity row and the students will mass around a bonfire on Stagg field to hear addresses by Coaches A. A. Stagg and Pat Page.

Jobs yesterday drove the varsity squad under the north stand for the first hour of practice. Stagg worked two teams on new plays in dummy scrimmage, using Page, Zimmer, and Kolb, with Al Summers and Don Heap alternating at quarter, in one unit, and Buzzell, Johnson, Aufdemgarten and Kanne in the second.

ILLINI SCRIMMAGE FROSH

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Continuing his campaign to improve Illinois' scoring punch, Bob Zuppke today used the freshmen eleven against the varsity in preparation for Saturday's game with Purdue at Lafayette.

The varsity worked on both offense and defense against the yearlings, who were equipped with Purdue formations. A lateral pass from contact formation proved particularly effective during the scrimmage.

Tom Wilson, a letter man at end last year, who had been unable to practice since early in the season, returned to the squad.

PURDUE PERFECTS PASSES

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—In aerial battle, with both teams resorting to wide open tactics is in prospect here Saturday when Illinois meets Purdue in the Big Ten opener for both teams, judging from activity of the Boilermaker coaching staff in an extended scrimmage this afternoon.

On both offense and defense, the coaches placed emphasis on forward and lateral pass work. The effectiveness of the forward pass game of Berry, Cook, and Horsley against St. Louis resulted in Coach Noble Kizer's aiding Assistant Coaches Frank Gnidec and Glen Harmeson into a huddled that gave the varsity an intensive drill on forward pass defense. Although the Boilermakers used a running game almost exclusively against Illinois last year, it was evident in the scrimmage that both forward and lateral passes are due for a workout Saturday.

BADGERS SPOIL PASSES

Madison, Wis., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—The Wisconsin eleven, after a long drill on pass defense, opposed the freshmen, using Auburn plays, in a 30 minute scrimmage today in which the Badgers showed improvement in breaking up passes. The frosh receivers were the blue and orange of Alabama Poly and were closely covered. The first team was the same as on Monday, Goldenberg again working at quarter back, Schneller at full back and Robbins and McGuire at halves.

GOPHERS REACH COAST

Oakland, Cal., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—The Minnesota football squad arrived here today and began preparing the attack with which it hopes to defeat Leland Stanford at Palo Alto Saturday. Dr. Boles Rosenthal, former University of California line coach, immediately joined the Gopher staff and explained the plays of Pop Warner's Cardinals as he has seen them this season. He outlined an offense he believes will be successful and diagramed the squad in its drill.

ASK LEGISLATIVE ACTION TO SAVE PHEASANTS

A petition with 500,000 names from Cook county asking Gov. Emmerson to have the special session of the legislature remedy the defect in the game laws allowing the shooting of hen pheasants is to be prepared by the Izaak Walton league. This was decided at a meeting of the Cook County league delegates in the Hotel Sherman last night. Twenty-seven chapters were represented.

The remaining 100 Izaak Walton league chapters outside of Cook county also will be asked to obtain signatures to the petition.

Delegates at the meeting reported that almost all farmers' lands in the county had been posted with "No Trespassing" signs, the only remedy left since the ten year old law protecting hen pheasants and certain other birds had expired on Sept. 16. The league has been furnishing the signs and even posting them for the farmer.

Jackie Thompson Knocks Out Tommy Jones in 2d

Flint, Mich., Oct. 6.—(AP)—Jackie Thompson, San Francisco Negro, welterweight boxing champion, knocked out Tommy Jones of Tampa, Fla., in the third round of a scheduled ten [illegible] bout here tonight.

Cards Held to 2 Hits; Macks Square Series

innings. Neither did Earnshaw. Grimes gave up a pass in the fourth. Earnshaw did the same. Then the pattern was changed. Earnshaw awarded no more bases on balls, whereas Grimes gave up three more. And where Grimes held the A's at bay for seven innings Earnshaw's no hit hopes, if he had any, were shattered when Martin singled in the fifth. Only one more Cardinal reached base. That was Martin with a double in the eighth.

There was one department of play in which the Cards didn't concede anything to their adversaries. They ran the bases in the first three games, and they ran 'em again today when they had the chance.

Frisch Steals Second.

When Earnshaw surrendered his only pass in the fourth, the beneficiary was Frankie Frisch. Two were out at the moment and on the first pitch to Bottomley, Frisch tore to second and slid in safely under Cochrane's throw to Williams. Earnshaw didn't let it annoy him. He simply fanned Bottomley. Moreover, he fanned Sunny Jim again in the seventh for another of his eight strikeouts.

The other showup of Cochrane's arm had to be by the go-getter Martin because no other reached base. The hit with which the Pepper bicker Earnshaw's string in the fifth was a drive to left. Martin waited until Wilson had fanned and then broke for second. He was on the bag before Cochrane's throw arrived. As compensation for this Earnshaw struck out Gelbert.

Martin Hits Again.

By the time Martin got around to bat in the eighth Earnshaw probably was thinking that he might equal a record which has stood since 1906 when Ed Reulbach of the Cubs twisted the White Sox out of shape on one hit. Dreams of that kind were blasted when the Pepper led off with a two base drive into the left field corner. Earnshaw ended the inning as if nothing happened. Wilson and Gelbert were retired on fly balls and Rip Collins, sent up as a pinch hitter in place of Jim Lindsey, who had relieved Johnson in the sixth, passed out on strikes.

Johnson threw twice in the first inning before his troubles began. Both the throws were strikes on Bishop, who promptly snapped out of it by lining a single to center. Haas made one attempt to sacrifice, but fouled along the third base line. He bunted again, and this one worked, putting Bishop on second. Cochrane rolled feebly to Bottomley, but with the great Simmons it was different. He missed a couple of free for all swings, but swung again and doubled to the wall in left center, Bishop scoring. Foxx was passed as a matter of caution. Miller then fouled to Wilson.

Dykes Opens with Single.

The Macks pressed Johnson again in the second. Those ardent Philadelphia partisans who were hoping to see their pets break the shackles put on them by Hallahan and Grimes rose up with a mighty cheer when Dykes opened the inning with a single to center. The American leaguers couldn't respond. Johnson was good enough to get across a third strike on Williams. Earnshaw pounded a terrific drive back at the pitcher, but Johnson stopped it with his body and recovered in time for an easy play at first. Then that tireless Pepper Martin tore over into left center to take hold of a long fly by Bishop.

There was more for Johnson to fret about in the third, but some of it was caused by Bottomley. Haas opened the inning with a line single which Frisch missed by inches after a daring leap. Cochrane drove a hard grounder at Frisch, who smothered it and tossed to Gelbert to force Haas. Gelbert in turn made a perfect throw to Bottomley for a double play, but Sunny Jim lost his man by juggling the throw. It made no difference, because Simmons grounded to Frisch, and this time the double play was put across.

And Another Run.

You could almost see that Johnson was fading when, in the stormy sixth, Cochrane led off with a low drive which Martin captured only after a sprint into right center. An instant later Simmons pounded a fly to deep center, but it was high enough to let Martin get under it. Then the thunder broke loose. The first clap was the drive Foxx sent over the roof of the two story left pavilion.

Before the shouting faded out Miller lined to the scoreboard in right center for two bases. Watkins leaped as the ball sailed past, but he wasn't high enough. Johnson was plainly through, but he was permitted to linger and the casualties increased.

Dykes singled to left, and although playing deep, Hafey made a beautiful throw to the plate. Miller scored only by the matter of a step. Then when Williams singled to center, Johnson was withdrawn and Lindsey put a stop to the disturbance by fanning Earnshaw.

PLAY TOUCH FOOTBALL.

The annual touch football tournament will be held by the south parks next Saturday afternoon at Washington park. Competition will be in two classes, intermediates and juniors.

Cards' Defeat Sweet Sorrow to Mr. Breadon

Bishop's feet. His bare, sweaty arms were powdered black, his face was grimy, his uniform looked as though he had been rolling in a coal pocket and when he shook his head, clods of soil fell out of his hair.

But though he twice reached second by his own efforts, five hitters who followed him couldn't offer as much as a sacrifice fly to promote him and he never got as far as third. Neither did anyone else.

The Athletics began to operate on Sylvester Johnson in the first inning when Bishop singled and came in on Al Simmons' double, but there was still some chance of a change in the way of things until Johnson flopped in the sixth. There, with two men out, Jimmy Foxx got his first home run of the series, Miller doubled and the next two hitters singled before Gabby Street sent Lindsey in to stop these liberties. Two more runs were in by now and the Cardinals needed four to win over a man who was good enough to hold them to one more hit after that.

Mr. Mack Does Score Card Tricks.

Old Mr. Mack's score card was performing the customary hocus-pocus down in the dugout, drawing the outfielders two steps in, a half step to the left or right, a jog to the rear as though he knew precisely where every hitter was going to pop the ball on the next pitch. Old Mr. Mack's solemn, careful placing of his outfield men is the subject of some derision among the more natural, free style ball players and patrons but he takes the responsibility and today he had an employee stationed under every fly ball but one. That was Martin's double. His single was not a fly.

The crowd again filled the park and jammed the windows and roofs of the little brick flats across the street from the right field walls, but there were no showy festivities to ornament the show and but for the presence of the fourth umpire the game might have been a routine transaction between the Athletics and the Yanks in June.

It was a hot afternoon, and 32,000 people came and sat and watched a good show for their money and went away.

DE PAUL ELEVEN SPEEDS PRACTICE FOR WESLEYAN

Injuries failed to retard the pace of De Paul university's football practice yesterday as preparations were rushed for the Blue Demons' opening home game of the season Friday night at Mills stadium with Illinois Wesleyan.

Several reserves were used in the first string lineup. Eddie O'Brien, a sophomore, took Ernie Butcher's place at half back and Pete Barskis performed in the tackle position of Johnny O'Brien.

O'Brien, injured when De Paul upset Detroit, will be a noncombatant for at least another week. Another casualty is Bert Lanum, center, who is confined to his bed with illness. However, the pivot post still possesses plenty of strength, with Jack Kelly battling Jim Gorsky for the job. Kelly's play in yesterday's drill was impressive.

OPEN PIN LEAGUE PLAY.

The Woodlawn Business Men's Bowling league rolls its first game on the White City alleys tonight. The teams in the league are White City, Woodlawn Lions, Chicago Telephone Company, Woodlawn Business Men's Association, Let It Rain, and Becker Cleaners. The teams will bowl every Wednesday night thereafter.

score immediately on Rollie Hemsley's fly.

The only pass issued by Tommy was given to Woody English with two out in the eighth. Not a Cub reached first base in the second, third, fourth, fifth, seventh, and ninth innings and only four batsmen got the ball out of the infield in those innings. That was the Cubs' offensive.

The Sox concentrated their attacks in two innings, the second, when they tied the score with an unearned run and the fourth, when they fell on Bob Smith with no mercy whatsoever.

In the second inning Lew Fonseca reached first on Bell's throwing error, went to second while Smith was throwing out Lu Blue and to third while Herman was making a spectacular play to get Carl Reynolds. Frank Grube walked. Kerr then dropped a double into right, Fonseca scoring the tying run and Grube stopping at third. Thomas popped to Herman.

Fonseca Starts Trouble.

Fonseca also opened up the big disturbance in the fourth, this time with a line double to left, the first of his two hits in the inning. Blue singled to center, and Fonseca stopped at third after drawing Cuyler's throw which enabled Blue to advance to second.

Reynolds singled to right, scoring Fonseca and Blue. Grube bunted to Grimm, whose throw to second was too late to force Reynolds at second. The bases were full when Kerr beat out a bunt to Bell. Thomas sent a long fly to Cuyler, scoring Reynolds and when Hemsley picked up the throw in and tossed the ball into left field Grube scored and Kerr pulled up at third. Cissell singled to left, scoring Kerr, then Jakie May relieved Smith.

May walked Billy Sullivan, and when Smead Jolley sent a fly to Vin Barton Cissell went to third. Fonseca's second hit of the inning was a smash off Bell's glove, which scored Cissell and put Sullivan on second. Fonseca and Sullivan got tangled on their signals, and Sullivan was out after aimless fluttering about between second and third.

The Sox took it easy the rest of the way, confining their offensive efforts to a single by Thomas off May in the sixth and a single by Grube off Les Sweetland in the eighth.

Grimes Fears Broken Finger; Only a Sprain

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 6.—Burleigh Grimes, who made himself additionally famous by that two hit triumph in the third game of the world series yesterday, thought this morning that his win had been at the cost of a broken little finger. He deflected a drive off Haas' bat in the ninth. During the night the hand gave him considerable pain, so he had an X-ray taken. It showed only a bad sprain and, being on his left hand, he'll be able to pitch again if necessary.

Flowers, who started at third for St. Louis, was the victim of a mishap in the fielding practice before the game. A hard grounder leaped up and dented him in the pit of the stomach. He took a brief nap on the green and then pronounced himself O. K., but he retired in the second inning.

Connie Mack has no choice other than Rube Walberg for tomorrow. If Hallahan should happen to get the decision over the Athletics' southpaw the Cards probably would come back with Grimes on Friday.

Derringer, who pitched the eighth, had his nose hidden behind a layer of adhesive tape. He had been confined for a couple of days with an infection caused by yanking a hair from his proboscis and the doctors advised him to play safe.

There was only one play that, with less at stake, might have meant the third hit off Earnshaw. At the start of the ninth High hit a low liner to short left, but Simmons wasn't going to have Earnshaw's record spoiled if he could help it. He raced in and reached out to grab the ball before it hit the ground.

The Athletics' win today forces the series to move back to St. Louis. Everybody concerned will board special trains for the Mound City after the fifth game here tomorrow. Play will be resumed there Friday.

Cardinals Again Pick Florida for Training

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 6.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals will train again at Bradenton, Fla., Sam Breadon, president of the club, announced here today. Breadon's announcement put to an end reports the Cardinals would train in California next spring. The Cardinals trained at Bradenton in 1923, 1924, 1930, and 1931.

United Cigar Stores Co. of America.

I purchased twenty shares of United Cigar Stores company stock at $7 per share. Would you advise buying forty additional shares at the present price to bring down the average cost?—Miss K. B.

United Cigar Stores company of America, controlled by United Stores corporation, is one of the leading distributors of smokers' supplies in the United States. It has about 3,300 stores in operation, of which 200 are drug stores, and 100 combination cigar and luncheonette units.

Sales of cigarets constitute between 40 and 45 per cent of total sales of tobacco stores and about 10 per cent of total sales of drug stores. The company owns valuable parcels of real estate and leasehold properties.

Continuing the upward trend evidenced for the last three years, sales for 1930 were $91,862,372, against $84,-673,558 for 1929 and $82,644,432 for 1928. In 1930 rent receipts of $13,-658,281 were slightly more than 12 per cent of total receipts. Net income, before federal taxes, for 1930 was $1,551,980, or $9.06 per preferred share and 10 cents per common share, against $3,132,096, or $18.31 per preferred share and 35 cents per common share, for 1929. The difference in net is due mainly to the $2,332,000 decrease in profit on sale of real estate, investments, etc.

For the first half of 1931 sales were $42,071,543, and rents were $6,-240,280. Net loss was $244,931, excluding $585,384 reserve for outstanding premium certificates written back on termination of redemption privilege. In July, 1931, the company received $1,900,000 from Gillette Safety Razor company in the settlement of litigation. This is equivalent to almost $10 per share of preferred.

The company had outstanding at the close of 1930 $18,145,273 real estate mortgages and $8,427,000 funded debt. There were outstanding 171,357 shares of 6 per cent preferred [par $100] and 5,293,681 shares of no par common. Current assets were $22,-679,647, and current liabilities were $10,861,845. Cash and marketable securities alone were in excess of $8,-000,000.

Dividends on the 6 per cent preferred were paid to Aug. 1, 1929, after which date nothing was paid until February 1, 1931. Dividends on the preferred have been regularly paid since, but nothing has been applied on the $7.50 cumulation.

The preferred is medium grade. The common is just a speculation.

A. O. Smith Corp.

Will you kindly advise me regarding A. O. Smith corporation 6½ per cent bonds due 1933 as an investment for one who does not want to take any chances of loss of principal or interest?—J. J. P.

They are sound.

CITY'S BANKS MAKE REPORT ON CONDITION

Cash Resources Are Well Maintained.

Chicago banks yesterday made public their positions as of Sept. 29 in response to calls sent out by the controller of currency and the state auditor. Deposits of both the state and national institutions showed declines since the last call which was made June 30. The reports showed, however, that the banks also reduced their loans, thereby maintaining highly liquid positions.

Total deposits of all banks declined $59,397,000 during the three months period bringing the current total of deposits to $2,319,271,000. The withdrawals were attributed in large parts to persons of moderate means who were had to draw on their savings to offset shrinkage in income from other sources as well as withdrawals for payment of tax bills. The decline also reflected, to a certain extent, the hoarding of money by fear-stricken people, according to bankers.

Recession in Deposits.

Total deposits of the state banks dropped $150,495,000 while the national banks reported a decline of $37,911,000. Savings deposits of the state institutions were down $37,157,000 while savings of the national banks were off $4,568,000.

The total reduction in loans and discounts effected by all banks was $80,162,000. The reduction by the state banks was $40,012,000 while that of the national institutions was $9,890,000. The national banks were able to increase their cash resources by $5,316,000. Cash resources of the state group were down $40,921,000.

George M. Reynolds, chairman of the executive committee of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, in releasing the statement of that institution explained that the bank had charged off all doubtful paper during the three months since its last call.

Writes Off $10,000,000.

He explained that the bank had written off all that the examiners had classed as doubtful accounts, which amounted to $7,700,000, and an additional $2,300,000 for paper which officials of the bank classed as doubtful. Of this total of $10,000,000 the greater part, or $6,500,000, was taken from current reserves, while the remainder was deducted from undivided profits. This brought undivided profits down to $4,089,127 as compared with $7,-089,000 at the date of the last call.

Mr. Reynolds pointed out that the special reserve for contingencies of $3,000,000 which has been held intact from the organization of the bank was not touched during the period. The charge-offs made by the bank were unusually liberal and do not represent a permanent loss, he stated. Between 2 and 3 million of the doubtful paper will undoubtedly be realized in time, he stated.

Approximately $1,664,000 was written off to cover the part of the Wolf defalcation not covered by insurance. Mr. Reynolds stressed the point that this was not a permanent loss and that $400,000 of the missing securities have already been returned.

Dividends Seen Covered.

Mr. Reynolds stated that he knew of no reason why the bank will not continue to pay its present dividend of $16 yearly. The market price of stock will not affect the dividend policy, he said. Earnings will run between $14,000,000 and $15,000,000 this year, he added. Yearly dividend requirements under the present rate are $10,000,000 annually. Operating economies effected earlier are now being reflected in earnings, which in the last four months were in excess of the comparable 1930 period.

The Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company as of Sept. 29 had $178,642,532 in cash resources, as against $181,453,823 on June 30. Loans and discounts were off approximately $4,500,000. A decline of about $13,175,-000 was reported in savings deposits to $140,995,270. Total deposits were off about $43,100,000, amounting to $917,823,949.

Up Around $21,000,000.

Cash resources of the First National bank increased almost $21,000,000 during the third quarter to $145,164,361, although deposits were off $26,600,000 to $931,982,821. Loans and discounts dropped $5,800,000. Its affiliate, the First Union Trust and Savings bank, reported a loss of $2,000,000 in savings deposits and a drop of $15,000,000 in total deposits. Loans and discounts were off about $5,650,-000, while cash resources were down only about $2,100,000.

The initial statement of the Central Republic Bank and Trust company showed total deposits of $219,376,008. Savings deposits of $27,376,722, loans and discounts of $147,508,271 and cash resources of $47,718,589.

Savings deposits of the Harris Trust and Savings bank were practically unchanged, as were loans and discounts. Cash resources showed a small gain, while total deposits were down $3,-000,000 to $95,478,804.

The Northern Trust company showed a gain in total deposits, an increase of nearly $9,000,000 being reported.

Bankers Rebuke Prophets of Gloom, Ask Confidence

BY O. A. MATHER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 6.—A series of rebukes to gloomy prophets of depression and of pleas for a return to confidence in America's economic future marked the opening of the general sessions of the American Bankers' association convention today.

President Rome C. Stephenson sounded the keynote by criticizing hoarding of money and urging a return of sane spending as one of the remedies for the current depression. Rudolph S. Hecht, in presenting the report of the association's economic policy commission, followed up by condemning stock market raiding and the spreading of gloomy gossip regarding both banks and business.

Would Remove Barriers.

Eugene M. Stevens, chairman of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank, urged the removal of political barriers that now hamper world trade. He also warned against a renewal of real estate and capital financing by banks, which he cited as one of the chief causes of bank failures and frozen deposits.

Finally, a note of cheer was sounded by Richard H. Grant, vice president of the General Motors corporation, who predicted better employment conditions and larger volume in the automobile industry in the next few months.

"The entire year has been one of practically unbroken financial reaction and business depression," President Stephenson said. "The banker has been surrounded in his community by an atmosphere of unwarranted public distrust based on nothing more tangible than the malicious gossip of rumor mongers.

May Renew Confidence.

"Into the banks have flowed the products and final results of all the business troubles and mistakes from inflated hopes and deflated ambitions. Yet when we reflect that the entire human economic structure has been brought to the verge of ruin under difficulties that have swept over not only the nation but the entire world, and that the results of events of this kind react with particular directness on the stability of our banks and yet how few of them have succumbed, we may well renew our confidence in the banks of America.

"I know of no better plan to suggest for future better times than that every one lay down as soon as he is able a program of proper saving as the foundation of his financial policy. And I know of no better plan to revive activity in a depression than to spend a proper volume of past savings to keep the momentum of business going. The time to save is during a period of steady earnings and high prices and the time to spend is during a period of stagnant trade and low prices.

Habits Can Be Changed.

"It is not impossible to change the habits of the population. We have done it in many lines. If it has been good advertising and good business for so many of our national producers to spend millions of dollars to inculcate new habits in our people, is it not good business and good advertising for our banking interests to lay similar stress during the next period of prosperity on better financial habits and customs? Bankers above all are interested in stable, wholesome business."

The American public has taken a distorted view of banking as the result of the numerous bank failures in the last year, according to Hecht. He pointed out that there are more than 22,000 banks in operation and that they hold more than $7 billions of dollars in deposits.

Small Loss in Deposits.

"The facts are that while about 4 per cent of the banks as to numbers were permanently or temporarily closed in the first eight months of the year," he added, "some 96 per cent were not involved, and, furthermore, only 1.2 per cent of deposits were tied up, which meant that almost 99 per cent were not affected."

The report of the economic policy commission then warned against the sort of manipulation in the securities markets that has unsettled public confidence. "Public confidence in established values in America has been temporarily depressed beyond all reason," the report said.

Factor in Failures.

Mr. Stevens then took up the question of capital financing by banks, including real estate financing and loans based on mortgages or real estate equities.

"A large proportion of the bank failures in the last ten years may be directly traceable to their investments of this character, because of default in interest, shrinkage in the value of the security as principal and in inability to realize thereon when liquidity was most needed," he said.

"Indeed, the situation in real estate values may be said to be one of the vital factors in the present depression."

NEW YORK CURB STOCKS IN RALLY; TRADING ACTIVE

New York, Oct. 6.—(AP)—The curb market rallied substantially today as a broad buying movement, particularly in the last hour, swept over the list. Net gains ranged from one to nearly 9 points in many active stocks and the turnover swelled to 900,000 shares.

There was some unsettlement after the firm opening, but the advance was resumed in the afternoon and attained considerable activity toward the close. Utilities recovered sharply. Electric Band and Share was up 3¾ net. Duke Power soared 8, while Associated Gas "A," United Light "A," New England Telephone, American Light and American Superpower were up 1½ to 3.

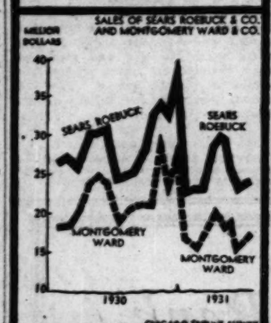
English Rail Holders to Lodge Claim with Canada

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 6.—Charging that the Canadian government, as owner of the Canadian National Railways, has ignored the rights of holders of the first and second 5 per cent perpetual preference stocks of the old Grand Trunk railway as they relate to the road's lines in the United States, R. C. Hawkins, chairman of the Grand Trunk perpetual stock committee of London, England, has announced to American holders of the stocks that action will be taken in the English courts. The claim is for $55,000,000.

MAIL ORDER SALES IN SEASONAL UPTURN



AUBURN AUTOMOBILE COMPANY HAS SHARP EARNINGS INCREASE

The Auburn Automobile company and its subsidiaries consolidated net profits during the months of June, July, and August, comprising the third quarter, amounted to $977,270, equal to $4.91 per share on 199,060 shares outstanding on that date. This was announced yesterday by the company.

This compares with net profits of $178,925, equivalent to 90 cents per share, for the corresponding period of 1930, based on the number of shares now outstanding.

For the first nine months of the current fiscal year ended Aug. 31, 1931, consolidated net profits amounted to $3,338,446, equal to $16.77 per share, as compared to $1,044,944, equivalent to $5.25 per share, for the corresponding period of 1930, and compares with $2,958,220, equivalent to $14.86 per share, for the corresponding period of 1929, based on the present number of shares outstanding.

The consolidated balance sheet of Auburn Automobile company and its subsidiaries as of Aug. 31, 1931, shows current assets amounting to $15,143,-784, of which $9,074,361 was in cash and government securities. Current liabilities amounted to $2,543,476, or current ratio of 5.95, representing the strongest current financial position in the company's history. Net quick assets per share amounted to $63.30 and book value per share was $87.56.

In a statement yesterday accompanying the announcement, L. B. Manning, executive vice president of the Cord corporation, of which Auburn is a division, said:

"Auburn's position this year in every respect is the strongest in the company's history. Despite general adverse business conditions, Auburn and Cord sales in the first nine months of 1931 were 32,896 cars, which is 19,203 more cars than were sold in the entire year of 1930. The management's confidence in the future is best expressed by the fact that development and expansion plans are going forward on a larger scale than in any previous period."

Congress Hotel Shows Net Profit for Year of $130,194

The Congress Hotel Company of Chicago reports net profit for the year ended April 30 of $130,194 after all charges including depreciation and taxes. This is equivalent to $4.56 a share on the capital stock outstanding and compares with net profit of $328,-767 or $11.42 a share in the preceding fiscal year.

Santa Fe Stock Soars as Directors Vote Dividend

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 6.—A rapid advance of five points between sales in the common stock of Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad was Wall street's response to the announcement shortly after noon today that directors of the road had ordered the regular quarterly dividend of $2.50 a share.

In all, the shares showed an advance of nearly 16 points at their high prices as a result of considerable short covering prior to the dividend meeting on the theory that the board might not declare the regular dividend. The movement in Atchison spread rapidly to other leading railroad securities with resultant upturns of two to ten points.

The Wall street fraternity during the last month had been in the dark regarding the future dividend policy of Atchison. W. B. Storey declined on several occasions to discuss the probable action on the common dividend or to make a forecast of earning for this year.

Shares Lead Rail Decline.

Shares of the road were depressed quite severely in the last week, leading the decline in railroad securities. This led many to believe that, in view of the action taken by other railroads and the fact that earnings have not shown any definite indication of improvement, Atchison's board might decide to reduce the annual rate to a $7 or $8 basis.

On the other hand, there were some who regarded the strong financial position of the road and its huge accumulated surplus as warranting continuation of the regular $2.50 quarterly rate, at least for the time being.

Net earnings for the first eight months of 1931, reported recently, indicated a decline of about $4,000,000 to $20,035,822, compared with $24,208,-291 for the corresponding period last year. Results for the first six months reflected a more unfavorable comparison with last year, but July and August showed distinct improvement.

The Columbian Carbon company declared a quarterly dividend of $1, placing the capital stock represented by voting trust certificates on a $4 annual basis, against $5 previously. For 1930 total dividends were $6, represented by quarterly payments of $1.25 regular and 25 cents extra, the extra dividend having been omitted in April this year.

The Associated Dry Goods corporation has declared a quarterly dividend of 65 cents on the common stock, placing the issue on a $1 annual basis, against $2.50 previously. The regular quarterly dividends of $1.50 on the first preferred and $1.75 on the second preferred also were declared.

Speaks for Directors.

Speaking for the directors, Samuel W. Reyburn, president, pointed out that business so far in 1931 has not been up to expectations, but that a strong and liquid position has been maintained and inventories are in better shape than in many years. The action in reducing the common dividend, taken in conjunction with adjustments of compensation by officers and employes generally, is the result of the intention of the directors and operating staff to maintain a strong financial position, Mr. Reyburn said, and thereby assure continuity of employment for the organization and service to its customers.

American Smelting and Refining company declared a quarterly dividend of 37½ cents a share on the common stock, payable Nov. 2 to stock of record Oct. 16, placing the stock on a $1.50 annual basis, against $2 previously.

Cerro de Pasco Copper company today declared the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents, payable Nov. 2 to stock of record Oct. 15.

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES FOLLOW RISE IN WALL ST.

Entire List Gains in Active Trading.

The customers along La Salle street went home last night in a far more cheerful frame of mind than they have done in many days as a result of the strong upturn in share prices which broke the monotony of the long downward trek.

Advances on the prices of Chicago shares followed the gains on the New York Stock exchange and while the price jumps on the local board were not as broad as on the big exchange, still the close found quite a number of important gains. A majority of the gains noted, however, were held within three points. Trading was quite active and the total of shares exchanged during the day was 230,000.

Act to Curb Short Selling.

The improvement was variously attributed to the hope of constructive measures arising from President Hoover's conference on Monday with leading Wall street bankers and to action taken by both the Chicago and New York Stock exchanges to curb short selling. The street generally hopes that the President's conference will produce some sort of a tonic which will alleviate the pessimism from which the country has been suffering.

Evidence of its intention to curb short selling was contained in the fol-

STRESS PROVES THE STRENGTH OF SOUND PUBLIC UTILITY BONDS

The strength of the public utility industry in the face of adverse business conditions during the past two years is illustrated graphically by the accompanying charts. The upward trend of domestic electricity sales has continued even during the present year. Increased consumption has offset declining domestic rates. Gross revenues thus far in 1931 have approached their peak levels of 1930. Earnings of individual companies operating under efficient and resourceful management even excel the favorable showing of the industry as a whole. A number of water and gas companies have similarly proved their inherent stability.

Well-informed investors recognize the sound security behind the senior obligations of companies which have so ably demonstrated their stability and strength. Institutional investors have added appreciably to their holdings of sound public utility bonds — thus combining strong security with satisfactory income. The volume of public utility bond financing, as compared with the total, reflects, in part, the preference extended such securities by conservative investors.

Many sound public utility bonds are available today at prices to yield rates of return which are exceptionally attractive. Issues selected from the list herewith offer strength and income suited to the buying mood of investors today. Full information regarding any of these issues will be sent upon request.

ILLINOIS BELL BUYS SITE FOR WEST SIDE UNIT

Purchases Land on Monroe, Near Loomis.

BY AL CHASE.

Purchase of a good sized parcel of property on the north side of West Monroe street, between Loomis and Throop streets, by the Illinois Bell Telephone company yesterday, disclosed plans for the erection of a new building to replace the present west side exchange. The land bought is irregular in shape. It is ninety feet east of Loomis street and has a frontage of 137½ feet on Monroe and is 236 feet deep, containing approximately 32,000 square feet. It was purchased from Arthur M. Barrett of Winnetka of the Barrett Bindery company for an undisclosed consideration, subject to an incumbrance of $40,000.

The land is improved with an old tenement building, a landmark in the neighborhood. This is to be wrecked and later on a new building will be erected. Telephone officials declined to say when construction would begin, but it is reported that tentative plans for a four story building have been prepared. Oscar F. Christensen, acting for Willoughby & Co., represented all parties. Cutting, Moore & Sidley were attorneys.

Cheers Subdividers.

Henry G. Zander, former head of the National Association of Real Estate Boards and also past president of the Chicago Real Estate board, yesterday told members of the subdividers' division of the local realtors at a luncheon at the Palmer house of his experience in five depressions since he had been in business, pointing out that during all this time realty values had forged steadily ahead.

"There has been less depreciation in real estate than in any other business commodity," he said. "Right now there is plenty of money; there are millions in safe deposit boxes, but the public is afraid to invest. On the other hand, owners of acres are holding them, for they know they'll be worth more."

Kenmore Corner Sold.

The apartment building at the northeast corner of Kenmore and Balmoral avenues, lot 85x150, has been sold by Eugenia R. Chaney and her husband, Ernest H. Chaney, to Emil Kraut for an undisclosed price, subject to an incumbrance of $35,800. In exchange Mr. Kraut gave the flats at the southeast corner of Harding and Sunnyside avenues, 83x122, subject to $59,500. Thomas S. Edmonds was attorney.

As part of the purchase of the business of the Spring Valley Sanitary Milk company by the Capitol Dairy company, the one story building used for dairy purposes at 515-17 North Crawford avenue, has been conveyed by the latter concern. Isidore Fried was attorney.

The Bowes Realty company yesterday reported having subleased for Miss Ethel Van Duser a portion of the first and second floors of the residence at the southwest corner of Michigan and Huron to Cecile Friedman and Miriam Idsal, doing business as Mercell, Inc.

Week's Freight Loadings Aggregate 738,029 Cars

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—Loading of revenue freight for the week ending on Sept. 26 totaled 738,029 cars, the car service division of the American Railway association announced today.

This was a reduction of 4,599 cars below the preceding week and a reduction of 212,634 cars below the corresponding week last year. It also was a reduction of 465,110 cars under the same week two years ago.

turn had come, buying for the rise began in earnest. The resultant advance touched off covering orders left open by short sellers and the entire list began moving upward faster than it had dropped on Monday.

Rails Move Forward.

The railroads, which had borne the brunt of liquidation in recent markets, went forward as a body. Pennsylvania gain 3⅝, Baltimore and Ohio, 5⅝; Norfork and Western, 10¼; Chesapeake and Ohio, 3⅝; New Haven, 5⅝; Northern Pacific, 2⅝; Great Northern preferred, 1⅞; Lackawanna, 4; Delaware and Hudson, 6; Southern Pacific, 4¾, and Lehigh Valley, 3. Jersey Central, which dipped below par on Monday, closed up 5 points at 103. Reading, which recently caught bears in a sharp upturn, gained 9⅛ to 57.

Chicago and North Western preferred appeared on the tape today for the first time in several weeks at 38, off 29 points from the previous sale. This represented a new low record and compared with last year's high of 140⅝ and with 274½, the high for all time, established in 1902. At 38 the stock was yielding about 13 per cent from the $7 dividend.

Measured by the CHICAGO TRIBUNE combined averages, the upturn in the market was the sharpest in one day's trading made in nearly two years.

Bond prices provided numerous advances and in many cases closed near their high levels for the day. Sales volume was $19,112,000. High grade foreign loans led the advance with public utility and railroad issues making the greatest gains in the domestic list.

ILLINOIS RAILWAY COAL RATE BOOST IS RECOMMENDED

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—(AP)—A recommendation that Illinois railroads be directed to increase intrastate rates on coal to certain points to the level of interstate rates was made to the interstate commerce commission today by one of its examiners.

The recommendation affected Rockford, Freeport, Dixon, Moline, Decatur, Champaign, Quincy, and intermediate points. Rates from the mines to Chicago were found by the examiner to be proper.

The question is an old dispute between the Illinois commerce commission and the railroads. The Illinois commission prescribed rates within the state lower than the intrastate rates. The railroads claimed these rates were too low and also that they resulted in unfair rates from mines in nearby states. The railroads then appealed to the federal commission for relief.

SWOPE HAS PLAN TO KEEP ALL HIS WORKERS IN JOBS

"No Layoff" Scheme Put Up to Employes.

Schenectady, N. Y., Oct. 6.—(AP)—A plan which virtually will guarantee six months' employment beginning Nov. 1 has been offered to shop employés of General Electric company, Gerard Swope, president, announced today.

The new proposal, which is called a "plan to prevent further layoffs for lack of work," is to be voted on by employés of the company who are members of the General Electric unemployment pension plan, which embraces the great majority of shop employés of the company.

How Plan Would Work.

As described by Mr. Swope, the plan is "to so divide the work that there will be no further layoffs for lack of work between Nov. 1, 1931, and April 30, 1932, without compensation, and that all those on the pay roll Nov. 1, 1931, will receive during this period not less than the equivalent of one-half of their average weekly earnings for full time, but in no case more than an average of $15 a week. If actual earnings are above that average, however, the employé is to receive his actual earnings."

A threefold method has been proposed to insure this result. Employés are to be assigned work outside their regular work, if necessary, at the prevailing rates of pay for such work.

The unemployment emergency fund, which has been operating since Dec. 1, 1930, is to be augmented by increasing the contributions of 1 per cent of earnings now being made by all employés who are working more than half time to 2 per cent, the company increasing its own contributions to match those of the men. This increased fund may then be drawn upon by employés "under the present provisions."

Finally, if these two methods are inadequate, the board of directors of the company will be asked to authorise additional payments by the company to the unemployment emergency fund without increasing the employés' contributions to the fund.

Million Given to Idle.

"We are firmly of the belief," Mr. Swope said in announcing the new proposal to the workers, "that the electrical needs of 125,000,000 people in the United States, especially with the increasing demand in the home, will keep the electrical industry active.

"We realize the anxiety in the minds of our hourly and piecework employés in the apparatus works, which necessarily reduces their effectiveness and restricts their output, and to relieve this we offer for adoption by them this program, which we confidently believe we can carry out."

About $1,000,000 already has been distributed to General Electric unemployed during the 10 months since Dec. 1, 1930, when the emergency payments under the unemployment plan were started. One-half of this was contributed by the employés working half time or more and the other half by the General Electric company.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(AP)—Firmer resistance to price declines was noted in cotton goods markets today, but business continued light. Rayon fabric markets were dull following a readjustment of yarn value due to the abandonment of the guaranteeing policy. Burlaps were unchanged locally and in light demand. Wool goods markets were quiet in first hands. Silk manufacturers were doing a light nearby business.

AVAILABLE GRAIN STOCKS

World's available supply of wheat, as compiled by Bradstreets, decreased 3,466,000 bu last week. Corn in the United States and Canada increased 148,000 bu and oats 217,000 bu. Details follow:

GRAIN MARKETS MORE BUOYANT; WHEAT UP 2 CTS.

Advance in Stock List Removes Pressure.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain markets forged ahead in impressive manner yesterday as the result of the removal of the depressing influence of a declining stock market.

With a material improvement in outside conditions and general speculative buying, wheat prices advanced over 2c from the finish of the previous day and recovered nearly half of the loss sustained in the last five weeks.

In addition to commission house and local buying foreigners were good buyers of wheat futures here, which the trade regarded as indicating a revival in the demand for cash grain. It was understood that export sales of around 1,000,000 bu had been made, about half of which was hard winter at the Gulf to Greece.

For weeks the grain trade has been struggling under the handicap of liquidation in the stock market. From Aug. 29 to Oct. 5 the average price of industrial shares in New York had declined nearly 40 per cent, during which period wheat lost only 10 per cent of its price. There was a marked change in sentiment in evidence during the day and bullish factors, which had been ignored for some time, received more or less comment on the part of the trade. While some operators were rather skeptical of bulges being maintained, there has been a rather general belief that all bearish factors, in sight or in prospect, had been overdiscounted by the decline which has carried prices to record low levels.

Wheat Closes at Top.

There was no material pressure on the wheat market on the way up yesterday and, while holders of offers took profits, later operators who had sold offers were forced to protect themselves and the finish was at the top to a fraction under with net gains of 2¼@2½c, with December 47@47¼c; May, 51⅛@51¼c, and July, 51¾c, the latter representing the new crop. Winnipeg wheat was somewhat inclined to lag, but gained 1¼@1⅝c for the day, with the December at 53⅞c in Canadian currency. However, the latter was only about 11¼ per cent under American at the last, against 12½ the previous day.

Liquidation by holders of wheat in Liverpool was regarded as over and that market, while closing unchanged to ¼d lower, was actually ⅞@1⅛c per bu higher, figuring on sterling at $3.89, against $3.80 on Monday. Some delay was reported in seeding in Russia and the movement of wheat to Danubian ports was reported as smaller. According to reports Europe has only two to three weeks' actual requirements now afloat on ocean passage.

Country Sells Cash Corn.

Corn prices were on the upgrade from the start and, while the country was credited with having sold around 250,000 bu old corn to arrive as the result of the bulge, the finish was at the top with net gains of 1½@1⅝c, December closing at 34⅜@34⅞c and May at 38⅝@38⅞c.

Some new buying was in evidence in corn futures during the day and sentiment generally was more friendly to the market than for some time past. Shipping demand, however, remains slow and it is claimed that Ohio is taking care of the east at relatively lower prices than the grain can be laid down from Indiana or Chicago.

Investment buying was more in evidence on oats yesterday than for some time and prices advanced sharply with the local element helping along the upturn. Final sales were at net gains of 1@1¼c, with December finishing at 21⅛@21⅝c and May at 24¼@24⅝c. Rye gained 1⅛@1⅜c in sympathy with wheat, the December being 38⅜c and May 40⅝c at the last.

EGG FUTURES RALLY

November eggs gained abruptly at the opening on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, weakened at midsession to another all time low, and then recovered to close with an advance of ¼@⅜c. December followed the November trend, but closed ⅜c lower. Butter was quiet, November firming up ½c. Potatoes continued to lose ground, closing 2@3c lower. Sales: Butter, 518,400 lbs.; eggs, 2,736,000 doz.; potatoes, 560,000 lbs. Deliveries: Potatoes, 2 cars Idaho russets. Prices follow:

TRADE BUYS COTTON

Trade buying of cotton, owing to low prices, combined with new speculative and short buying, gave the market yesterday one of the best advances it has experienced of late, despite the fact that a little selling in the early morning carried prices down to new low levels. December in Chicago reached 5.85c, from which there was an advance to 5.98c. In all it was the best market the trade has had in a long time. Sentiment became more friendly to the buying side as the securities market advanced.

The close was only slightly below the high point of the day, with futures in Chicago up 31@34 points, New Orleans 34@37 points and New York 29@35 points. Spot cotton advanced 35 points, or nearly $2.00 a bale, with New York 5.85c, New Orleans and Houston 5.50c and Galveston 5.60c.

There were light rains in southeastern Texas, southern Louisiana and southern Mississippi and also in the Charleston, S. C., district. The census report on ginnings and the agricultural department's estimate of the crop are due at 10 a. m. Thursday morning. Ginnings are expected to be lower than last year, while the crop figures are advanced. Proctor & Gamble's estimate is for a crop of 15,450,000 bales. The average estimate of 87 members of the Cotton exchange is for a crop of 13,990,000 bales. Prices follow:

LARD WELL ABSORBED

Scattered selling of lard in the way of liquidation for a short period early made an easier market yesterday, but later a scarcity of offerings and buying by packers and shorts, combined with the advance in grains, cotton, and securities, brought about a marked change and prices advanced. The close was at the top, with net gains of 7¼@15c, December and January leading in strength. Liverpool lard was unchanged to 3d lower. Exports of lard were 45,500 lbs. and of bacon 115,000 lbs. Cash trade was good, with a little foreign business in lard. Hogs were generally steady. Receipts were lighter than a week and a year ago. Prices follow:

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES FOLLOW RISE IN WALL ST.

Entire List Advances in Active Trading.

"The committee on business conduct directs that before executing any selling orders members shall ascertain and notify their floor brokers whether such orders are for long or short account."

Pressure Lifts.

The pressure which the utility shares has been undergoing for some time was lifted and this section of the market found a number of healthy gains. The small group particularly gave a good account of itself. Commonwealth Edison, which on Monday sold at 139, jumped up 7 points to 137. Middle West Utilities enjoyed the most active trading of the day and on a turnover of 51,900 shares was up ¾ to close at 9½.

Insull Utility Investment also was active, advancing 1½ to close at 9½ on a turnover of 28,050 shares. The second preferred was up 9 points at 41. Public Service no par was an exception, losing 5½ points to close at 64 on a small transaction. Elsewhere in the utility division Cities Service, on a turnover of 9,050 shares, gained ⅝ to close at 6¼, while National Electric Power A at 14 was up ¼ points to the good.

Automotives Firm.

The automotive section displayed strength, Bendix going ahead 2¼ points to close at 15½. Borg-Warner was up 1 in closing at 11½. Trading in both issues was fairly active, the turnover in each case being about 100 shares. Cord at 5 was up a fraction and Hendaille Hershey improved one-fifth at 12½.

A number of minor advances were noted in the investment field. Although this predominated in the general list, there were some minus signs scored at the close of trade. Abbott Laboratories on a small turnover gained 5% to close at 28. Both E. L. Bruce and A. M. Castle also slipped.

Walgreen Shares Advance.

Quaker Oats, one of the few high priced stocks remaining, took up a part of 3% points to advance to 101. C. G. Radio and Television, which also broke back was very active, got well into its stride yesterday and advanced 1¾ to close at 15 on a turnover of 19,100 shares. Walgreen, which has reported consistent sales gain this year, advanced 1¾ to close at 33½ and U. S. Gypsum showed an improvement to the tune of 3 points, selling at 35.

Efforts to show gains of from a fraction to 2 points were Crane, Fitzsimmons & Co., Lincoln Printing, Marshall Field, and Swift International.

Facts vs. Hysteria

There is no denying the fact that a large number of this country's prime securities, both bonds and stocks, are today selling at prices that do not approach their real value. This situation has been brought about to some degree by hysterical selling on the part of people who "have lost their heads."

For those who still retain their mental balance there are available opportunities for long term investment, such as have not existed in many years. We shall be glad to discuss them with any interested person.

Best grades of strongweight hogs held firm yesterday, while others slumped 10@25c when the trade had to cope with another surplus of underweights and pigs. The market is practically swamped with stock weighing under 160 lbs., may of them in feeder flesh. Some of the biggest hog producing sections of Dakota and parts of Iowa are dumping 50@130 lb. pigs in healthy condition on the market for slaughter, the outlet to feeders being very narrow.

The lowest prices in many years has attracted foreign demand and a big English order for light hams has created an outlet for much of the surplus of underweights at prevailing quotations. Approximately 4,000 50@130 lb. Dakota and Iowa pigs sold for the trade Monday and Tuesday at $2.25@4.00, while thousands of 140@240 lb. averages were sold at $4.50@5.00. Prime 200@250 lb. averages topped the market yesterday at $5.55, while the general average for all but pig weights figured $5.05, equaling the recent low point of the year, which goes back to 1908 for a lower mark. A feature of the trade on the wholesale market this week is the fact that feeding lambs at $5.00@5.50.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET-NEWS

A decided reversal in trade sentiment in all grains brought an unexpected upturn in prices. Traders said the market's action had been overdue for some time, but while they were timid about expressing too positive opinions, as to the ability of the market to hold the gains, they said that advantage should be taken of all setbacks to make investments in the May delivery of all grains. There has been no time in the history of the wheat trade when prices were so low as at present, all things considered.

Bawlf of Winnipeg wires Bartlett FrazierCo., that millers are not doing anything and the general opinion is there is a fair short outside interest in October wheat which may have difficulty in covering as terminal and line elevators are not interested in giving up any of their October holdings at present spread relative to May.

Broomhall says since July 1 world exports practically are the same as they were a year ago. During the 12 months ended last June total world exports were 785,000,000 bu, compared with 612,000,000 bu the preceding 12 months and 913,000,000 bu three years ago. On this basis shipments so far this season are below normal and therefore it is likely that clearances will be larger early next year.

Lightweight pork loins are no longer bringing the usual premium. Some of the lightest weights have been a drug on the market and medium weight loins are in best demand. Top loins yesterday stopped at 17c, equaling the lowest since last February.

December Hogs at $4.80.

Heavy grades of hogs for next December delivery were sold at $4.50 on the futures market yesterday, but there were very few sellers willing to contract to deliver winter hogs at prices below $4.75. Numerous bids were made for December and January contracts at $4.50. Light, medium, and heavy grades were bid $5.00 for the present month's delivery.

The acute scarcity of prime steers and yearlings held the market for these kinds in a strong position yesterday and Monday's highest sales were duplicated. Almost 100 steers averaging 1,306 lbs reached $10.50, which equals the highest paid for cattle since early last April. Outside buyers were eager for top kinds, but met sharp local competition.

Large local packers were among the aggressive bidders for stock eligible to $10.00 and more. Stock selling below the $9.00 line was slow and plainer grades at $5.00@8.00 showed losses of 25@50c in two days. Cows and heifers were also slow and barely steady. Calves slumped 50c more, showing fully $1.00 loss in two days. An abrupt rise of 25@50c in the market for stockers and feeders surprised the trade yesterday. Numerous sales of best feeders were made at $6.50@7.25 and large lots of feeding steers were obtained as low as $5.00@5.50.

Lambs Back on Bottom.

Buyers were quick to notice weakness in the lamb market at the opening yesterday and slashed quotations 50c more. Prices are back to the previous low point of the year. The top at $6.50 goes back to November, 1911 for a lower figure. Top sales then were below the $5.00 line. Large local packers took most of the sorted native lambs at $6.25, paying $5.25 for all buck lambs and $6.25 for the top rangers. Top to city butchers reached $6.50.

Prevailing quotations are $1.25 under the middle of last week and buyers have increased "sorts" on the break. According to the trade, producers are certain to retaliate by curtailing supplies. Reports from five of the leading markets show only 46,000 head in sight for today against 76,900 the previous Wednesday. Aged sheep were plentiful and weakened off again. Yearlings were steady. A number of country buyers were here in search of good feeding lambs at $5.00@5.50.

Why pay more than Household's low rate?

The Nationally known Household Loan Plan offers cash loans of $50 to $300 to husbands and wives at reasonable rates.

Household's rate on all loans above $100 is almost one-third lower than the maximum permitted by the small-loan law. We voluntarily established this low rate in 1928, and our customers have benefited ever since. This rate remains the same until the loan is paid off. It does not increase as the unpaid balance decreases.

For example:

The average monthly cost of a $200 loan, repaid in 20 equal monthly payments, is $2.63. This is the lowest cost in Chicago.

Get the Cost in DOLLARS Before You Borrow
